HAROLD B. MOWRY'S CAR OVERTURNS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 31.—A Cadillac brougham, owned and driven by Harold B. Mowry, of Sterling, formerly of Norwich, was badly damaged this afternoon, when the machine en route from Sterling to New London overturned on Williams street. Mr. Mowry, who was caught in the car as it turned over, escaped without a cut or bruise, in spite of the fact that the entire glass sides, windshield and back glass were shattered.

The automobile was being driven along the macadam highway between Mohegan avenue and Gallows lane, and not at a high rate of speed. As the machine was approaching Williams street, the highway surface being wet from a steady rain, the car began to skid. Mowry applied his brakes and as he did so the auto skidded so badly that before the driver could get the machine under control it overturned and slid along the highway several feet.

The overturning of the machine, besides completely wrecking the glass, demolished one running board, two fenders and badly disfigured two wheels and the body of the car. Mowry climbed from within the enclosure and with not a scratch upon face or hands. A wrecker from one of the service stations caused the wrecked machine to be brought to a garage.

WARNS AGAINST GIVING STRANGERS AUTO RIDES

"In trying to save some stranger the price of a street car fare you may be sacrificing all your worldly possessions," is the startling statement made in this month's issue of a well known motorists' magazine which has a large circulation in Connecticut. Moreover, publication of Auto Club bulletins in Connecticut cities are constantly stressing the same point.

The advent of summer annually lines the terminals of Connecticut highways with hundreds of vacationing youths seeking free rides to no particular destination and with others who are really going somewhere, but desire to avoid the payment of trolley or railroad fare. In the past, motorists with extra room in their cars have taken pity on such would-be travelers and have invited them along. Now, however, after scores of court decisions have been handed down holding the driver responsible for injury to any person riding in his car, the auto owners are becoming more wary, for even those who carry liability insurance are liable far beyond the amount of their policy.

The article in the above mentioned motorists' magazine goes on to point out that the day of pitying the poor chap who has to walk is definitely past. It says that guest has switched from an appreciative party to something which any judge or attorney will tell you is the next thing to a menace. The article cites many examples in which drivers have been nicely "trimmed" because of accidents occurring to strange "ride-jackers."

EXPECT GOOD POTATO CROP IN COUNTY

The past few days has been very favorable weather for potato blight and the farmers raising potatoes in New London county should make a special effort to keep their vines well sprayed with Bordeaux mixture, says a statement issued by the New London County Farm bureau. The county agricultural agent has visited several fields in the county which show evidences of blight in varied degrees. When the field becomes blighted to any extent and with cool rainy weather it offers very encouraging conditions for blight to propagate. The spors are spived around with the rain and blow around with the wind and will establish themselves in a very short time on leaves that have not been infected. When the blight spors once get in to the leaves it cannot be saved by spraying.

The idea of spraying is to keep the vines covered with the Bordeaux mixture so that the spor when'around on the leaf will at once die and not cause any damage. If the blight takes a field at the present time a farmer cannot expect to get but a very small crop. With the prospects for a 20 per cent. shortage over last year on potato yield it looks as though farmers would again get a fairly good price for potatoes and for that reason can spend a little extra money and afford in insuring themselves of a good yield by spraying. The weather has been quite favorable this season for the growth of the plants and in this locality the prospects for a crop is very good. Any information may be obtained from the Farm Bureau office in regard to spraying with Bordeaux mixture.

SEVENTY-THREE ACCIDENTS AT GRADE CROSSINGS

Motor vehicles were involved in seventy-three accidents at railroad grade crossings of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad company during the first six months of this year, a decrease of eight from the record of the first half of 1924, according to a report furnished to the state motor vehicle department by the railroad company.

Fifty-two cars were struck by trains and twenty trains struck by autos in the first half of this year, as against fifty-nine automobiles struck by trains and nineteen trains struck by automobiles crashed through protecting gates at crossings and one crossing tender was struck this year, whereas ninety-one automobiles ran through crossing gates and one tender was hit from January 1 to June 30, of last year.

The result of these accidents for 1925, aside from the property damage involved, were fourteen persons killed and thirty injured, an increase of two deaths and a decrease of sixteen persons injured as compared with the record for the first half of 1924. On the other hand, the discontinuance or curtailment of local passenger service on many of the branch lines of the railroad as a result of motor bus competition, has reduced the hazard at many grade crossings, some of which have been rendered practically harmless by the complete withdrawal of trains from certain lines.

The motor vehicle department receives regular reports from the railroad company on observations made at dangerous grade crossings every Saturday and Sunday and on holidays. These show that a larger percentage of drivers are careful to look in either direction before attempting to cross railroad tracks, than has been the case in the past. At the North avenue crossing, Bridgeport, 39,146 automobiles crossed without a single instance of carelessness during a period of counting, at East Main street crossing, Plainville, 10,564; at Ferry Road crossing, Saybrook, 9,610, and at Glenbrook avenue crossing, Stamford, 2,500.

DISABLED VETS ARE GOING TO NIANTIC

Hitherto the camp has opened on August 1, but the stay of the 102nd Infantry, C. N. G., until Sunday makes necessary the delay. If there be an epidemic of price-cutting in the industry, Overland is not concerned with it. For never will Overland be a party to any policy that involves the cutting of prices to a figure necessitating a proportionate cut in quality. ¶ The reason—and the ONLY reason—Overland Six prices are now reduced is because we are selling twice the number of these fine cars we had planned. ¶ This means huge savings in our purchases, huge savings in manufacturing. ¶ Therefore, to keep our sales volume at this satisfactory level, these economies are now passed on to you. Before you buy any car in this price class, don't be stampeded. ¶ Shop carefully around. Investigate all moderate-priced Sixes. Then, check your findings against this big Overland Six. ¶ As an experienced owner you must then admit that never before, for as little as $895, have you been offered so much of quality and of value in any automobile.

SUPREME COURT DENIES APPEAL TO DOCTORS

The revocation of the licenses of sixty-eight Connecticut physicians by the state board of health, at the instance of the Holden grand jury was upheld Thursday by the supreme court of errors.

Appeals of five doctors from a superior court finding supporting the health departments action were denied by the supreme court in its decision handed down in New Haven. By arrangement between Attorney General Healy and Senator John B. Dillon of Bridgeport of counsel for the doctors the appeals of these five physicians were selected as test cases to govern the disposition of the other sixty-three appeals. Dr. Harry Chaimson of Bridgeport, formerly of Windsor street Hartford; Dr. Arnold Brien of Stamford and Drs. Gerald A. Richardson, Isador Yochelman and Bernard Kafka of Bridgeport were the appellants whose cases were actually appealed.

State Health Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn said that he would immediately consult Attorney General Healy to determine whether the nature of the supreme court decision does not justify the health department ordering all of the doctors whose licenses were revoked to cease practicing without delay.

VANDERBILT WEDDING GROUP HAS NORWICH INTEREST

In the pictures of the wedding attendants at the marriage of Miss Murial Vanderbilt and Frederick Cameron Church, Jr., of Boston, at Newport, one of the ushers was Robert A. Lancaster, of Worcester and Boston. Friends in Norwich, also in Jewett City, his birthplace, will note the coming Tuesday, August 4th., by sending greeting cards to Mr. Fanning, who on that date will reach his 95th birthday. He writes to friends here that he continues in fairly good health, although suffering from a little lameness for the past day or two. However, he is able to be at his desk in the office of the great factory nearly every pleasant day and keeps busy at his home on Woodland street, Worcester.

PLAN FLAG RAISING AT GREENEVILLE GROUNDS

A meeting of the recreation commission was held at the new headquarters at the court house Friday evening with Chairman Fitzgerald presiding. Encouraging reports were made on the playgrounds indicating ever increasing attendance and mounting interest in the recreation centers.

All of the new equipment recently purchased is in use at the various grounds including the slides, see-saws and swings. The sand boxes are in constant use by many little tots who enjoy the sand as a fine substitute for the seashore. Day after day they are brought to the ground, many with pails and shovels by their mothers or perhaps older children who participate in the industrial classes where they are taught basket weaving, sewing, and other useful arts.

Plans are being made for a flag raising at the Greeneville grounds next week when the new flag will be officially unfurled from the flag pole just erected at the grounds.

POETRY

MAKE YOUR WEATHER FAIR.

You would not ask for food to brush
Your teeth or comb your hair;
You would not ask someone to eat
Your food or say your prayers.

Then why should you expect someone
To drive away your gloom.
Resolve to let your torch of faith
Illuminate your room.

For all have cares as well as you
That they, themselves, must bear.
Resolve to brighten up your face
And make the weather fair.
—William B. Francisco in Nautilus.

BALLADE OF DEAD FRIENDS.

As we the withered ferns
By the roadway lying,
Time, the jester, spurns
All our prayers and prying—
All our tears and sighing.
Sorrow, change, and woe—
All our where-and-whying
For friends that come and go.
Life awakes and burns,
Age and death defying,
Till at last it learns
All but Love is dying;
Love's the trade we're plying,
God has willed it so:
Shrouds are what we're buying
For friends that come and go.
Man forever yearns
For the thing that's flying.
Everywhere he turns,
Men to dust are drying—
Dust that wanders, eyeing
(With eyes that hardly glow)
New faces, dimly spying
For friends that come and go.

ENVOY.

And thus we all are sighing
The truth we fear to know;
Death will end our crying
For friends that come and go.
—Edwin Arlington Robinson.

Bryan Eulogized by Cong. W'm D. Upshaw

Said Bryan Would Rather Be Right Than Be President—He Actually Threw Away a Crown.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(A. P.)—William Jennings Bryan, as a man whose religious faith was built upon the rock of ages and whose political faith was such that he "threw away a crown" because he would rather be right than be president, was eulogized by Congressman William D. Upshaw, of Georgia, in memorial services for the late fundamentalist leader at the Tent Evangel today.

The Bryan memorial service was to have been the opening of a fundamentalist campaign in New York by Dr. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth, Texas, known as "the Texas Cyclone" in evangelical circles, but he was prevented from coming by illness in his family, and the campaign was temporarily postponed.

Congressman Upshaw styled both Bryan and Clarence Darrow, defense counsel in the recent evolution case at Dayton, as "titans of brain, logic and eloquence," but declared that "Bryan's house was built upon the rock of ages. Clarence Darrow's upon the shifting sands."

While Bryan from his boyhood trusted Christ "as a personal, saviour" said Congressman Upshaw, "Darrow confessedly left Christ out of his heart and life." He charged Darrow with "inviting the youth of the nation into a great spiritual Sahara."

The Rev. C. W. McPherson, of the Tent Evangel, had previously called Bryan a friend of science, who was "contending for science as do all lovers of truth." What Bryan contended against," said Rev. McPherson, "was the imposition of an hypothesis of evolution upon the students in our schools of learning as an established fact in science now."

Congressman Upshaw declared that the Commoner "literally had the presidency within his grasp," when he returned from his tour around the world, but "that he actually threw away a because in his attitude toward a great economic question he would rather be right than be president."

He quoted Bryan as having said in Atlanta, in justification of his stand on government ownership of railroads "having reached his conclusion after honest investigation, I would be unworthy of the position of leadership with which I have been entrusted if I were to allow any personal or political consideration to influence me in my attitude or action."

The dead Nebraskan's staunch advocacy of prohibition was lauded by Mr. Upshaw, who said:

"I wonder how many sighs of relief have been breathed in the great 'wet' centers since the eloquent prohibition tribune breathed his last? They are sorry he is dead and say beautiful things about his brilliant ability and his constant sincerity, but they find themselves visualizing a season of peace since the dangerous disturber is gone. He delayed his aggressive espousal of prohibition with the hope of getting his party leaders to follow his to his battle royal against the liquor interests, but when the final break came he was utterly impervious to the anathemas hurled at him by the saloon politicians all over the nation."

SUGGESTS USE OF PADLOCK AND JAIL FOR VIOLATORS

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 2—(A. P.)—Prohibition enforcement agents were not able to get anywhere in the way of law enforcement until they stopped wasting their time upon the subordinate cowboys or booze vendors and began padlocking big liquor retailers and jailing the bootleggers, says Emory E. Buckner, United States district attorney at Ne w York city.

Mr. Buckner came here to visit his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. D. M. Buckner, and to attend a family reunion in Omaha August 8.

When the attorney was placed at the helm of the federal prosecution he found the courts packed with insignificant cases he said.

"I set to work with the aim of getting at the big sources," he continued "cracking the activity of the liquor manufacturers and the dealers who bootlegged on an extensive scale.

"The outcome of the insignificant cases would mean very little in stamping the vast liquor flow into New ork city. I found New York as wet as the Atlantic ocean when I took up my duties. The police commissioner is getting 240 thousand complaints a year against liquor violations."

Four Days to Erect MacMillan Planes

Difficult Operating Conditions Owing to Small Beach Will Prolong the Work.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—(A. P.)—Because of the difficult operating conditions, four days will be required to put the planes of the MacMillan Arctic expedition at Etah into operation, the navy department was advised today by Lieutenant Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd.

The only landing beach at Etah is about fifty feet wide and forty feet deep, Commander Byrd said, and it will have to be removed on runways built for the aircraft to keep the wheels from sinking into the soft sand.

"Peary and Bowdoin laid to this morning from 4:10 to 8:10", said Commander Byrd's dispatch, sent from Etah early today. "Following close to coast line and had goo dview of many gigantic glaciers. Arrived Etah tonight nine o'clock. Weather bad with wet snow and fog covering hills down to a hundred feet.

"Only one small beach in whole harbor, as beach line is almost universally rocky with many cliffs and rocky hills arising from water's edge. Planes will have to be erected on beach due to lack of space on the Peary. The beach is sandy and pebbly, so that runways will have to be made for each plane to keep wheels from sinking in. There are many large rocks on the beach that will have to be cleared off. It is fifty feet wide and forty feet deep and too steep at present for use, but can be leveled down sufficiently for use.

"Will start landing planes at five tomorrow morning due to difficult operating conditions, four days will be required to erect planes.

"Personnel all in good condition and very keen to get started. Pigeons in good shape. Two pairs of pigeons are nesting.

"Peary has shown herself to be very good ice breaker. She is staunch ship. Commander McDonald and Captain Steel did good work in getting her through bad ice."

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE BACK OF CRAMPTON BILL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(A. P.)—While fully endorsing the prohibition enforcement reorganization now in process, the Anti-Saloon League, through its highest officials, announced formally today that at then ext session of congress it will again urge passage of the civil service provisions of the Crampton bill which failed at the last session.

Signing the statement were Bishop Thomas Nicholson president; Howard Hyde Russell, founder; A. J. Barton, chairman of the executive committee; Ernest H. Cherrington, editor of the American issue, and Wayne E. Wheeler, general counsel.

Asserting that "certain papers" had misconstrued as opposition to the plan a recent statement by officials of the league that if it "does not work nothing will" the group signing today's pronouncement said the league "has long advocated the re-organization of the prohibition unit so as to place responsibility definitely; to exclude political influence and to secure co-operation from the various government departments."

"Accepted as a step in this direction," it added, "the new re-organization merits support. The measure of its success will depend upon the freedom with which it is permitted to operate."

FIVE HURT AS MOB OF 500 STORMS K K K MEETING

Women and Children in House When Mob Attacked—Windows Wrecked and Furniture Smashed—Attack Made After State Police Refused Protection to Klan—Three Men Arrested and Charged With Carrying Concealed Weapons—One Man Carried Lead Filled Pipe—Youth Arrested is Son of Chief of Police.

WESTWOOD, Mass., Aug. 2.—(A. P.)—Five persons, including two women and a boy, were injured, three men were arrested, and the farmhouse of Stephen Ilsley in the Islington district here was wrecked late today when a meeting of some three scores Ku Klux Klan was broken up by a mob of 500 persons. The meeting was the first attempt since the state police announced that the department would no longer afford police protection to klan gatherings.

A rock hurled at the speaker's stand started the rioting, and instantly the air was filled with missles. The three local constables were unable to restore order. Many of the klansmen reached their automobiles and escaped, but about a score took refuge in the Ilsley house which was immediately surrounded and stoned.

Every window in the house was shattered and much of the furniture was ruined by a hail of rocks and sticks. A hurry call to the Norwood and Dedham police brought additional officers, who were able to stop the demonstration.

An appeal by Westwood town officers to the state police patrol at Framingham finally brought four state troopers to the scene. They dispersed the crowd, escorted the klansmen to safety and chased an automobile two miles into Dedham, where they crowded to the curb and arrested the occupants, Perley W. Libby and Roy Hall, both of Sudbury. Hall is the son of the Sudbury police chief. The state officers said they found a rifle and two revolvers in the car. The men were locked up at Dedham, charged with carrying concealed weapons. William G. Moore, of Westwood was arrested on the same charge. Officers said he was carrying a lead-filled brass pipe.

The injured, all of whom were cut and bruised by the missles, were A. W. Robinson and Charles Whiting, both of Westwood, William Score, 16, and Bernice Lee and Mary Wheeler, both of Waltham.

INVESTIGATING RETURN OF ALIEN PROPERTY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(A. P.)—The return in 1921 by the alien property custodian of several million dollars in seized funds to the American Metal Company is under investigation by department of justice agents both here and abroad.

Although officials of the department and the custodians office were unwilling tonight to discuss the object of the investigation, their attention was understood to have centered particularly on certain transactions.

The settlement with the company, which was formed in the United States by German metal interests, was made during the administration of Thomas W. Miller, who resigned as alien property custodian several months ago. He is now in Europe as head of an international veterans' organization and a member of the battle monuments commission.

While admitting that such an investigation was being made, Frederick C. Hicks, present custodian, referred inquiries to the department of justice for details.

"I have no comment to make," he said, "but I want to co-operate and not attempt to cover up anything if there is something wrong. The settlement was made more than three years ago and I could not say whether the investigation being made by another department has been concluded. I don't believe it has."

An investigation was made and the department finally refused to remove the tree, because the owner wanted it cut up into four-foot lengths.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Twenty-three cans of trout—six of which were brown trout—were received from the State Fish commission Saturday forenoon, were immediately taken over by members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club and hurried to brooks and to the Assawaga river, all being released within an hour after they were received here. Six cars with willing crews took the trout away.

Never were fingerling trout released under more perfect conditions, hereabouts. The brooks were running splendidly following the heavy rain of Friday night and early Saturday morning, so there was an abundance of fresh, clean water for them to start life in this area. The fish arrived in perfect condition.

The brown trout were of great interest to the Rod and Gun club members who handled them. None ever before have been received here. They were released between Dayville and Attawaugan and above Ballouville in the Assawaga river, in accordance with instructions from the state. Eight other cans were turned over on Saturday by the fish commission to the Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game club, with headquarters in Putnam, for release in the Assawaug river. It is estimated that the total release of brown trout was upwards of 2,000. It is likely that these fish will have attained a length of eight to ten inches by the time next year's trout fishing season opens and many of them, if not caught, will live to weigh as much as five or six pounds.

There is a roadster at a local garage that was offered for sale to a dealer in junk cars, after it stood on its end—if a motor car has ends or a place for them—on upper Reynolds street during the rain of Friday night. The machine carried a New York registration and is owned by H. E. Jarvis of 1517 Park Place, Brooklyn. The car did a sort of combination glide, Charleston and half-somersault on the wet street surface, before it went over and tore off two wheels—a front and a rear. After checking up other damage to the car, Mr. Jarvis offered it to the junk dealer for $150.

BOILED DINNER MAY GROW ON SINGLE STALK: WHO KNOWS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 2—Joseph Warner, resident near Wauregan, is beginning to have a favorable leaning toward the much mooted theory of evolution. He is almost convinced that there is something in it. Mr. Warner has a good cause for this attitude, in view of the fact that a strange thing has occurred in the garden patch on his farm. In a recent issue of this paper he read about a man who had potatoes and tomatoes growing on the same vine. He was a bit skeptical about that yarn until he was looking over his own garden and found one vine of what he regarded as potatoes bearing tomatoes. He took several looks before he was thoroughly convinced that he was seeing accurately—and now he is telling the world about it. And who wouldn't. This freak of nature is at the Warner farm, for anyone to see who wants to see it.

The happening has suggested to Mr. Warner the idea of doing some Burbankien experimenting with a view to growing a boiled dinner complete with one dexterous twist of a vine.

RARELY INTELLIGENT DOGS AT THE PALISADE KENNELS

DANIELSON, Aug. 2—Several hundred persons, representative of many towns and cities in Connecticut, Rhode Island Massachusetts and New York, had a delightful day Sunday at the annual field day at the Palisade kennels, in East Killingly.

There were dog fanciers galore in the crowd and many others who know less about dogs and their good points, but enjoy seeing such a fine exhibit as was made possible by the showing of approximately 250 police dogs—all thoroughbreds—and valued at prices ranging from $50 for puppies up to highly trained animals that are held at as high as $10,000.

Row after row of police dogs were staked out on the grounds and scores more were to be found in the big kennels on the farm. The dogs seemed to hail the occasion with as great interest as those who came to see them.

Featuring the day was an exhibit by Captain Engerer, noted animal trainer, of his highly trained police dogs, notably Tuetel and Tyras a wonderful pair of dgos. Tuetel is known as the Canine Sleuth and is America's only police dog vaudeville performer. Captain Engerer, minus his left arm as the result of an encounter, years ago, with one of a den of tigers he was training, put Tuetel through his paces. Teutel showed remarkable intelligence and high specialized training. He did all the ordinary stunts that trained dogs do and many others. His attack of a man, heavily padded to protect him from injury, at the command of his master, his rescue of a little boy from the clutches of a kidnapper who was carrying him away and his leading of the little boy by the child's belt back to his master were remarkably fine. His throwing of a fugitive off a galloping horse and riding "home" on horseback was another great bit of work.

All of this and a joint attack by Tuetel and Tyras on a fugitive, furnished great entertainment for the throngs who looked on. The East Killingly band played during the day and ample provision was made for refreshment. Henri I. Baer, owner of Palisade kennels, was congratulated on all sides for the excellence of the show and of keen interest is aroused.

Harry Nadeau, of Greenwich, and Dr. A. E. Parent, of Putnam, were guests also. Mr. Nadeau is president of the State Associations of Chambers of Commerce Secretaries, and in his short talk told something of the history of the Chamber of Commerce as an organization and impressed upon the local Rotarians that if the Chamber of Commerce is supported by everyone in a community it can accomplish a great deal.

The tank steamer Choctaw, owned by the Gulf Refining Co., of Bayonne, N. J., came into port at the Wilcox Co. dock Thursday night and loaded with fish oil for a New Jersey paint Co. The steamer was in command of Captain John Spofford who with his cook spent the night with B. L. Mull and family at his cottage at Burnelto Corners, where relatives called to see him. Capt. Spofford Friday morning entertained a party of friends and showed them over the boat, among them was Mr. Johnson, government supervisor of the new federal building under construction. The motor power of this boat is gasoline. It has four oil tanks and the oil was pumped from the company's tanks into the steamer storage tanks. At her destination the oil will be pumped out of the tanks into the storage tanks of the paint company. As this boat is employed in carrying gasoline and kerosene, the tanks have to be scrubbed with soaps and water which is done by the deck hands.

Down in the hold of the vessel the pumps have more or less gasoline vapor so that the men attending the pumps or working can only stay down there five minutes at a time. While they are down below they are constantly watched from the deck. Sometimes a man is overcome by gas in the five minutes at his work, then there is a rush down the ladders to rescue him and he is quickly brought up and revived.

The keeping of the boat in a first class condition is done by the deck hands who are expected to keep it shining and clean. The officers have two bunks each so in case of illness anyone caring for them has a bunk near the patient.

RIVERVIEW LOSES CLOSE GAME TO NEW DEPARTURE AT BRISTOL SUNDAY

After losing to the Collinsville team on Saturday afternoon, 9 to 7, Riverview dropped another tough game to the New Departure team at Bristol on Sunday afternoon by a score of 1 to 0. Sunday's game was a pitchers' battle between Tony West and Delaney, each pitching brilliant ball, but bunched hits in the last of the ninth resulted in the only run of the game.

For nine and a half innings the teams battled on even terms, Delaney allowing the Riverview team only one solitary single. West likewise had been very stingy with his hits, granting the New Departure boys only two singles. Both fanned two men and each received perfect support from their respective teams, neither making an error. Sensational fielding featured the game from start to finish and several double plays were made.

In the last half of the ninth inning with two down West was touched for two singles, placing a man on first and second. Then a long fly to the outfield which Harry Noel missed by inches after a long run brought in the winning counter. It was a game that is seen only once in a season and Bristol fans were kept on edge every minute of the game. The score:

Saturday's Game.

The game Saturday was lost through the wildness of Willie Daniels, who walked four men in succession and then the next four men singled for a total of six runs, in the third inning. The Riverview team outclassed the visiting Collinsville aggregation but the one bad inning spelled defeat for them.

The Collinsville team scored in the first inning, getting one tally on a base on balls, an infield out and a single to left field. Riverview in their half of the first tallied four runs with two down. Mills singled and Normandin repeated the act and then Joe Hamil pounded one to deep right for a home run. Moore singled and stole second, scoring when Lambert dropped Allard's pop fly.

Riverview scored another in the second inning, one a base on balls, an error and Mills' hit. Then in the third Collinsville took the lead when Daniels was unable to locate the plate, six runs counting. Paul Zemke took up the pitching duties and was invincible until the ninth inning.

Riverview evened the count in the fifth inning, scoring two runs on hits by Allard and Sheffiott and Zills' error. For four innings it was a tight battle—but the first of the ninth the first two Collinsville men to face Zemke tripled and West went into the box. On the first ball pitched Collinsville worked the squeeze play and the second run scored. Riverview threatened in the ninth but inability to deliver the final punch left them on the short end of the score. The score:

GEORGE FALCONER SETS NEW RECORD FOR GOLF COURSE

George Falconer, professional at the Norwich Golf club, playing a four-some with Frank P. Welch, H. Budd Gaynor, pro at Shenecossett, and Sam Wilcox, hung up what is likely to stand as a record for the new course for some time to come. George was playing in rare form and his card of 69 was one of championship calibre. He was out in 33 and in in 36. His drives and approach shots were good but his putting on the greens was remarkable. The former record held by Dave Morton was 77.

In the first nine holes George was 33 under par but on coming in he was only 1 over par which cuts two strokes off par score. On the first and third holes he made a birdie 3 and on the seventh a birdie 4 and again on the eighth a birdie 3. Another birdie came on the 17th hole with a 2. His card follows:

Out—3 3 3 4 4 4 4 2 1 33.
In—5 4 4 4 5 3 5 2 4—36.
Total 69.

BRAVES DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER WITH REDS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Boston and Cincinnati broke even in two hotly contested battles today, the second game ending the locals' run of victories after nine straight wins. In the first game Donohue and Ryan were driven off the slab while Vargus was taken out for a pinch hitter and Carl Mays retired with a lame arm. Boston out-hit Cincinnati, but bases on balls mixed with timely drives gave the locals the verdict, 5 to 5.

In the second game as in the first, three pitchers worked for each club, Boston winning out 5 to 3. Errors by Wingo and Cavency were responsible for three of Boston's runs.

COMMITTEE FINDS TILDEN GUILTY OF VIOLATING PLAYER-WRITER RULE

NEW YORK, Aug. 2—(A. P.)—The executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association today adjudged William T. Tilden, 2nd, national singles champion, guilty of violating the player-writer rule in giving exclusive interviews to a press syndicate, but allowed him to retain his amateur status upon his agreement to comply in the future with the requirements of the committee.

The committee made public its findings today after a four-hour closed meeting last night in hte Hotel Vanderbilt at which Tilden was heard. The officials ruled that there was no difference between a player writing a current article on a tournament in which he was participainting than in giving an interview for syndication. On the basis of this decision, they found Tilden subject to suspension and disqualification, but withheld penitive measures upon Tilden's promise to strictly observe the rule.

The champion informed the committee that he had not intentionally violated the rules as construed at last night's meeting and assured the officials that in the future he would not be guilty of a similar offense. This removed all question of the champion's eligibility to participate in the Davis cup tryouts and the East-West matches next week. Disqualification of the champion would have removed the potential No. 1 players of America's cup defending team in the international series.

In addition to disposing of Tilden's case, the committee adopted a resolution which will make it unnecessary in the future to call its members together upon recurrences of similar situations. The president chairman of the committee were unanimously empowered to suspend any player, the action to be final unless later revoked by the committee.

The committee set forth its findings on the subject of interviews for syndication in the following succinct conclusions:

1—The giving of a daily interview by a player, commenting upon an event in which he was competing, was in no way different from writing a current article covering the event;

2—Where such an interview was given to a news syndicate with which the player had contracted to cover events or supply service for pay, the player must be considered to have received pay or a consideration for the interview;

3—A resume of an event given by a competitor therein containing a report of the last day's matches and filed and published when the reports of the last day's play are current news is a current newspaper article and for pay constitutes a violation of the by-laws of the association.

Tilden, who has from time to time differed with tennis officials in his interpretation of the player-writer rule, had defended his right to give interviews for newspaper syndication and his persistence in this attitude threatened his loss to America in the Davis Cup matches. His change of attitude today after his hearing of last night, while it came as a surprise, was a relief to the tennis world and apparently closes for the time being a subject long troublesome to players and officials.

The committee's findings, every word of which, according to officials was "carefully weighed," follows:

"The executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association met last night to consider whether the interviews, commenting upon the National Clay Court championship in which Mr. Tilden was a competitor, given by him to a news syndicate with which he had contracted to supply service, constituted a violation of what is known as the amateur rule of the U. S. L. T. A.; also whether his resume of the event, filed on the last day of play, constituted a further violation.

"Mr. Tilden had been notified that he would be afforded an opportunity to be heard and he attended the meeting. He made a statement of the circumstances under which he had agreed to give the interviews and resume, giving his reasons for believing that he had not violated the rule.

"The committee unanimously concluded and decided that Mr. Tilden had committed acts prohibited by the by-laws and was subject to suspension and to be declared ineligible to compete in tournaments or matches to be played under the auspices of the association. The conclusions and decision of the committee were communicated to Mr. Tilden.

"In consideration of a statement by Mr. Tilden that he had not intentionally violated the rule and that he desired to comply with the requirements of the by-laws as construed by the executive committee, the committee agreed to accept Mr. Tilden's promise that in the future he would give no interviews commenting on any event in which he was a competitor to any news syndicate, corporation or person with which he had contracted to supply articles for pay, and to give no resume of any such event to appear earlier than the third day following the completion of the event. This understanding having been reduced to writing and signed by Mr. Tilden, the resolution suspending him and declaring him ineligible to compete was not adopted."

The game was fast and close until the ninth inning when Ashland launched one of thel last inning rallys and put the game on the ice. Rainey on the mound for Ashland pitched wonderful ball although touched up for nine hits, kept them pretty well scattered. Lloyd Jarvis for Taftville pitched nice ball until the seventh when he was relieved by "Lefty" Dugas. The Jewett City boys hit Dugas hard in the last frame, batting around. Rainey was the hitting star of the game getting four hits out of six trips to the plate for three doubles and a single.

Before the largest crowd of the reason at Ashland Park the Ashland A. A. took another fall out of the Taftville A. A. The game was a pitcher's battle between Spike Liberty and Lefty Dugas. Liberty allowed six well scattered hits with Dugas allowed but three bingles. Guillett at short for Ashland was the fielding star accepting seven difficult chances with out an error. The Ashland team as a whole played nicew ball and looked like one of the leading clubs in this section.

The attraction at Ashland Park next Sunday will be the fast Socony team of New London. The scores:

NEW BANKING LEGISLATION

Important changes in the American banking system presumably will be made at the next session of congress. In preparation for the proposed changes there are several movements under way that in the next few months will assume significance.

There are two main phases of suggested banking revision. One is the branch banking proposal, and the other has to do with detailed amendments to the national banking act. These matters were brought together in the McFadden bill which was introduced in the last session of congress. Now it is reported that the federal reserve board would like to see congress divide the measure so that the proposed amendments to the banking act might be considered apart from the question of branch banking.

This is the practical thing to do. By division of the bill more attention would be directed toward comprehensive revision of the national banking act which contains defects, inconsistencies and unwise restrictions, whereas it lacks restrictions that modern banking has shown to be desirable.

The federal reserve board, it is said, would be prepared to support the national banking bill with the branch banking features left out. On the other hand the comptroller of the currency can scarcely be expected to fall in with the reserve boards suggestion since he has given his approval to the McFadden bill as it stands.

In any attempt to obtain banking legislation it is essential that ample time be given to discuss it. Banking problems are too complex to justify congress in passing any measure hastily. However it ought to be passed. Bankers and business men have a right to know just why changes are proposed and what would be the result of them.

THE POSTAL DEFICIT

[illegible] has proved an embarrassment [illegible] to the administration. [illegible] radical proposal to the operating together with their withdrawal [illegible] two weeks of their demand for a [illegible] increase in wages and increase in working hours made the temporary recession from the strike-threat position.

It has been frequently pointed out [illegible] strike meant more than a tieup [illegible] the coal mining industry. All told, five million men might have gone out if the peace negotiations had not been finally successful. The truce will provide a breathing spell during which it is hoped that both parties to the controversy will reach a further agreement that will set at rest for a long time any danger of a similar situation arising. With the big amount of unemployment in England at present, that country is in no condition to endure the dangers from which this truce has delivered her for the time being.

And it is to be hoped that the effect may even extend to our own battling operators and miners in the coal controversy and that they may be influenced to a peaceful settlement by the example that has been set in England.

GEORGIA REVERSES TENNESSEE

The perfectly square and flat defeat of an anti-evolution-teaching bill in the Georgia house of representatives is an indication that the influence of the restrictive wave in the south has been overestimated. The issue was clearly defined and the prohibitive proposition was presented to the house by its advocate with the full effect of all the arguments adduced in the Dayton trial, including the plausible points derived from Mr. Darrow's specious defense of Leopold and Loeb. It is impossible to say that the proposition may not yet be revived with more success in Georgia, but the defeat is decisive for the present, and it is encouraging as a proof that the southern people are not to be stampeded by the emotional appeal, but are disposed to take a calm and common sense view of the subject.

If the prohibitive policy is really an overwhelming purpose of the whole people of Tennessee, it is hard to see why it should be so far, as it now appears to be, from the purpose of the Georgians who are near neighbors and are constituted very much of the same material as the Tennesseeans. The inference is that after all the Tennessee law is a legislative fluke. It is said Mr. Bryan was right at least when he said that it was a fortunate thing for his case that it was tried in the precise locality where it was—that, in his words, "circumstances admitted the trial to a community like that at Dayton."

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Dry celery tops in glass jars and use them to flavor stews and soups.

Cooking fruits and acid vegetables in an aluminum pan and brighten it, while alkali compositions will discolor it.

The shoes that you have worn out in the rain should be put on shoe trees and kept away from artificial heat while drying.

In custards and sauces, you can omit all eggs over two and substitute two tablespoons of cornstarch for each egg omitted.

When painting furniture it is not necessary to use a filler; but two or three coats of paint will be required.

When baking apple pies, try inverting the pie-plate over the pie if the crust gets too broken before the apples are done.

Too much sugar in the mixture will prevent ice cream from freezing hard.

Heat the leftover cooked steak by steaming—it will have a better flavor and be more tender.

Roll in one direction when making pastry if you want it to be light. Pastry is tricky stuff and will not stand much handling or rolling.

To clean a tan leather bag remove all dirt with lukewarm water and a good white soap, then rub dry with a woolen cloth and polish with any good tan shoe polish.

When you make custards again try putting a teaspoon of flour in the sugar, mixing well before adding to the eggs.

Prunes should always be prepared without sugar. They should be washed in warm water, then covered with cold water, set on the back of the range overnight and a pinch of salt added to each pound of prunes. The prunes should not boil. No sugar or syrup is needed if prepared in this way.

THOSE RAZOR BLADES

Used razor blades are always a bother to get rid of, as we worry about someone going through the trash and receiving a nasty cut. Put them out with the ashes, not the trash. Or put them in a candy box, tie, and then put them in the trash.

WATERED MILK

About the only time milk can be "watered" and the same results obtained is when baking a cake. If you have insufficient milk, fill out with water until the called-for amount is reached. You will never know the difference, except perhaps the cake may be a little lighter.

THE FAVORED ROCKER

If you have a rocking chair in your home that is used constantly by a person fond of rocking and it has caused nasty marks on your varnished floor, turn the rocker upside down some night and apply a strip of felt to the under side of the rockers by means of a little glue. It will dry by morning and no one will be the wiser. Felt weather stripping will do the trick nicely.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Spirits of camphor will remove most fruit stains.

Shades of pink can be set by soaking in salt water.

Laces that have grown yellow with age may be bleached by placing them in a jar of cold water and setting the jar in the sun for several days.

If you are afraid your blankets will shrink in the spring washing, dry them on the curtain stretchers. This is a little more effort, but it will repay you, particularly if your blankets are inclined to be a rather close fit for your bed.

To wash a down puff, put it in a cup of warm water, soap well with white pure soap and leave soaking for an hour. Rub with your hands and wring as well as you can. Put through three more waters, then hang on line. When dry, lay on bed and pull feathers into position. Wash on warm, clear day.

WASHING LAMPSHADE

To wash silk lampshades which have become soiled, prepare a tubful of mild soap suds. Have the water just lukewarm and brimming with lather.

Dust the shade well and remove any metal trimming before plunging it into the warm sudsy water. Wash by lifting up and down into and out of the suds, so that the soap will be forced through the meshes of the silk.

Replace the suds with fresh water as soon as it becomes dirty, as it is impossible to wash anything clean in dirty water.

Rinse the shade by dipping in and out of clear warm water. The last rinse water may be tinted with any of the quick dissolving dyes to restore the freshness to the color of the shade if it has faded.

Hang up to dry in a warm airy place. When thoroughly dry, sew on the trimming, if it is in good condition. If not, replace it with fresh braid or ornaments and the shade will be as good as new.

TO REMOVE STAINS

Remove stains from garments before sending them to the laundry, as hot water and soap set many stains. If you have table linen spotted with cocoa, wash out in cold water. Coffee stains can be removed with boiling not hot water. Tea stains should be put into cold water at once, as soon as possible, and then treated with boiling hot water.

Fruit stains are treated with boiling Javelle water. To make the latter, buy a small can of chloride of lime, and follow directions on the label.

Ink stains are removed in various ways, depending upon the nature of the ink. Buttermilk or sour milk is excellent, changing the liquid as often as it becomes stained. Another method is to take a solution of peroxide of hydrogen.

FOR THE SWIMMER

If one really seeks the beaches to swim, one of the most useful garments in the colder latitudes is what is known in sporting parlance as a "sweat shirt" It is warmer than a sweater and takes no harm from water. The newest of these is made in a coat model and obviates the necessity of peeling a wet and clinging garment over the head.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The bottoms of the new sleeves are very often embroidered or trimmed with circular ruffles.

Two layers of georgette crepe bound with ribbon and belted with a wider sash are used to make very attractive night gowns.

There is a decided vogue for purple. Not only the purple hat and frock, but the purple coat is featured in the smart shops.

The two-piece jumper frock in pencil or candy striped silk is tailored with the greatest simplicity and presents an appearance of the greatest chic.

Some of the new necklaces of tinted pearls are quite long, reaching almost to the waistline and finished at the end with a large pear shaped pearl.

The lace cravat is one of the interesting dress accessories of the season. A brooch in the form of a Directoire arrow is an appropriate fastener.

An envelope bag, of medium size, is noticeable on account of its decoration of Algerian motifs in black and gold on cerise leather.

A new tunic blouse is decorated with cross stitch from the collar to the hem. The underslip is of black satin. Scarlet, gold and Gobelin blue are colors that figure in the embroidery.

Brilliant-colored chiffon handkerchiefs are delightful with filmy frocks. Dorothy Devore, now playing in "How Baxter Butted In," uses contrasting chiffons for each costume she wears.

One of the smart and new purses from Paris is made of bronze patent leather flecked with gold and ornamented with bronzed steel nail heads: It is 3 1-2 inches by 6.

Women have learned much within the past decade as to the whys and wherefores of the mode, but nothing of greater moment than the fact that suitability is the guiding factor in the selection of clothes.

THE VOGUE OF RED

A smart costume which reflects the popularity of red consists of a jumper of red flat crepe worn with a pleated skirt of red and white printed silk and topped by a knee-length coat of red kasha lined with the same silk. A hat of red Bangkok and a red and white scarf complete an effective ensemble.

CAPES IN FAVOR

Capes, which add a note of youth, are returning to favor and are found in varying sizes on many of the newest models from Abroad. Plaited they are, too, and often are edged with bright colors to make themselves still more prominent.

CHARMING BRIDESMAIDS' HATS

Extremely lovely are bridesmaids' hats of white crepe faced with black velvet and trimmed with orange blossoms, lilies of the valley, or pond lilies. Others are in pastel tones with matching flowers and are faced with velvet the same tone or black.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Always encourage a child to take small mouthfuls and chew his food well to avoid choking.

In bathing patients in bed, avoid leaving them wet and clammy. Be sure the room is sufficiently warm and that there are no draughts. When the skin is clean and well cared for there are no pressure sores.

Never try to pull a dry dressing off a wound. Soak it off, if it sticks, by pouring hydrogen peroxide or warm (boiled) water over it until it comes off easily. This saves the healing tissues from irritation.

If the one who chokes is a baby, slap him sharply on the back several times in an effort to dislodge the food. If this fails, grasp the child by the feet and hold him head down, slapping the back again. Not a gentle pat, but a sharp slap is required to loosen the lodged food. If no relief is obtained put your finger down the child's throat and by hooking your finger around the mass endeavor to draw it up, being careful not to push it further down.

KEEPING BABY COOL IN SUMMER

Summer care of the baby's skin is given thoughtful consideration in People's Home Journal as follows: The skin of a young infant is exceedingly delicate and when it is not correctly cared for, the baby is most uncomfortable. This is especially true in warm weather when the baby perspires easily and the skin becomes irritated on the slightest provocation. To prevent chafing, the skin must be kept perfectly clean. Every healthy baby should be given a full tub bath every day and a sponge bath also. The tub bath should usually come in the morning, half an hour before the second morning meal, and the sponge bath in the late afternoon when the baby is undressed for the night. In addition to these two baths, one or two extra sponge baths may be given during the day, in extremely hot weather. In this way the baby will be kept cool and comfortable, and his skin will be less liable to chafing.

TO CURE CHAFING

If for any reason the baby's skin should become chafed, all soap should be omitted from the bath for a time and bran baths or salt baths given instead. The bran bath is prepared by placing one pint of bran in a cheesecloth bag and squeezing this about in the bath water until the water looks milky. The baby should then be put in this bath for a minute or two. The salt bath is prepared by dissolving half a cupful of salt in two gallons of warm water.

IN SMALL SPACES.

One apartment dweller whose closet space is very limited used an old wheel from a bicycle and hung it from the top of the closet so it would spin in all directions. This gave her many more hangers and kept a crowded closet neat.

BEWARE OF A FALL.

If you rip part of the hem of your skirt sit down and mend it before you catch your heel in the loosened place and have a nasty fall.

CONCERNING WOMEN .

Ten universities and colleges in the United States have women as presidents.

Colorado was the first state to choose a woman for the position of state superintendent of public instruction.

Miss Edith Ingram, who put out her shingle as a practicing lawyer in London only two years ago, is now so busy that she has to keep two offices going.

Margaret F. Moriarty of Belchertown, is the first woman in Massachusetts to become a justice of the peace with power to issue warrants and take bail.

Mrs Emma Julia Lewis, a practicing lawyer in St. Louis, was the grandmother of five children when she decided to prepare herself to enter the professional field.

A monument erected in New Orleans in 1854 to commemorate the charity of Margaret Haughery, "The Orphans' Friend," was the first statue ever erected to a woman in the United States.

WAIT A BIT.

Never salt meat until it is ready to be served. If salted before cooking it will toughen the best meat and tend to extract the juices.

FOR THE COUNTRY HOUSE.

For the country house where many guests come and go constantly a large box of red leather is a convenient for hall or living room. There are spaces upon the front to slip in little cards telling the hours for receiving and sending mail.

RECIPES.

Cheese Pudding: These are numerous variations of this. Grated cheese may be combined with bread crumbs and egg or with egg alone, according to materials on hand. Perhaps the most attractive cheese pudding is made by separating the whites from the yolks of the eggs, grating the cheese very fine and stirring it through a hot custard made of milk and the yolks of the eggs, folding in the beaten whites.

Lemon Cocoanut Brittle: 2 cups granulated sugar, 1-2 cup fresh-keeping cocoanut, 1-2 cup water, 1 cup nutmeats, 1 cup shredded lemon peel, 2 tablespoons melted butter. Mix the sugar, melted butter and water together and allow the mixture to boil slowly. When it forms a rather hard ball when tried in cold water, pour over the nuts and fruit which have been arranged in a well-buttered pan. Mark in bars or squares when partly cold.

Stories That Recall Others

Reassured

News had reached the village of Forksville that a motor bus plying between the two neighboring towns of Bumpton and Gush Hollow had gone over the side of a cliff with all on board. It was also known in Forksville that the wife of the much henpecked Bud Blodgett was en route to Gush Hollow via the bus line. An interested villager immediately called on Bud.

"Ain't you worried 'bout your wife, Bud?" he asked.

"Well," replied Bud, "I was fer a while, but her cousin in Bumpton jest called up an' said she saw Sal git on the bus wit hher own eyes."

Had His Number

As the commercial traveler took the menu card he looked up pleasantly and quite respectfully at the pretty waitress.

"Warm day, isnt it?" he remarked.

"Yes, it is," she answered stiffly, "and so was yesterday, and my name is Ella, and I know I'm a peach and have pretty blue eyes, and I've been here quite a while and like the place, and I don't think I'm too nice a girl to be working in a restaurant; if I did I'd leave my job. My wages are satisfactory; and I don't know if there is a show or dance in town tonight, and if there is I shall not go with you, and I'm from the country and my brother is cook in this restaurant, and he weighs 200 pounds, and last week he nearly killed a customer who tried to make love to me. Now, what will you have?"

The man dropped back limply in his chair.

"I'm not very hungry," he said. "A cup of coffee and a sandwich will do."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

King Haakon VII, who celebrates his 53d birthday anniversary today, will complete his 20th year on the Norwegian throne next December. One of the momentous events of modern history was the secession of Norway from Sweden; in spite of the intension and desire of the people to form a republic, pressure was brought to bear upon the matter by Great Britain and France—nations friendly to Norway—and it was deemed expedient to continue the monarchy. The king elected by the people was the second son of the late Frederick VIII of Denmark, who had married the Princess Maud, daughter of King Edward VII of Great Britain, and upon ascending the throne the new monarch took the title of Haakon VII. The eldest son of the couple, who in the natural course of events will one day become King of Norway, is the Crown Prince Olav, 21 years old, and now a university student in England.

NEARLY INSANE AT TIMES

Mrs. Saunders Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Troubles of Change of Life

Knoxville, Tenn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound while going through the Change of Life. I was very nervous, could not sleep and had melancholy spells. In fact, I was nearly insane at times and, my memory was almost a blank. I was so weak I could not do my housework half of the time and suffered dreadfully with my back. My doctor said I would have to worry it out and I went through this for three years before I began taking the Vegetable Compound which I saw advertised. I think it was eight bottles that I took. It has been two years since I took any and I haven't had a doctor since for that trouble. I do all my washing and ironing and I have gained from 116 to 138 pounds. I advise all women who suffer physically and mentally as I did to give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. I hope it will do as much for them as it did for me."—Mrs. T. A. SAUNDERS, 711 E. Depot Street, Knoxville, Tennessee.

From Small Beginnings

Gerald Massey, the Silk Mill Boy, an English Poet

Pool laddie! It's a hard life for him. I'd hate to see what's ahead of that boy! What's the use of living at all? I'd like to burn down the whole works and set him free" Thus earnestly exclaimed a visitor in an English silk mill about 1836, as he looked down a row of clanking machines, at every one of which a child was at work, and as he looked most earnestly at the little boy who stood nearest to him, or who worked nearest to him, for the child was always on the move, untangling a thread, pulling a lever, dogging under a swiftly moving bar, stopping the machinery, starting it again, his eyes glued on his work, his thoughts intent on it, his whole little frame devoted in every nerve and fiber to the call of work.

Gerald Massey was only a thin, frail child of 8, but day after day, week after week, month after month, twelve hours in every day, he had to jump for his life among the bars and shuttles. Miracles happen every day under our very eyes and we seldom see them. One of the greatest of miracles is the fact that out of such wretched conditions as those in which Gerald Massey lived some rich flower of genius blossoms forth at times to gladden the earth.

Gerald Massey, at 15, went up to London to seek his fortune, to get away from the whirring factory wheels. There he puttered about in various types of work. Something moved him to write and he began to appeal to little newspapers. At 20 he started a newspaper of his own, devoting it to the interests of the people whom he knew, the working people. His paper was a success beyond his expectation, for he wrote in the interests of humanity. Then he began to print the little songs he himself had written. They made strong and instant appeal, and there came the call for more. He became a lecturer, a writer of many books, and one of the most popular of English song writers. He traveled in many lands and across many oceans, and everywhere he carried the light of a smile and the charm of unusually sweet and tender songs.

That was a modern miracle—Gerald Massey rising from the silk mill to the position of one of England's most noted poets.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Meters and Leakage.

Mr. Editor:

While our water commissioners have reported upon the discovery of a water shed that will give us a billion and a half gallons when we have expended the million and a half dollars, more or less, of an authorized bond issue, have they fully convinced us that they are making full use of all the water that is now stored in the city reservoirs? Is building a reservoir more alluring to the present board than conserving water and saving money in other ways?

I have been informed that they have been advised by competent authority that a short cut to solving the Norwich water problem would be by complete installation of meters for every user of water, and that our present supply is enough if wastage could be shut off, as it would be by the use of meters. And speaking of wastage and leakage, is it a fact as I have heard it intimated that our Venturi meters show more water passing through them at night than in the daytime? If that is so, there must be a leak somewhere. It would be interesting to know what a twenty-four hour record, hour by hour, for a week, would show on this point. Cut out the leaks and put in meters and there would be water enough for everybody.

A Prisoner on a Raft

When you with danger have to cope
Whate'er is fails cling fast to hope.
—Danny Meadow Mouse

"That's that," said Danny Meadow Mouse, as he watched Billy Mink disappear along the farther shore of the Smiling Pool, Danny had had the narrowest of narrow escapes. Billy Mink had swum right past the old board on which Danny was sitting. He had passed so close that he almost touched the end of that old board, and because Danny hadn't moved he hadn't been seen. This was the third narrow escape Danny had had since he reached the Smiling Pool, but he was so used to narrow escapes that now that it was over he didn't give it another thought.

"There is no time to think of things that have happened; I need all my time to think of things that may happen," says Danny. And when you come to think of it that is a very good way of looking at matters.

Just now Danny was chiefly concerned with getting to shore and so back home on the Green Meadows. The piece of board on which he was sitting made a raft for him. It was caught in the outer edge of the rushes at the upper end of the Smiling Pool. From it to the shore was quite a distance for such a small fellow as Danny Meadow Mouse. However, he felt quite equal to the swim. He wasn't at all afraid of drowning.

Danny looked through the rushes toward the shore. "I'll wait a few minutes," said he to himself. "Just to make sure that the way is clear. It won't take me long to swim that far. I just want to make sure that it is safe. Now that Billy Mink is out of the way I can't think of any one that I need fear. But just the same I'll wait a minute. There is nothing like being sure."

So Danny waited. Inside of a minute he was glad, oh so glad, that he had waited. He was just about to plunge in when he saw a little movement in the water between him and the shore. Danny kept still and watched. Presently he made out a long rather slim shape in the water. It moved slowly towards the raft on which Danny was sitting. It came along side and stopped. It was as long as the board on which Danny sat. Danny almost let out a squeal. He could feel his hair beginning to stand up right along his back. It was a big pickerel, which you know is one kind of fish, and Danny knew that that pickerel would have made no trouble at all of swallowing him whole.

Never before had Danny seen a big pickerel so close at hand

Somehow the thought of being caught by that fish with its great mouth full of sharp teeth was ever so much worse than the thought of being caught by Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote or Billy Mink or Redtail the Hawk. Probably it seemed worse because it was a new thought. Never before had Danny seen a big pickerel so close at hand. Just looking at him gave him little chilly, creepy feelings all over.

"I'll stay right where I am," said Danny to himself. "Yes, sir, I'll stay right where I am. I wouldn't trust myself in the water a half a second with that fellow around. Whatever did I come over here to the Smiling Pool for, anyway? First it was Mr. Blacksnake; then it was Longlegs the Heron; then it was Billy Mink; now it is this big fish. I wonder who'll come along next with an appetite for Meadow Mouse. Why is it that a fellow doesn't know when he is well off? Here I am prisoner on this raft just because I wasn't satisfied to stay at home."

PREMIER PAINLEVE MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR JUSTICE

PARIS, France, Aug. 2.—(A. P.)—A reference to Germans in an address delivered by Premier Painleve here today in inaugurating a war memorial at Suippes seemed to have special significance tonight as it was made on the anniversary that the French press informed the country that the evacuation of the Rhineland was complete.

"We should strive hard to make justice reign between ourselves and those who in the great conflict met us on the other side of the firing line," declared M. Painleve in the course of his speech.

The new war memorial is a lighthouse resembling a church bell tower. It is 150 feet high and located on the elevated plain of Lorette, where thousands men are buried. At the suggestion of the bishop of Arras it bears the inscription: "Nations be United; Man Be Humane."

FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL OUTING AT LAKE

Nearly two hundred members of the Norwich Fish and Game association, with their wives and friends enjoyed the annual association outing at Gardner lake, Sunday. The day was an ideal one for the outing and the attendance was fully as large as usual.

A number of the members took advantage of the weather to get an early start for the lake and fishing was "good in spots," some of the members returning with good catches, some as high as a dozen, while others were forced to return with one or less.

At the lake shore there was plenty of sport for those who did not care to go fishing after the elusive bass. Swimming and boating made up the sport for the day, while a number of members spent the morning in casting and preparing their tackle for the competitive events which were run off during the late afternoon.

The association was favored with the presence of several distinguished sportsmen during the day, among them being Charles E. Wheeler of Stratford, member of the state fish and game commission; F. J. Blackadar, editor and publisher of the Connecticut Sportsman; Robert B. Chappell of New London, county game warden; William S. Hawes of Canterbury, world's champion fly caster and Veteran Fisherman John Irish, whose presence is always a delight to the members of the association.

At noon the annual chowder was served and the cooks surely knew what was wanted by the hungry fishermen. Added with the chowder, peaches, bananas, soda water, watermelon, muskmelons and cigars made up a complete menu, which was thoroughly enjoyed.

In the afternoon the competitive events were run off in front of the pavilion and action was plenty, many of the contests being won by narrow margins when the selection of winners tested with the result of the final throw of the bait or fly and when a black-lush meant a loss of all chances of scoring a win. The judges for the events were Commissioner Wheeler, County Warden Chappell and John B Oat of Norwich.

The first event run off was the bait casting for distance and accuracy. There were seven entrants in each event and results were as follows: Bait casting for distance—L. J. Oat, 110, 143, 132, 140, 95—622; L. E. LaPage, 50, 50, 50, 50, 50—250; F. E. Faulkner, 50, 162, 50, 160, 173—594; F. Lockwood, 132, 112, 137, 131, 143—657; H Barnes, 120, 115, 75, 110, 117—537. George Dolbeare, 95, 50, 92, 50, 75—362; H. Bamber, 90, 65, 87, 95, 87—424.

In this event, F. E. Faulkner with a cast of 172 established a new record for this event in the Norwich Fish and Game association contests. In one cast for trial his bait travelled over 190 feet, a record cast had it been during the throws for count.

Prizes in this event were awarded as follows: Lockwood, 1st, average 131 2-5; Oat, 2nd, average 124 2-5; Faulkner, 3d, average 118 4-5. Prizes were silk lines and minnows.

Results in bait casting for accuracy were as follows: L. J. Oat, 2 ft., 4 ft., 2 ft., hit, 3 ft., total 11 feet; L. E. LaPage, 2 ft., 1 1-2 ft., 2 ft., 2 ft. 6 in., 3 ft., total 9 feet; F. E. Faulkner, 6 ft., 5ft., 4 ft. 6 in., 3 ft., total 18 1-2 feet; F. Lockwood, 6 ft., 4 ft., 5 ft., 1 ft., 3 ft., total 21 feet; H. Barnes, 3 ft. 4 in., 3 ft., 12 ft., 5 ft., total 22 1-2 feet; George Dolbeare, 1 in., 2 ft., 3 ft., 2 ft., 1 in., total 7 1-6 feet; H. Bamber, 8 ft., 2 ft., 11 ft., 15 ft., 3 ft., total 40 feet.

Prizes were awarded as follows: First, Dolbeare, average 1 2-5 feet; second, LaPage, 1 4-5 feet; third, Oat, 2 1-5 feet. Prizes were silk lines and minnows.

There were but two contestants in the fly casting events, George Dolbeare and Lewis J. Oat competing for the prizes, Mr. Dolbeare, veteran fisherman, winning first in both events. Their scores were as follows: Distance—Dolbeare, 60 ft., 60 ft., 65 ft., 60 ft., 65 ft., total 310 feet, average 62 feet; Oat, 55 ft., 52 ft., 60 ft., 55 ft., 65 ft., total 287, average 57 2-5 feet. Accuracy—Dolbeare, 3 ft., hit, 1 ft., 2 in., 4 in., total 4 1-2 feet, average 10 4-5 inches; Oat, 6 in., hit, 6 in., 7 ft., 7 ft., total 15 feet, average 36 inches.

At the conclusion of these events William S. Hawes of Canterbury, grand old man of the rod and line, gave a demonstration of fly casting, sending the line out for 75, 75, 65, 50 and 70 feet, a total of 365 feet, average of 73 feet. For accuracy Mr. Hawes sent his fly as follows: 1 ft., 1 ft., hit, 1 ft., 6 in., total 3 1-2 feet, average 8 2-3 inches.

At the conclusion of senior events there were contests in bait throwing for distance and accuracy for first-year men. In this event William Faulkner, nine years old, gave a beautiful exhibition of bait casting for distance, sending his bait out five times for 508 feet, an average cast of 101 3-5 feet, one of the prettiest exhibitions ever seen at an outing of the local association. The boy took second prize in the event, being 10 feet shy of the first man, C. Whitman, who threw five times for 512 feet, an average of 103 3-5 inches.

The scores of the winners were as follows: Whitman, 95 ft., 101 ft., 101 ft., 113 ft., 108 ft., total 518; Faulkner, 108, 110, 95, 95, 100, total 508 feet.

In bait casting for accuracy, the fight was a close one between C. Whitman, O. Preevy and Joe Dugas, the score finally coming out in the order written with one foot between each man. Scores of the winners were Whitman, 1 ft., 6 in., 12 ft., 6 in., 3 ft., total 17 feet, average 3 2-5 feet; O. Preevy, 1 ft., 4 ft., 1 ft., 8 ft., 4 ft., total 18 feet, average 3 3-5 feet. Dugas, score was 3 ft., 4 ft., 1 ft., 5 ft. 6 ft., total 19 feet, average 3 4-5 feet.

Prize for the best average in all events went to George Dolbeare, a Shakespeare casting reel. The prize cup for the largest small mouth bass caught during the day was not announced as men were still out on the lake at sundown and the winner could not be announced.

The outing proved a great success and the members look forward to the coming year when more members will enter the events and the competition will be even more keen than it was this year.

In spite of the rainfall during July the local city reservoirs, Fairview and Stony Creek, are not in as good a condition this month as regards total water supply, as they were a year ago this month. The total rainfall for July was 4.03 inches.

In 1924 the rainfall for July amounted to only 1.17 inches while in 1923 it totalled 4.06 inches. Stony Creek reservoir Saturday, according to Supervisor William H. Callahan, measured four feet 11 inches from full pond while a year ago it was six feet below full pond, sirview reservoir Saturday morning measured four feet seven inches from full pond while a year ago it measured only three feet from full pond. Fairview of course is the larger watershed and the present amount of water stored there added to that in Stony Brook, which is the smaller watershed, shows that the city's water supply is considerably below that of a year ago, at the same time of the year.

LOCAL BOY WINS CUP IN 100 YD. DASH

Leo Cimikoski, local boy, won the cup for the 100 yard dash at the annual outing of the International Association of Theatrical Stage Employes held Sunday at Flaxon's Farm, Newport, R. I. This is the second time that the local boy has won the event. He won four first prizes and one second in the other athletic events.

The trip was made in Jerry Driscoll's automobile and those attending from Norwich were, besides the two mentioned, Martin Burns, John Healy and Neal Crowley. Chowder was served in the morning and in the afternoon a real Rhode Island clambake was enjoyed. Members of the Association were present from nearly every state east of the Mississippi.

CHILD FATALLY INJURED WHILE CROSSING ROAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 2.—Kenneth Usher, 7-year-old son of Merritt L. and Sarah E. Usher, of South Willington, was run down and fatally injured at 5:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon by a Cadillac car owned and operated by Ralph Collins, of 31 North street, this city. The child was running across the highway about one mile north of his home in Merrill, town of Mansfield, when hit. He was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital there and attended by Dr. Fred M. Smith. Dr. S. B. Converse, of West Willington, the family physician, was also called in but the boy was beyond aid and died of internal injuries at 8:45 o'clock tonight.

The Italian band will render a free public concert in Union square on Friday, August 7th. This concert has been made possible through A. Werman of Werman & Sons, who operates a shoe factory on West Thames street, in the old Rogers wood-working plant. Several members of this band are employed by Mr. Werman and he decided to ask permission from Mayor Milo R. Waters to have the band give a free public concert. The mayor has granted his request.

BROUGHT HERE ON NON-SUPPORT CHARGE

Michael Kozlowski, 35, Polish, arrested in Everett, Mass., for the local police, on a charge of non-support of his family, was brought here Saturday by Officer Charles Smith of the local force. Officer Smith was sent after Kozlowski Saturday morning arriving back in Norwich with his man Saturday evening. Kozlowski will be presented in the city court this (Monday) morning.

NEARLY SCORE MORE DRIVERS FOR CITY COURT

Nearly a score more drivers will be before the city court this (Monday) morning on charges of violating the local traffic rules. The charges against them include parking over the time limit and in the case of some parking machines front to the curb when the traffic regulations call for parking rear to the curb. Following is the list of those who were red tagged by the police over the week end:

Hector Draycott, Rockville; Levias L. Gould, Trading Cove; Benjamin Dubson, New York; Tony Bisconte, L. L. Chapman, Dr. A. J. Sinay, Isadore Hulipke, Michael Houlihan, Walter Udell, Charles Starnad, R. F. D., No. 4, Lisbon, Carl Sharp, Pomfret; Miss Goode, Herbert H. Tift, Glasgo; James E. McCormack, J. E. Brown, Stonington.

A score of drivers were before the the city court Saturday morning on charges of violating the local traffic rules. Presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby; William H. Hall, of Preston City, explained that he had parked his machine near Preston Bros., and it was larged, the charge being that he parked more than the specified distance from the curb near the corner of Main street and Asoe alley. He said he had stopped there to get six gallons of oil and paint. The case was nolled by Judge Libby.

Not guilty was the plea of Herman Wells, of Montville, to a charge of parking in a no-parking zone. He said he stopped in front of the Mohican store and had gone into the store to make a purchase. He was evidently under the impression that a "five minute parking" limit was in force at the spot he had stopped his car. The case against him was dropped.

Susan Church, of Montville, paid $5 for parking ten minutes in a no-parking zone. She explained that she thought it was all right to park there as they saw another car parked just ahead.

Arthur E. Hall, this city, charged with parking more than four feet from the curb, explained that he could find nothing in the city ordinances which state how far from a curb he could park.

City Attorney Lee Row Robbins stated that there was really no rule under the new city ordinance, which went into effect Jan. 1st, last, which specified the distance from the curb, although the state law, stated more than one froot from the curb.

The ordinance under section 6, which was the only section in the book relating to this alleged violation was read by the city attorney which follows:

"Unless in an emergency or to allow another vehicle or pedestrian to cross its path, no vehicle shall be stopped by its operator in any public street or highway of the city except as near the right hand curb as practicable, or in the case of one-way streets, as near the left or right hand curb as practicable."

Accused stated he was as near the curb as he thought practicable.

He had parked his machine on Bath street, just around the corner from Shea's store and had run his front wheels into the curb, while the rear wheels were protruding out. The case against Hall was dismissed.

The cases against Douglas E. Knight, this city and Albert Desmairus, Moosup were also dismissed.

Mrs. Alice Disco, charged with violating the traffic rules, was unable to be in court, but her husband was their to answer to the charge against her. The usual fine was imposed and was paid.

A dozen violators left $5 each at police headquarters to settle their cases, as they did not wish to appeal in court. They were Edmund A. Davignon of Plainfield, Stephen Savage of Norwich Town, Everett riese, Emma E. Falvey, of Preston, Howard Snyder of New Haven, Mrs. David Sussler, John Shepard, New London, David Trachtenberg, Walter Block, Calvin Grey of Ledyard, Michael Falcone, Alexander Benke of Jewett City.

One of those tagged, William Seipert, driver of an American Express wagon, failed to appear in court. It is alleged that Seifert drove his horse and wagon, to the Self Service shoe store on Franklin street, and could not find any place to park near the curb. He parked his horse about a car's length from the side-walk, and took off a large boxof merchandise which he delivered in the store. When he came out, he was given a police tag Judge Libby ordered Seifert summoned to the city court for the Monday morning session.

FARMERS WEEK WILL OPEN TUESDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 3—Adopting the slogan "Something for Everybody Every Day," the annual farmer's week at the Connecticut Agricultural college will get under way Tuesday and last through Friday. As in former years, farmers and others interested in agriculture from this and other states will visit Storrs for the excellent programs that have been arranged.

While farmer's week does not begin officially until Tuesday morning, it will in all intent and purposes begin tomorrow afternoon for the poultrymen of the state. Their activities will begin at one o'clock with a meeting of the Connecticut Baby Chick association, of which A. P. Hall, of Wallingford, and Roy E. Jones, of Storrs, are president and secretary, respectively. This association is affiliated with the International Baby Chick association. At three o'clock, the executive committee of the Connecticut Poultry association will hold its meeting. E. Newton Searles, of Pomfret, is president of this organization. Alfred P. Abbe, of Windham, is secretary, and John Knecht, of New Haven, is treasurer.

The big event of the day however will come at 5:30 p. m., standard time, when the second annual banquet of the Connecticut Poultry association will be held in the college dining hall. W. H. Allen, formerly assistant extension specialist in poultry at the state college, and now poultry specialist for the state of New Jersey, will be the principal speaker. Over 150 state poultrymen are expected to be present for this affair, and word was received here today that Mr. Allen and a group of New Jersey poultrymen are now enroute for Storrs, driving over the road from the Garden state.

COAL PILE TOOK FIRE AT LAUNDRY PLANT

Saturday morning at 7:48 o'clock the fire department was called out by telephone for a soft coal fire at the plant of the Norwich Steam Laundry 193 Franklin street. A pile of coal had taken fire from spontaneous combustion, the coal being located in the boiler room. Six gallons of chemical and a stream of water extinguished the fire in the coal. The only damage resulting was the coal consumed by the fire.

LOCAL MAN'S MOTORCYCLE STOLEN FROM GARAGE

A motorcycle owned by Norman J. Cloutier of this city was stolen from the garage Saturday night and a report of the theft was made to the local police. The local police have requested the New London police to be on the lookout for the missing machine.

POLICE HOLD PLAINFIELD BOY AS RUNAWAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 2.—Vincent Karouskas, 15, residing in Plainfield, was arrested this morning by Patrolman Clarence Martin, the officer having determined that the youth was a runaway. The youth will be sent back to Plainfield by Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, into whose custody the runaway was delivered.

TAFTVILLE MAN FINED FOR LIQUOR VIOLATION

At a session of the Preston town court Friday afternoon Philias Poirier, 38, of Taftville, was presented before William B. Mitchell, J. P., on a charge of violation of the liquor law. He pleaded guilty to transporting liquor and selling and was fined and paid $100 on each count, which with costs, totaled about $220.

FORD SEDAN BURNS ON HANOVER ROAD

A new Ford sedan owned by Albert Charon took fire Friday night on the Hanover road, near Baltic, and was destroyed by the flames. The machine backfired.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Nathan A. Gibbs and daughter, Miss Gibbs, who returned from Cape Cod, last week, had as their guest at their home at Gales Ferry a relative, Mrs. Delia Nash of Newark N. J., who accompanied them home.

SEEKING ENTERTAINMENT FOR EVICTED GERMANS

SCHNEIDEMUHL, Germany, Aug. 2.—(A. P.)—Scenes reminiscent of the World war canteen entertainments will be witnessed in this frontier town in view of the decision of the managers of the refugees' camp today to introduce various forms of entertainment in an attempt to gladden the hearts of the Germans evicted from Poland, who number about 20,000.

COLUMBUS' SALARY WAS $320 A YEAR

From some old record it has been discovered that the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria, the three ships of Columbus, cost $2,500. Adding to this the expense of the voyage, the discovery of America amounted up to the munificent sum of $5,200. Columbus received an annual salary of $320.

If Columbus had waited until today to do his discovering he would have had work locating a bungalow on a 50-foot lot for that figure. If he were a baseball scout he would have to get Queen Isabella to pawn $50,000 worth of her jewels for a new pitcher. Or if he were a movie star astronomer he might have to disgorge several hundred thousand ducats to drag the star down out of the firmament.

Columbus manifested rare business acumen in choosing an axe when discovering was comparatively cheap. Even a first-class North Pole, in good condition would tax the great navigator more than the entire Western Hemisphere combined.

This reminds us that Milton put his "Paradise Lost" on the bargain counter for 23 pounds. Michaelangelo spread his dreams over the vaulted arches of St. Peter's for nothing and it took him years to do it. Emerson had hard work marketing his wares.

Even today you have to give people a bonus to get them to accept and enjoy the best things. The fitting machine was received with guffaws.

Possibly it is a good thing for humanity that Columbus lived when he did. If he had undertaken to discover America now and proves that the earth is round he would have to have a whole battery of lawyers to defend him.

As it was, they brought him home in chains. Statesmen have often shown peculiar wisdom in handling matters of science. Chains seem to be their favorite decoration for the benefactors of the race.

Considering the billions the United States has loaned Europe the past few years, the discovery of America has paid fair dividends.—Los Angeles Times.

IRELAND FACES CRISIS CONCERNING DOCTORS

Achievement of independence by the Irish Free State offers a serious problem to Irish doctors. Ireland has trained thousands of doctors for export. Irishmen practice in Great Britain and in all the British colonies. Their names appear on the British register and that fact calls for them so to practice. If the Free State is to have a separate medical register and the names of qualified Irish practitioners disappear from the British register it is feared that the result will be to cripple the Irish medical schools. Thus far the situation has been met by temporary acts continuing the present system. But a final decision must be reached soon and the medical profession generally is concerned that the accommodation with Great Britain in this matter should be made permanent.

POETRY

JOY ENOUGH.

Into the caverns of the sea
Shall all at last descend.
Who now press forward gallantly
Unrecking of the end.

And no man knoweth what is there,
Nor when his time shall come
To yield his soul and take his share
With all those gone and dumb.

It may be we shall find our kin
Waiting to grasp our hands,
And lead us glorified within,
Over the shining sands;

It may be we with them shall lie,
While heaven and earth abide,
Swaying silent with sightless eyes
There in the sluggish tide.

It matters nothing if today,
Beneath the splendid sun,
We hold to the appointed way,
Doing what must be done.

Reward? What would you? Have not we
The waves beneath us bent?
The winds above us blowing free?

—Barrett Eastman.

NATURE: THE ARTIST.

Such hints as untaught nature yields!
The calm disorder of the sea,
The straggling splendor of the fields,
The wind's gay incivility.
Oh workman with your conscious plan,
Compass and square are little worth;
Copy (nay, only poets can)
The artless masonry of earth.
Go watch the windy spring's carouse.
And mark the winter wonders grow.—
The graceful gracelessness of boughs,
The careless carpentry of snow!

—Frederic Lawrence Knowles.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He—Say, would you like to see something swell?
She—You bet.
He—Just drop these beans in water and watch them.

Business Man (to office boy); I never saw such a stupid boy as you. The boy who was here before you was worth twice as much.
Office Boy: Did he get it?—Scribner's Magazine.

Professor: My dear man, a geologist thinks nothing of a thousand years.
Mac: What? I just loaned one $20 yesterday!—Boy's Life.

Parent; My daughter tells me that you are a church member. To what church do you belong?
Suitor: Why-the-er-Name some of them over.—Frenchtown Mercury.

Prospective Cook (to mistress): An' 'ow many days a' the week will yer be wantin' meals?—London Opinion.

Old lady (hard at hearing)—Well, I think your Bert ought to see a doctor—coming out in spots.
The Niece—I didn't say 'e come out in spots, aunt. I said 'e come out in spats.
Old Lady—Well, anyhow, 'e ought to see a doctor.—Punch.

Stock Prices Move Upward

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—The upward movement in stock prices was resumed in yesterday's brief session of the market although the advance was by means uniform. Despite the absence of many brokers and traders over the week-end, there was a good demand for stocks. Motors, which were in free supply yesterday, received better support, Mack Trucks selling over 2 points above Friday's final quotation, and several others moving up a point or so. Heavy buying of Continental was one of the features of the oil group. Renewed activity was noted in such issues as Phillips Morris, Crucible and General Electric. The closing was firm.

Tobacco issues was a feature of the strength, spurting to 81 compared with Friday's low of 41. American Ice jumped 2 points and Chandler A rose a point to 113. International Telephone was in demand, rising 4 points further, to 129 1-2. St. Louis-San Francisco was a strong spot, gaining 2 3-8, to 92. Southern Railway was elevated 4 to 109, just making up Friday's loss.

The following is a complete record of yesterday's transactions on the New York Exchange:

NEW LONDON STIRRED BY AFFAIR BETWEEN FIREMAN AND MOTHER OF SIX

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 2.—Frank Perry, the driver of fire apparatus for the Ockford Hose company, will listen to arguments in the police court tomorrow that will favor his incarceration in the county jail in this city and the payment of a fine of $100, imposed upon him on the 28th of April last when he was found guilty of having beaten his wife. The execution of judgment was then suspended with the understanding that he should treat his wife as a wife should be treated and that he would keep away from the society of other women. He was also given time to pay his fine and for that purpose he was placed in the custody of Probation Officer Mansfield. Perry has voluntarily paid installments of his fine and the costs of his trial, but three times the probation officer has been obliged to seek him and collect from him. Now he is charged with having failed to comply with the conditions of probation, and has been accused in the most positive way by his wife, by the wife of another and by the daughters, mother and acquaintances as well as by the husband of the woman he is accused of taking on automobile rides and associating with in a manner that is discreditable to him and the woman he consorted with. Mrs. Frank Philopena, wife of Patrolman Philopena, Perry's answer has been, made in court under oath, that the witnesses against him are lying—that he is not guilty, but she does not attempt to prove an alibi to show that the testimony against him is false. He contents himself by saying it is not true. For three hours Saturday, Judge Prince listened to the testimony of the parties who accused Perry and to the stories of Perry and the woman accused as his companion and associate in clandestine meetings. The accusers of Perry point out the time and the places where they saw him and Mrs. Philopena in Perry's automobile and they told of conversation they overheard between Perry and Mrs. Philopena. They declared that they saw him take Mrs. Philopena into an automobile on Hamilton street and Mrs Perry told that she saw her husband in Perry's car with Mrs. Philopena on Willetts avenue extension, a section on the border of the city. She named a woman and a soldier who were his companions. Mr. Philopena's aged mother also accused her daughter-in-law, and in tears told that she saw her enter the car of Philopena near St. Joseph's church as she (the mother) was on the way to worship. She declared that she has kept the information to herself and concealed the knowledge till there was no sense in farther retaining as a secret what she knew. Philopena's daughters, one of them a student at the W. M. I., declared that when she and her mother and sisters were staying in the country for a few weeks, a man she had no doubt was Perry was skulking about the little bungalow at night. The testimony of a woman who maintains a little store on Howard street was to the effect that Mrs. Philopena talked over the telephone there and that what she said was heard by the witness over an extension line from the telephone in the upper part of the building, and that Perry upbraided the woman for not keeping an engagement with him that she had made. She said she was kept from the engagement by a two months' old baby. Then Perry declared that he would get intoxicated and force himself upon her. This woman declared that Mrs. Philopena called Perry at telephone 150, which is the Ockford hosehouse telephone, and Perry admitted that such number was the hosehouse telephone. The accusations of the witnesses were of the most positive sort, while Perry was content with saying that what the witnesses had testified to was false—the testimony of each and all of them. Mr. Philopena is an Italian, but his wife is not of that nationality. Perry is of foreign extraction. Philopena has accused Perry and told him what he might expect if he continued his attentions to Mrs. Philopena, but that warning does not seem to have been effectual in breaking up the relations between the pair. Mr. Philopena is said to have desired to avoid the disgrace for his children that an expose would have brought, but the was finally compelled to yield to the feeling that his annoyance had brought to him. Mrs. Philopena, on the witness stand, admitted that her husband had told her she was no longer his wife, so she said she "didn't know what relation she stood in as a wife and mother." She has five living children and has been the mother of six children. The case has created a great deal of sympathy for Mr. Philopena, so naturally the arguments of the attorneys, Percy J. Hollandersky for the state and Thomas E. Troland for Perry, will be listened to by a crowded court room Monday.

The funeral of John P. Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sullivan was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the mass of requiem being sung by Rev. Alexander Wollscheager. The bearers were Michael Sullivan, John Gannon, Harry Keeney, Edward Condon, Allen McInnis and Mr Bruce. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Frank Wittrock, 78, of 221 Howard street, died at Lawrence hospital Saturday morning, where he had been under treatment but a short time. He is survived by his wife. Mr. Wittrock was employed at the plant of the D. E. Whiton Machine company for many years.

Mrs. Gideon Huntley, of Jordan; Master Eugene Brunceloni, 75 Smith street; Charles Bagley, Camp, Trumbull, Niantic, and Miss Alice Hannan, 723 George street, New Haven, who was seriously injured last July 4th by being thrown from an automobile in Waterford, Edward O'Meara, 20 Park road, West Hartford, found in a semi-conscious condition near Horse Pond, Chesterfield, several days ago by a Hartford bus driver and partially intoxicated, were patients dismissed at Lawrence-Memorial hospital Saturday. The state police have been working on the theory that O'Meara was assaulted, but they have abandoned that idea.

At a meeting of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, held this afternoon in Moose hall, Main street, it was decided to hold a picnic at Red Top Sept. 6th.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of O. P. Robinson, 284 Ocean avenue, to be suspended.

Hugh McPartland, of Perry street, a well known master plumber, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Lawrence hospital Saturday morning. At the institution today it was stated that Mr. Partland's condition was favorable toward early recovery.

Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy is having her vacation, the greater part of which time she will spend in New York, Patrolman George Labue is another member of the police department who is on vacation, having started on his respite today.

Harry Neilan, of Fishers Island, was found down and unable to regain his feet early this morning on Douglass street, Patrolman Howard Sloan and William Manice took charge of the man and after being examined by a physician at the police station he was taken to Lawrence hospital, where it was ascertained that he had a fractured bone.

The automobile owned and driven by Albert Paquette, 684 Bank street, and a machine owned and driven by Jack Piscatella, 33 Truman street, were in collision late this afternoon on Jefferson avenue, corner of West Colt street. Both cars were damaged.

Two rear windows of the Turner Flower shop, 35 Main street, were found open, early this morning by Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey. The place was entered a few nights ago by a thief, but no plunder was obtained because the crook was not successful in opening the safe, which was attacked with an axe.

Guy V. Putnam, of Riverview avenue, reported to the police Saturday night that while his automobile was parked in the rear of 70 Bank street, some thief stole a motor meter.

Miss Edna Bamber, of 80 Allen street, Groton, reported to the police late Saturday afternoon that while walking between State and Bank street, on State and the Groton ferry house or between the ferry house and her residence, she lost her purse containing $55.50, of which amount $56 was in a pay envelope.

An automobile, owned and driven by Angelo Annibalini, 76 Shaw street, in turning from Montauk avenue into School street last night collided with a machine owned by P. E. Hall, 76 Pleasant street, Groton, that was parked beside the curb on the latter street. Both cars were damaged slightly.

SPEEDING AUTO DRIVER LEAVES VICTIM LYING ON BALTIC STREET

Mrs. Cecelia Alix, about 30, of 139 Main street, Baltic, was knocked down near her home about 10:15 o'clock, Saturday night, by a speeding automobile which failed to stop, leaving the victim, badly injured and lying in the road. No trace of the heartless driver had been found up to Sunday night.

Mrs. Alix had been to St. Mary's church, Baltic, and was on her way home when hit and knocked down. After leaving the church she talked for a few minutes with friends, and then started home. While crossing Main street, the machine, a closed car, headed towards Norwich, came along at a good rate of speed, knocking her down. The driver failed to stop and it is said, put out the lights on the machine and sped away, leaving the woman in the road.

Only one or two people saw the machine as it hit the woman but they were unable to get the number and offer a vague description of the car. Oliver John McGuire, who was in another section of the village, was notified and immediately started an investigation. All the officer could learn of the affair was that the machine was either an Essex coach or an Oakland closed car and that it was headed towards Norwich.

The officer immediately notified the Norwich police station to be on the lookout for the machine and the patrol wagon was sent out to meet the machine. No trace of the machine was found and it is thought probable that the driver turned off the main road and got away.

Dr. James G. Burr, of Baltic, was summoned to attend the injured woman and the W. W. Backus hospital ambulance hospital was called. Mrs. Alix was brought to the Backus hospital where she is a patient. She is suffering from bad lacerations on the right side and is considerably bruised. It was at first thought she might be suffering from broken bones but an X-ray examination Sunday failed to show any fractures.

GOOD AUDIENCE AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

The parlors of the local Y. M. C. A. were filled Sunday afternoon at the 4 o'clock service. The opening exercises consisted of hymns, scripture reading and prayer. Interesting moving pictures were shown, including "Niagara in Summer and Winter," "Scenes in Florida" and "In the Shadows of the Pyramids," all of which were interesting and impressive. Between the reels, General Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and spoke in part as follows:

"I never see Niagara Falls actually or in picture without thinking of 'power' and that for many hundreds and thousands of years this tremendous power was running to waste, unused and unharnessed, until one day certain men began to study means of making use of this great waste, and it would be surprising today if we knew the great blessing this hitherto unused power has become to countless thousands for hundreds of miles. It moves machinery of many kinds, furnishes power and light for probably millions of people. So in human life, there are powers within every man and woman lying dormant, undreamed of possibilities in every life, which if utilized would become very useful in the world.

"Man alone amounts to little, comparatively speaking, but plus God he can do wonders. No one in this room but has powers within him or her that, touched by the Almighty would become mighty in his influence upon others. We could mention several had we the time, who have yielded to the influence of the great God, and have become potent influences in their day and generation. William Jennings Bryan was one of these, and his life has left a blessed benediction behind him, and all because he permitted God to develop his unused powers. Let us all yield to this same God and thereby become blessings to those about us."

Emery H. Davis operated the moving picture machine.

STORRS EGG PRODUCTION INCREASED LAST WEEK

The hen business like all others has its vagaries. The unexpected up and downs of egg production in the Storrs contest has kept the management guessing. By all the laws of average the number of eggs laid should diminish week by week from the peak of production in May until the end of the contest in October. Last week was the fifth time in the last two months that the production has gone up instead of down as was reasonably expected. The total production for the thirty-ninth week was 4,938 or a yield of fifty per cent. This is an increase of twenty-eight eggs over the preceeding week. Hansen's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., headed the list with a score of 58 eggs. Hilltop Farm's pen of Leghorns from Suffield, Conn., was second high pen with a total of 54 eggs. Another pen of the same breed owned by Ruehle's Sunnyside Farm at Pleasant Valley, N. Y., Merrit M. Clark's pen of Barred Rocks from Brookfield Center, Conn., and two pens of Leghorns entered by J. C. Patton from Charlotte, N. C., and Meadowedge Farm at Sterling Jct., Mass., all tied for fourth place with 52 eggs each.

The American Poultry association, with headquarters at Fort Wayne, Ind., has just given new impetus to laying competitions in America. The association has announced its offer of $100 sweepstake cup to the pen that lays the largest number of eggs. It offers also a $50 sweepstake cup to the individual hen that lays the largest number of eggs at any laying trial in this country. In addition to the grand sweepstake prizes a handsome silver cup is offered for the high hen in each competition. The association goes still further and proposes to issue certificates for hens that lay 200 eggs or better. A special egg laying contest committee has been appointed to interpret the rules and award these prizes when the returns are in from all the laying trials now in progress.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

NORWICH PASTOR WILL SPEAK AT C. E. SCHOOL

The Connecticut Christian Endeavor union is to hold its first summer school in Storrs the week of August 10th to 17th, inclusive. While the school will not be a large one this year from the standpoint of registration, the program to be carried out is an intensive one, and the delegates will be sent back to their local churches better fitted for the carrying on of young people's work there.

The school opens on Monday night and following supper will come a vesper service and the introduction of the faculty, which, in turn, will be followed by a social time. The routine program begins Tuesday and runs through Saturday. Rising bell sounds each morning at 6:30; breakfast at 7:00, and a period of worship at 7:45. The first class period is at 8:15, which is a study of "The Life of Christ," and will be conducted by Rev. C. Donald Plomer, pastor of the Congregational church, Wilton, Maine. Mr. Plomer is a young man, born and educated in northern India, receiving degrees later in Drew Theological Seminary and Columbia University in this country, and well able to take this course. At 9:10 the school will divide into two parts for the mission study classes, one on "High Adventure," under Miss Truth Eells, Hartford, and the other on "Peasant Pioneers," under Rev. John S. Marsh, Oxford. Classes in methods will be held at 10:10 and the instructors in this include Miss Eells, Mr. Marsh, J. William Mason, educational director, Central Baptist church, Hartford; Executive Secretary Herbert W. Hicks, and others.

"An assembly period is to be held at 11:10, where pastors from different parts of the state will bring messages. These include Rev. James F. English, Putnam; Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, Norwich; Rev. Thomas H. Campbell, Beacon Falls, and Dr. John W. Flight, Winsted. Afternoons will be devoted to recreation, and the evening platform meetings will include addresses by Dr. D. Brewer Eddy, Boston, Dr. Herbert Judson White, Hartford, a pageant by the delegates themselves and the final week night —Saturday—will be stunt night. Reservations for accommodations for the week, or the week end should be made to Connecticut C. E. Union, 43 Farmington Ave., Hartford, Conn.

EXPRESSES GRATITUDE TO NORWICH CONTRACTOR

The following letter is an extract from the "Middletown Press" in which an East Hampton resident expresses his gratitude to Frederick D. Miller, state road and bridge contractor of this city:

Editor: As my place on the new Cobalt-E. Hampton road has been the subject of so much discussion, namely the destruction of a row of large maple trees and two driveways and now that the shovel has done its work and gone merrily on its way, with its jolly crew, I would like to publicly thank the state surveyors who work under orders from Commissioner Macdonald whose wisdom would not tolerate wilful destruction of such trees, could it be avoided, and it has been, and add a few words for Contractor Miller's benefit. The work he is doing in keeping road open in such good shape for travel while under construction is highly appreciated and repeatedly spoken of by many. It is seldom a contractor has such efficient overseers as he has and as every one says a fine gang of clean cut fellows, from the superintendent down to the water boy. He deserves and it is hoped he receives more of the state's road work.

RAY YOUNGS

Mr. Miller is at present constructing a stretch of concrete road between East Hampton and Middletown, the cost of which will exceed $200,000.

To Close Tractor School

Decision to close the state truck and tractor school at Portland, believed to be the first institution of its kind in the country, was reached at a conference between State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald and Commissioner of Education A. B. Meredith. The school, which has been operated jointly by the state board of education and the highway department for the past year and a half, will be shut down within the next 30 days. A decrease in the enrollment during the past few months led to the action, it was announced.

NAVY AND MARINE MEMORIAL CAMPAIGN IN CONNECTICUT

The Navy and Marine Memorial campaign in Connecticut will be officially launched Tuesday at a luncheon to be given to prominent citizens of the state by Seth Low Pierrepont, state chairman for the Memorial, at the Hartford club in Hartford. Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, chairman of the national directors of the Memorial, and Governor Trumbull, the honorary Connecticut chairman, will be the principal speakers at the luncheon.

The campaign which Mr. Pierrepont is officially opening has for its purpose the raising of Connecticut's $17,000 quota toward the erecting of a national monument in Washington commemorating the naval and maritime services and dedicated to all Americans lost at sea. Of this quota, $1,815 has already been raised and Mr. Pierrepont hopes to successfully close his campaign by September 30th.

The Memorial is to be erected on a site in Washington unanimously donated by congress and will cost $500,000 which is being raised nationally by subscription. Of this amount one-fourth has already been contributed. Work on the model of the Memorial has been started at the national headquarters of the movement in New York city. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur is the national honorary chairman of the Memorial.

Besides Governor Trumbull and Mr. Pierrepont, the Connecticut committee to date is comprised of: T. M. Shock, lieut. commander, U. S. N., secretary; Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Cowles, of Farmington, honorary chairman of the women's committee; Osborne A. Day, of New Haven chairman of the banker's committee; Frederick J. Kingsbury, of New Haven and Bridgeport, chairman of the manufacturer's committee; Henry M. Sartenberg, of New Haven, chairman of the merchants' committee; Col. Charles W. Eurpee, of Hartford, chairman of the Hartford county committee; Dr. Raynham Townshend, of New Haven, chairman of the New Haven county committee.

In accepting the state chairmanship a few days ago, Mr. Pierrepont said. "This is a unique Memorial, inspired by an idea of great beauty which the architect and the sculptor are exemplifying in a most unusual, symbolic and extraordinarily artistic design. Except for the monuments to unknown soldiers, no memorial that I can think of makes a more romantic appeal than this national tribute to all who have served us on the sea, in peace as well as in war, since the beginning of our history and to all who have lost their lives at sea. This touches all of us in this great land which owes so much to those who have developed and carried on our merchant shipping and to the generations of gallant naval officers and men who have defended us at sea.

"Especially must it appeal to us here in New England, the cradle of our maritime history which the ancestors of many living today throughout the country did so much to mould. . . . When erected this monument will stand before the world as one more proof that we of the United States are not interested only in material things, but that we are imbued with lofty ideals and are moved by noble sentiments."

Recent Connecticut contributions to the Memorial received at the Hanover Trust company in New York, the national depository of funds, are: $100 G. M. Macauley; $100, Seth Low Pierrepont; $25, L. A. Fleischmann; $25, Alice Kingsbury; $10, Theodore S. Woolsey, Jr.; $5, the Rt. Rev. E. C. Acheson; $5, Robert Spencer; $2, Nathan Slow; $2, E. S. Anderson; $1, William H. Crawford.

WIFE OF CLIFFORD HENDRIX AGAIN SUES, ASKING $250,000

Saturday's New York Times had the following:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 31—Mrs. Ida May Hendrix, wife of Clifford Hendrix of New York, has filed suit for $250,000 separate maintenance in the San Francisco Supreme Court. She charges her husband with cruelty and alleges that he had struck and cursed her on numerous occasions in their married life.

The suit discloses that the "second honeymoon" of the young couple at Lake Tahoe, which followed the filing of a divorce action by Hendrix in New York last March, had come to an abrupt end, with the causes veiled in mystery.

The complaint sets forth that Mrs. Hendrix separated from her husband in California on July 17, 1925, shortly after they had gone on a trip to the Grand Canyon and on a hunting expedition. They were married March 27, 1920, at Kenmore, N. Y., and have a 4-year-old daughter, Jean.

That her husband "hated her" long before he filed his suit for divorce on March 26 of this year is set forth in Mrs. Hendrix's complaint. She gives no cause why her husband should hate her.

Hendrix, who is under 30, recently inherited a fortune from his father. In his suit for divorce Hendrix named Joe Secakuku, a Hopi Indian guide and movie "sheik," as co-respondent, together with two other men, one N. G. Smith and a man named Parsons.

In 1924 the Hendrixs took a trip to the Grand Canyon and then went to Los Angeles, where Hendrix has a residence. This trip was followed by a hunting expedition, during which Hendrix's divorce suit alleged, his wife was involved in misconduct with the guide.

Harry C. Miller of Miller & Warner, attorneys, of 2 Rector street, New York, who represented Mr. Hendrix in the Nassau County divorce action, said last night that he was not surprised at the suit filed in San Francisco by Mrs. Hendrix, saying that it had been intimated that such a course would be followed.

The Nassau County divorce action is still pending. He said that he knew nothing of any reconciliation between the pair after the suit had been filed. He said that Mrs. Hendrix had failed to file an answer to the divorce action within the period allotted by law. This however, will not prevent her from contesting the suit, he pointed out.

The suit was filed at Mineola, L. I., March 28.

Clifford Hendrix is the only child of the late Joseph C. Hendrix and Mary Alice Rathbone. His mother was born at East Great Plain, Norwich. His father was prominent in Brooklyn, N. Y., first as a brilliant newspaper man later, in politics, was Democratic candidate for Mayor of Brooklyn, and postmaster of that city at the time of his death. He was an influential member of the Board of Education in Brooklyn. A number of Norwich residents came to know Mr. Hendrix during his visits to his brother-in-law, the late John F. Rathbone, of East Great Plain.

Mrs. Hendrix was graduated from Norwich Free Academy, with the class of '87.

Clifford Hendrix has for several years been a modern "cut up," who has figured in a number of New York sensations.

NEW HIGHWAY LAWS OF CONNECTICUT

New highway laws of Connecticut, as revised by the legislature of 1925, have been compiled in pamphlet form by the state highway department for general distribution throughout the state.

The department proposes to send copies of the booklet to officials of every town in the state, as well as to divisional offices of the department as there are a number of new statutes affecting relations of towns to the state in the matter of state aid roads, financial arrangements for construction of roads and bridges, and the matter of illegal advertising signs along the highway rights of way.

Codification of all the state statutes concerning highways by the recent session of the legislature resulted in the repeal of several sections which were revised and re-classified. These are listed in the booklet.

A feature of the revised laws is the provision authorizing the highway commissioner to re-establish the boundaries of any state aid or trunk line system when it is found that the original boundary lines have become lost or are uncertain, in several cases it has been found that the state's rights of way on certain highways had become uncertain since the road was originally mapped out, and the new enactment is designed to give the state power to rectify errors of this nature by condemnation. Hereafter the boundary lines will be marked by a uniform and distinctive type of marker.

CHURCH "HOUSE OF PRAYER," FR. GALVIN QUOTES GOSPEL

The ecclesiastical year is speeding on and yesterday was the ninth Sunday after Pentecost. In the unity which prevails throughout the Roman Catholic church, the epistle read in every mass celebrated in all the world was, I Corinthians 10 6-12, "Brethren, let us not covet evil things etc." while the gospel was Luke 19, 41-47. This gospel narrates the incident of Christ's weeping over the thoughtless city of Jerusalem, also His driving from the Temple those who bought and sold therein, with the rebuke, "My house is a house of prayer, but you have made it a den of thieves."

Preaching at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. Myles P. Galvin chose for his text this first phrase. "My house is a house of prayer." If the Saviour declared this of the ancient Temple, where was the spiritual house of God, how much more must if offend Him to see frivolity and worldliness in any Catholic church, which is the dwelling-place of Christ personally, bodily.

Every Cathalic knows and believes that Christ, by His own assertion, is really and truly present in the consecrated Sacrament of the altar. Hence to enter any Catholic church is to enter the Divine Presence—the holiest of holy places. In fact, it is equivalent to entering Heaven, for is not Our Lord Himself there? Yet some thoughtless persons, even with this faith come into church as into a theatre, a place to be entertained, amused to look about, to talk, or otherwise act irreverently.

The indignation of the Redeemer in the ancient Temple was one of the few instances recorded when the gentle Savior, universally so patient with human weaknesses and faults, is recorded as having been genuinely angry, taking the whip, "casting out them that sold therein and them that bought." The preacher expressed the hope that no one among his hearers would add to the faults upon his conscience the regretful conviction that, as regards his own conduct in the holy church, the patient Christ, veiled in the sacrament of the tabernacle, must feel an impulse to leave His earthly dwelling, coming to the sanctuary railing to utter the rebuke to the thoughtless, or indifferent, the distracted, or irreverent, "My friends, My house is a house of prayer."

Father Galvin assisted Rev. John J. Reilly who read the low mass, in giving holy communion. Among those at the altar railing were members of the Immaculate Conception sodality.

At the first mass Sunday, at 7:30, the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May gave holy communion to a large number, including the Children of Mary society.

ACCIDENTS OCCUR ON STRAIGHT-AWAY STRETCHES

More motor vehicle accidents happen in Connecticut on straight highways, where the sight line is unobstructed, than on hills or curves or at intersections, it has been confound by a new analysis of last year's casualties which has been completed by the state motor vehicle department. Moreover, in the great majority of cases it is when the road surface is in its safest condition that accidents happen.

Out of 20,781 motor vehicle accidents officially reported during 1924, 10,666 occurred on straight-away stretches where the drivers of the colliding cars had a clear view of the objects with which they collided. Intersecting roads were the scenes of 7,395 of the accidents, most of them being due to the fact that one or both vehicles, in cases of collisions between two cars, approached the intersections at speeds too great to be checked upon perceiving the approach of the second car. There were 3,566 reports of failure to grant the right of way at street crossings.

There were 940 accidents on curves, frequently caused by drivers of two vehicles going in opposite directions "hugging" the "inside" of the bend in the road to help them maintain high speed. The record shows 1,167 cases of driving on wrong side of road which resulted in accidents, and 177 of cutting corners and 26 of passing on curves with similar results. In 1,610 cases, the automobiles involved in accidents were going down hill at the time of the accidents, and 770 were ascending hills which interrupted the sight line when accidents occurred.

Among the information required by the department in all reports of accidents, is a statement as to the condition of the road surface at the scene. Approximately 15,000 of the 20,781 accidents occurred on road surface that was reported by those involved and other witnesses, as "good." In 693 accidents, the road surface was rough, in 3,196 it was wet, in 488 it was covered by snow, in 1,018 ice made it slippery, in 186 it was sandy and 51, muddy.

Artists snifted at this sentimentality, but the widow's might prevailed and the birds flutter about the grim old figure and splash themselves happily on his head.

MAGNATE SENDS LETTER TO MINE WORKERS' PRESIDENT

Samuel D. Warriner Informs John L. Lewis That the Mine Owners' Sub-Committee Meeting With the Miners is Fully Authorized to Speak For the Industry and That Its Personnel Cannot Be Changed—Mr. Warriner Offers to Arbitrate All Matters Not Agreed Upon When the Present Contract Expires August 31.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3—(AP)—Samuel D. Warriner, one of the leaders of the anthracite coal operators, in a letter to John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, made public tonight, said that the membership of the mine owners sub-committee meeting with the miners, is fully authorized to speak for the industry and its personnel cannot be changed.

The letter is in reply to one written last week in which Mr. Lewis insisted that Mr. Warriner and W. J. Richards, president of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron corporation, actively participate in the coal negotiations at Atlantic City. Mr. Lewis referred to the present make-up of the operators sub-committee as a "jury of supernumeraries."

Mr. Warriner in his reply repeated his offer of the operators to agree to suspension when the present wage contract expires August 31, and to arbitrate matters not agreed to at that time.

Mr. Warriner further said that if the miners mean to break off negotiations if the personnel of the committee is not changed, Mr. Lewis is assuming a grave responsibility."

"You question the authority of our committee and the experience of its members," said Mr. Warriner's letter. "Let me assure you at once that this committee is fully authorized to represent and speak for the anthracite industry.

"As to the other matters contained in your letter: You again make the entirely unjustified assertion that the anthracite operators are not desirous of concluding an agreement and of effecting a cessation of operation on September 1st." Permit me to remind you that I proposed to you on July 9th, at the joint conference, that we meet and there agree that there should be no suspension. Surely you have not forgotten this proposal.

"In view of the fact that you continue to ignore the proposition which I then made that the mines should continue at work, let me take this opportunity to repeat and reaffirm it. I would therefore suggest that, as the first act of your joint meeting tomorrow, you agree with our committee.

"2—That, regardless of the course the negotiations may take, there shall be no suspension of anthracite production.

"3—That as to any matters upon which we are unable to agree prior to September 1st, such matters shall be referred for determination to a board of imperial persons."

"You speak of the opinion of the public and the press in my opinion. What the public most resents—and resents justly—is the 'strike habit' in our industry. It is within your power—and entirely beyond our power—to end this habit by the means repeatedly recommended to you by us.

"You further say that in the event that Mr. Richards and I should enter the conference it 'should expedite the ascertainment of the definite position of the operators,' and add that 'if it should then develop that the lesser anthracite executives have from time to time correctly set forth the position of the anthracite operators it would the more quickly enable the mine workers' representatives to effectuate a discontinuance of the farce.'

"May I say in reply that the members of our committee are fully able to state correctly the 'definite position' of the anthracite operators and to support adequately the statements made by me in the opening joint conference at Atlantic City. So far our representatives have been listening to the presentation of your case. When that is completed, they will fully and promptly state the position of the anthracite operators, giving due weight to the arguments which you have made.

"I cannot bring myself to believe that the meaning of the sentences I have just quoted is that, unless you are allowed to dictate the choice of our representatives and unless our representatives take at the outset a position agreeable to you all negotiations will be discontinued, if that is your meaning, you are assuming a grave responsibility."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE HEARS CHEERFUL REPORTS

PRESCOTT, Mass., Aug. 3—(AP)—Conditions in the middle west were studied today by President Coolidge in a conference with John T. Adams of Iowa, former Republican national committee chairman, who came to the White Court to be a house guest for several days at the invitation of the executive.

Mr. Adams was optimistic over the outlook in his section, particularly with reference to agricultural conditions. The situation is approaching normalcy, he said.

"The west is now agriculturally and financially conservative," he said. "It is no longer the battleground between protectionism and conservatism. President Coolidge is more popular today than at the time of his election."

Mr. Adams made no attempt to present the needs of farmers along legislative lines. Other spokesmen for his section, however, have suggested the need for co-operative marketing measures.

Today was the second anniversary of Mr. Coolidge taking the oath of office and his thoughts turned again to his father's home where he was administered the oath by Col. John Coolidge after the death of President Harding. He is planning to return to the executive office for a brief visit. Reports from his father, whose recent illness caused the President and Mrs. Coolidge to make a hurried trip to Plymouth indicate steady improvement.

BLOW OVER HEAD WITH COFFEE POT CAUSED DEATH

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A blow over the head with a coffee pot in the hands of Mrs. Lulu Rome, of Hanover street, was the approximate cause of the death of Mrs. Sadie Simington, of Meriden, hence the woman is held criminally responsible for the woman's death in a finding handed down today by Coroner Eli Mix.

The coroner finds that Mrs. Simington visited friends in a rooming house in Meriden on July 7. Mrs. Rome was also at the place and during an argument between the two women, Mrs. Rome, according to the coroner's findings, inflicted a severe blow on Mrs. Simington's head with a coffee pot. The latter was removed to Meriden hospital where she died July 25, septic infection, brought on by the blow, was the cause of death, the coroner finds.

Immediately following the assault Mrs. Rome was given a hearing in Meriden city court and fined. When Mrs. Simington's condition became serious the coroner had Mrs. Rome locked up in the county jail without bail.

PLANS OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—Labor has turned to the movies to get its story across.

The American Federation of Labor today announced the signing of a contract for a picture showing "the high spots in the evolution of labor from slavery thousands of years ago to the present time." Paid officials of state labor federations will lecture in cities where the film is shown.

The federation today in a statement also drew to the attention of affiliated unions the plan of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes to include group insurance, pension and other welfare measures in their contracts with employes in the future. The statement explained that the association hoped that by thus placing the burden of such benefits on the industry, "these schemes will be wiped out" and higher wages obtained for its members to create their own benefit systems.

RADIOCASTING OF THE HUMAN VOICE A SUCCESS

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Radiocasting the human voice from the MacMillan Arctic-Navy expedition has proved so successful that members of the exploration party expect radiocasting to thousands of home receivers will be possible within a few weeks.

That was the statement of Lieutenant Commander E. F. McDonald, Jr., in a radio communication from Etah, Greenland, announcing that their radiocasting of music and voice on Saturday night had been reported heard by amateur operators in London, England, and in Grand Forks, N. D.

The expedition now is within 12 degrees of the North Pole with 24 hours of daylight. At 10 o'clock eastern standard time, Wednesday night, it is planned to send the voice of Eskimos over the radiophone back to civilization. Another concert, such as was heard in Chicago as well as Grand Forks and London will be put on, it was announced by H. H. Roemer, of the Zenith Radio corporation, of which McDonald is the head.

FRICTION OVER THE N. H. ROAD COMMUTATION RATE

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—It was indicated today when officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad met to decide what action will be taken on Supreme Court Justice Tompkins' order in the commutation rate fight that the railroad will not issue rebate slips to commuters.

On action brought by representatives of New York state commuters who would have to pay a 40 per cent. increase under the recent ruling of the New York state public service commission, Justice Tompkins said unless the railroad issued rebate slips to commuters, he would grant a temporary injunction against the increase.

If the railroad refuses to issue the rebate slips and the temporary injunction is put into effect pending rehearing of the case by the public service commission, the commuters' organizations who are resisting the fare raise will have to post a $32,000 bond to protect the railroad against possible losses.

NOTES OF WARNING FOUND WITH BODY OF MISS STALLMAN

MATTOON, Ills., Aug. —(A. P.)—Notes of warning and insinuation found in the cistern with the body of Miss Anna Stallman Saturday on the farm of her sister, Mrs. Thomas Seaman, near here, shed no new light on the mystery surrounding the death of the 48-year old spinster.

Some of the notes were made public today by F. S. Schilling, county coroner. On an unfolded envelope printed roughly with a lead pencil was the following message:

"Look under your front door for the check. So sorry we made a goat of you. When R. saw you crying, he was sorry too. You happened to be the goat. The day boss thrashed so we picked you again. We are even with Boss Liley now but think we got at it wrong. We thought we could get some money. Sorry we scared you so much, we expect it; but we are now on our way to Chicago. Four men and two women. Sorry we made a simp out of you. Since no reward has been offered the first time, not this time by any of your rich people." There was no signature and the last five words of an incomplete sentence were unintelligible. This note is believed to refer to written demands for money contained in several notes received by Miss Stallman. These missives have not been made public.

Another note read: "If you don't like the school flag, say so to J. W. B. The K K's saw you at the end of Boss Wheatfield. Sis stuff." This note was unsigned. The "J. W. B." referred to in the note is believed to be one of the trustees of the district school near the Seaman home. A third note read:

"You are common as dirt and a regular snob. Impudent when you stop in Humboldt, your is a nuisance and keep him where he belongs."

The last note made public today read as follows:

"We felt sorry when we saw you cry, and felt we made a mistake to make a goat of you. We are on our way to Chicago and want to say three times someone has followed your buggy out of the cornfield."

This note, written on a check of the First National Bank of Humboldt was signed "John, Fred and Pete and two girls."

A large piece of cardboard which was found in Mrs. Seaman's home after an attack on Miss Stallman last Friady read:

"We got your sister scared green. Read your letter."

This apparently referred to a letter previously sent to Mrs. Seaman. A 26 page letter addressed to Miss Stallman and signed "by seven members of the K. K. K." has not been completely deciphered and will not be made public until that is completed. Pending the return of Mr. and Mrs. Seaman from Cincinnati where they took the body of Miss Stallman for burial, Coroner Schilling's investigation will be directed toward deciphering of the other letters.

An inquest will be called near the end of the week, Charles Fletcher county attorney entered into the investigation today.

Miss Stallman did not drown and was dead before her body was put in the well, the coroner declared. There were no marks of violence on the body. The vital organs were removed and will be sent to Chicago or Urbana for analysis.

Tension Between Greece and Bulgaria

Reported to Have Been C[aused] ed by the Assassinat[ion] Greek Citizens in [Bul]garia.

GENEVA, Aug. 3.—The present tension between Greece and Bulgaria has been caused by the assassination of Greek citizens in Bulgaria, declared Vassili Dendramis, the Greek delegate to the League of Nations tonight, speaking by telephone from Berne.

M. Dendramis explained that under a voluntary agreement between Bulgaria and Greece for the exchange of population, under the supervision of two representatives of the League of Nations, about 6,000 Greek residents in Bulgaria will leave the country by October 15. He said that in Greece the recent murders were interpreted as terrorists' acts calculated to create panic and force the Greeks to leave Bulgaria before the assigned date, the object being the confiscation of their property.

Dendrumis stated that if the reply to the note sent from Athens to Sofia was not satisfactory Greece would appeal to the League of Nations.

League of Nations officials said tonight they had received no information concerning the reported tension between Greece and Bulgaria.

GREECE DRAFTING ULTIMATUM TO THE BULGARIAN GOV'T

PARIS, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Although dispatches from Athens today reported the movement of Greek troops for the Greek-Bulgarian frontier, and the drafting of an ultimatum to the Bulgarian government, officials of the Greek and Bulgarian legations here tonight ridiculed reports of grave tension between the two Balkan countries.

Frontier incidents similar to the present one frequently occur between Balkan countries, diplomatic officials pointed out, and the exchange of sharply-phrased notes is common. They say they would be astonished if any conflict grose out of the assassination recently of M. Nicolaides, a Greek citizen at Stanimaka, Bulgaria. There is no other cause for friction between the two countries, legation officials said.

A spokesman for the Greek legation who has just arrived from Athens, denying that Greece nourishes hostile designs against Bulgaria, said Greece wished to promote in every way a complete entente in the Balkans with a general security pact to which Bulgaria would be admitted. He admitted that some frontier posts had been reinforced in order to support the Greek demand for indemnity for the Nicolaides murder, but anticipated no serious consequences.

JURY TO PASS UPON MENTAL CONDITION OF RUSSELL SCOTT

CHICAGO, Aug. 3—AP)—Russell T. Scott, convicted murderer of Joseph Maurer, and twice snatched from the gallows, had a new day in court today.

A jury was selected to pass upon his mental condition. Opening statements were made by the defense and prosecution and tomorrow an imposing array of alienists will bring the presentation of reports and conclusions from which 12 men will shape his fate.

Scott was pale, reflective and calm. "We will show through reputable alienists who have examined this man within the last week that he suffers delusions of persecution," W. S. Stewart, defense attorney, said in his opening statement.

When he attempted to allude to Scott's numerous assertions of innocence, he was abruptly interrupted by Judge David, who ruled pointedly that guilt or innocence was not even a remote issue in the sanity proceeding.

"We'll tell you about this man's life in the county jail the last 16 months," Stewart said, about his career and his ideas and let you be the judge."

The statement required thirty minutes. It was a sketch of Scott's life, from fifth grade schoolboy to actor, to advertising man, bond salesman, brokerage house manager, financier and exponent of "the Scott idea to revolutionize the sale of stocks and bonds."

The opening statement of the prosecution required fifteen minutes, Assistant State's Attorney W. A. Rittenhouse stressed the contention that in all previous efforts to save Scott, no mention had been made of his alleged insanity.

HARTFORD, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Philip T. Platt, commissioner of agriculture, announced today that he has appointed William Lutto, of Willimantic, Elliot H. Platt, of Newtown, and Hull Bartram, of Ridgefield, as market investigators. The department has also secured the services of Jack Goulton, of the Poli theatres' staff as designer for the exhibit which the department will conduct at the Connecticut state fair at Charter Oak park. The American commission is to meet Thursday, when the members, many of whom have been absent from Washington for some time, will be advised as to the present situation with respect to the negotiations with the Belgians.

The Belgian commission is expected to remain in New York for several days before coming here to meet formally with the American commissioners.

FRENCH WOMAN TO MAKE CHANNEL SWIM TODAY

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 3—(AP)—A French woman tomorrow morning is to make her first bid for fame in this year's competition by members of the feminine sex to swim the English Channel. Miss Lillian Harrison, the Argentine girl, already has failed, and Gertrude Ederle, the American, is awaiting a quiet sea.

The French woman, Mlle. Jane Sion, purposes to take the water at 7:15 o'clock tomorrow morning at Cape Gris-Nez and try to reach Dover cliffs, some 22 miles distant.

Miss Ederle, acting on the advice of her trainer, will postpone her attempt until the end of the week or the beginning of next week owing to tidal conditions. Miss Harrison, recuperating from her trying effort in the "nautical marathon," down the River Seine yesterday, in which she finished fourth, may not be ready for another week.

Miss Ederle's powerful combination crawl and trudgeonwork has made her the favorite over Mlle. Scion, who uses the over-arm, and Miss Harrison, who swims the classic breast stroke.

ROCKAWAY EXPERIENCING GREAT REAL ESTATE BOOM

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Rockaway took on the appearance of a town in the midst of a gold rush today when thousands of men and women crowded the ocean front to take part in the land boom created by the proposed erection of a new boardwalk.

Millions have been made on paper since the boom started and in most cases speculators have resold the land they bought before the ink was dry on their options.

Real estate men here believe that the situation is unsound, that the bubble will burst and the sky rocketing prices drop. They believe that some of the speculators will be left with "paper profits" of millions impossible to collect and others with options of large sections of relatively worthless land for which they had contracted to pay "skyrocket" prices.

Speculators at the beach, however, stoutly asserted today that the proposition was absolutely sound and that they were merely "getting in on the ground floor" of a movement which will transform the rubbish-littered beach at Rockaway to a greater resort than Atlantic City.

NURSERY SHIP WAS IN COLLISION IN EAST RIVER

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—Terrified women with sickly children in their arms were forcibly restrained from leaping into the East river today when the St. John's Guild Hospital nursery barge Helen de Juilliard carrying 1,468 mothers and children, and the Lamport & Holt line Vandyck collided. Through the efforts of 27 nurses and 17 members of the barge crew, the most frenzied women and children were prevented from jumping overboard.

Marine police who saw the liner back out of its Brooklyn dock and strike the barge amidships rushed launches to the boat and prepared to take any injured to hospitals. No one was hurt, however, and after the women and children had been quieted the barge was docked.

The collision occurred as the barge, towed by a tug, was returning from one of the outings for undernourished children and their mothers which are given every day during July and August. The barge was only slightly damaged.

TROUBLE OF UNIONS MAY TIE UP BUILDING

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—Accurate information was lacking tonight as to the results of the strike today of brick layers employed upon $20,000,000 worth of construction in New York, Chicago and Washington.

Union leaders who described the strike order as a "defensive and retaliatory measure" in their controversy with the plasterers' organization, refused to make public reports on the response of their members. The building trades employers association declared only a dozen men left work on four big local projects and denied that programm had been hindered on any of the contracts.

HAYNES TO BE STRIPPED OF ALL PROHIBITION AUTHORITY

Duties of the Commission Will Devolve on 24 Administrators to Be Appointed in Reorganization of the Enforcement Forces—New Movement is Much More Sweeping Than Had Been Expected—Haynes Will Act Merely in An Advisory Capacity.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes will be stripped of all authority over prohibition enforcement on Sept. 1.

His duties will be lodged in the 24 prohibition administrators to be appointed under the reorganization of the enforcement forces effective the first of next month, and he will act merely in an advisory capacity to Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury.

An order authorizing the transfer of authority was issued today by Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair who under the law, retains nominal jurisdiction over the prohibition unit. Actual direction of administration will be in the hands of Mr. Andrews, who was appointed to the treasury with that end in view.

While the order had been forecast, it was much more sweeping than expected. It takes away from the commissioner all authority he had with respect to any matters relating to intoxicating liquors as well as all authority he has had in approving or disapproving acts of prohibition agents in the field.

Moreover, there no longer will be any requirement that copies of permits, bonus or other documents relating to the withdrawal, manufacture or other handling of liquors be forwarded to the commissioner. These will remain in the possession of the prohibition administrators, who will be stationed at 22 points in the United States and in Porto Rico and Hawaii.

While the full effect of the order will not be felt until Sept. 1, control of the manufacture, sale and use of specially denatured alcohol is to be transferred immediately from collectors of internal revenue to the present prohibition directors, who will act in this respect as administrators until the regular administrators can be appointed.

Commissioner Haynes was absent today from Washington, but it was said at the prohibition unit that he would remain in his present place.

While he has made no formal announcement, it is expected that the commissioner will relinquish his office later to enter the gubernatorial contest in Ohio as a candidate for the Republican nomination in the state primaries next summer.

Treasury officials having to do with prohibition matters withheld comment on the order. Assistant Secretary Andrews referred callers to Commissioner Blair, whose name was signed to the order.

Mr. Blair kept himself secluded in his office, but he sent out word to inquirers that "the answer" to the order simply was "decentralization" of prohibition enforcement.

Mr. Andrews still was engaged today in the long series of conferences leading up to the selection of the administrators who are to take charge of the prohibition districts.

UNITED STATES WILL FEEL THE WORLD'S OIL DEMAND

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The United States cannot continue to furnish sixty per cent. of the world's oil demand, Prof. Charles K. Leith of the University of Wisconsin said today at the Institute of Politics round table conference on mineral resources as a world factor.

"We must rely on other sources in the face of the growing demand," Prof. Leith said. "The British empire is rich in oil deposits and some Englishmen say she will eventually pay the United States her war debt from these resources. The world's demand for petroleum will continue steadily and we must face this fact.

"For one reason or another the petroleum development of the world is not proceeding as rapidly as the situation seems to require. Among the reasons is the closed door. The present tendency is toward the further closing of national doors, with the result that the impact of growing world demand is causing more and more political friction."

At the round table on international justice, Prof. Jesse S. Reeves of the University of Michigan opposed statements attributed to United States Senator Borah of Idaho and others that a complete codification of international law must precede the successful functioning of a world court.

"If the world must wait for that codification the establishment of the world court will never take place in our lifetime," he said. "No court, once given jurisdiction adequate to a controversy ever refuses to proceed to a judgment because of the non-existence of a legal rule appropriate to the case. This is true whether the court be one of international arbitration or the international court of justice."

CAMPAIGN FOR THE NAVY AND MARINE MEMORIAL

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 3—(AP)—The Navy and Marine Memorial campaign in Connecticut will be officially launched tomorrow at a luncheon to be given to prominent citizens of the state by Seth Low Pierrepont, state chairman for the memorial, at the Hartford club in Hartford. It was announced here today. Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, chairman of the national directors of the memorial, and Governor Trumbull, the honorary Connecticut chairman, will be the principal speakers.

The campaign has for its purpose the raising of Connecticut's $17,000 quota toward the erection of a national monument in Washington commemorating the naval and maritime services and dedicated to all Americans lost at sea.

ASSISTANCE FOR GERMANS EVICTED FROM POLAND

SCHNEIDEMUHL, Germany, Aug 3—(AP)—Already a number of measures for the amelioration of the situation of the thousands of Germans evicted from Poland during the last few days have resulted from the visit to the refugee camp of Minister of the Interior Severing.

Rush orders have been sent to Berlin for 9,000 blankets, and carpenters are working day and night on the construction of wooden beds. Minister Severing has ordered the immediate establishment of a reliable fire protection service and the adoption of measures to prevent the outbreak of fire. The inflammable straw bedding used by the refugees is rapidly replaced with mattresses.

All the sick in the camp are to be isolated and an appropriate medical and nursing staff is being organized.

COMMISSION TO STAMP CUT CRIMINAL ACTIVITIES

NEW, York, Aug. 3—(AP)—Intense interest in the campaign of the national crime commission to stamp out criminal activities throughout the United States has been evinced by leaders in all walks of life, F. Trubee Davison, active chief announced today at an organization conference with Mark L. Prentiss and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The opinion is unanimous, Mr. Davison said, to asked Elbert H. Gary, to become chairman of the commission and within a few days a delegation will call upon the steel magnate to urge him to undertake the work. Leading men in the industrial world, including representatives of capital and labor, have voiced approval of the commission's campaign, he said.

TWO WOMEN AND A MAN SLAIN BY HIGHWAYMAN

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Bloodhounds tonight were on the trail of a coatless, collarless holdup man, who last night shot and killed three members of a picnic party of four when they responded to a demand for money with the announcement that they were "broke."

Following a slender clew, centering about an unidentified motorist and a patch of tweed cloth, police authorities today were unsuccessful in their efforts to find the man who slew Miss Marie McCormick, Mrs. Julia Stearns, her sister, and Fred Funkner, and wounded Carl Perry, a fourth member of the party.

Details of the slayings were pieced out by officers from the incoherent tale of Perry.

Perry said the bandit leaped on the running board of their automobile as they drove on an outlying boulevard and forced them at the point of a pistol, to drive to a secluded lane. There he demanded money and was told by members of the party that they were "broke." He then opened fire with two revolvers, shooting the girls and Funkner through the head and wounding Perry in the arm.

When he realized that the other occupants of the machine were dead Perry ran for help, he said. During his flight from the car, he told officers, he saw the slayer, and then ran in the opposite direction until he came to a house where he summoned aid.

"We never had a chance," he sobbed.

Police declared the slayer undoubtedly was the "petting party bandit" who has made a specialty of holding up motorists parked in the outskirts of Denver, and who recently wounded another couple near the scene of last night's tragedy.

Michael Kelle, employer of the two dead women, has posted a reward of $500 for the apprehension of the slayer.

CONTEST OVER BAY STATE MOTOR BUS CONTROL LAW

BOSTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—Governor Fuller today declined to issue a call for a special session of the legislature to consider suspension of the new motor bus control law which went into effect last week. The proposal that the legislature be called together was made to the executive by F. A. Deister, president of the American Coach company, Clarence A. Barnes, counsel, and Howland H. Croat, a director of the company.

The representatives of the company advanced the claim that unless the present law is repealed the railroads of the state will obtain a monopoly of the omnibus business and $15,000,000 worth of motor coaches now operated by private owners will be junked. The governor expressed the view that no emergency existed at this time to warrant a special legislative session.

He paid a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $18.50. Anderson pleaded guilty and received a similar fine which he paid.

It was shown that Mullen was acting in the role of peacemaker between Picking and Anderson, so the breach of peace charge was also nolled against him.

The fair committee of Willimantic Lodge No 1311, B. P. O. E., announced Monday that the annual Country fair would be one omitted this year. The only reason given for this decision was that with the present construction of the Elks' Home on the grounds where the fair is annually held, the grounds are so broken up and crowded with building material that it is practically impossible to arrange for a fair. The local industrial conditions it is stated, have absolutely no bearing on the omission of the event. The home will be completed next year and the committee guarantees a 1926 fair which will overshadow any of its predecessors.

CORONER BILL HOLDS INQUEST IN KENNETH USHER'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 3.—Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Danielson, was in this city Monday and opened an inquest on the death of Kenneth Usher, 7, son of Merritt L., and Mrs. Usher, of South Willington, who was fatally injured when struck by a Cadillac car operated by Ralph Collins, formerly of Lowell, Mass., now of 31 North street, Willimantic. Coroner Bill gave permission for the removal of the body to a Stafford Springs undertaking parlor. It was not found necessary to hold an autopsy. At the opening of the inquest at police headquarters Ralph Collins, driver of the machine, gave his version of the fatality. Collins, his wife and another couple were on their way to this city and about one mile north of Merrow he came upon the two Usher machines. They were parked on opposite sides of the road, about one hundred feet apart and the boy was walking beside the road, going from the car which his father had been driving to one operated by his brother, Munroe Usher. Collins saw the child and slowed down but suddenly the boy ran out to the middle of the road and was struck by the left fender. The car passed over his body and was brought to a stop within a few feet. Coroner Bill and his stenographer visited the scene of the accident and the inquest was continued until today (Tuesday). Collins is being held on a technical charge of reckless driving. There is some question as to Collins' right to drive his car at the time of the accident. Notice of the suspension of his operator's license was received at police headquarters here Saturday, but Collins states that he had not as yet received personal notification of the suspension from the motor vehicle department. State Policeman Comstock, of the local temporary barracks, has been investigating the accident.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Many friends greeted Rev. M. J. Twomey of Newark, N. J., while he was in town Monday. It is 20 years since Rev. Mr. Twomey closed his pastorate at the Danielson Baptist church to fill a new charge in Portland, Me., yet he remains the best remembered of the clergymen who have served here during that period. Next Sunday Rev. Mr. Twomey will preach at Calvary church, Washington, where President Harding frequently went to attend service. Sunday evening a number of members of the Danielson Baptist church went to Norwich to hear an address by Rev. Mr. Twomey.

Mill men from Danielson and other eastern Connecticut towns were telling Monday of their interesting and profitable experience in attending the week end conference of the Textile associates held at the Ocean house, Nantucket. The membership, which is limited, includes many well known textile executives of New England and the majority of them were at the meeting. Robert W. Boys of the Farr Alpaca company at Holyoke, formerly agent of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town, is president of the organization. Among the members from this section are Alfred Pate of the Westfield Textile company of Danielson, Charles Heap of the Lawton mills at Plainfield, Albert Oliver of the Adams Manufacturing company of Putnam, Leonard Meller, of the National Rhea company, with a plant at Putnam.

Work on the more than a mile of new concrete roadway to be built by the state between Morin avenue and the bridge near the plant of the American Woolen company at Elmville is expected to begin about September 1. It probably will be announced who has received the contract within a week or ten days. As the stretch to be built is approximately 5,300 feet, it is believed that the work will have been completed before November 15, the limit for construction of concrete highway in the fall season in Connecticut.

The attitude of the Killingly Worsted company, relative to the present tendency toward the reduction of wages in the woolen and worsted industries, is to seek by greater efficiency to overcome that alternative in meeting competition, W. K. Litch of the company said Monday that the Killingly Worsted company hopes by developing a greater efficiency to overcome the need of a wage reduction—and that wages at the plant will not be reduced only as a very last resort.

Development of competition in the bus line business between Providence and Hartford via Danielson is of much interest. Last Saturday a line with headquarters in Danielson and covering the route mentioned issued a new schedule and provided what amounts to a through service between Providence and Hartford with one change at Willimantic, at once a line operating out of Providence and covering the same route abandoned a policy of making no stops in Danielson and is now said to be accepting passengers out of Providence for this place. It was said Monday that regulation of these lines is not within the jurisdiction of the state of Connecticut, as the busses are doing an interstate business. The control of bus lines of this nature is a matter that will come before congress, when it reconvenes in December.

No appointment has yet been made to fill the vacancy in the board of county commissioners caused by the death of Commissioner John A. Daly of Putnam. It will be recalled that no candidate received sufficient ballots to assure his appointment when the Windham county members of the legislature took the matter up at Hartford a number of weeks ago. Since then the names of a number of Windham county men have been mentioned for the place, but there has been no appointment, which would be made now by the governor.

A strange acting man, who may be more or less demented, has been reported as roaming about at night in the Riverview section.

A recent death in Los Angeles was that of Miss Abbie Frances Aldrich, at the age of 90. Miss Aldrich had been in California for about 60 years. She was a former resident at East Killingly.

It is a fad with many here just now to start on long motor tours, such as on trips to Canada at one or two o'clock in the morning. This is done to escape driving during the heat of the day.

BOROUGH TAX RATE GOES UP ONE-HALF MILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 3—Fifteen people fixed the borough tax rate for the year at the adjourned annual borough meeting in the town hall Monday evening. The rate is 9 1-2 mills, one-half a mill more than the rate of last year. The tax will be due and payable on the second Monday in September.

Warden Walter Anderson told the meeting that he believed it would be good policy to apply $2,500, recently obtained from the sale of the old borough hall on Water street, to a reduction of the debt and consequent lowering of the interest charges, rather than to figure it as current income.

Attorney Harry E. Bark was chairman and Frank T. Preston clerk of the meeting.

PUTNAM

The statement published in some newspapers that the contract for building the Memorial bridge over the Quinebaug river at Pomfret had been awarded to Charles A. Haggerty, of Webster, is incorrect.

Sealed bids were received at the office of the state highway commissioner in the capitol Saturday, but there was no contract awarded.

Commissioner Macdonald is away from Hartford and will not return until Thursday, so there will be nothing done in the matter until after that date.

Plans are in progress for the organization of a troop of Boy Scouts in Putnam. Several years ago there were two or three patrols here and they were able to accomplish quite a little in civic matters, as well as giving the boys a good time. Because of the inability of the troop committee to secure a scoutmaster interested in the work, the Boy Scout movement has been inactive in Putnam for about five years. Neil Bulger, of Farrow street, and Russell Sherman, of Grove street, are secretaries of two patrols now in progress of organization. Jerome Andrews, of Farrow street, assistant scout master of the old troop, will probably be scoutmaster of the new one. George Lewis, Jr., is chairman of the troop committee and Stanley Bacon and Samuel Rich are the other members.

MENTALLY AFFECTED, FARMER CUTS THROAT WITH RAZOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 3.—Rosario Blaine, 43, a farmer living near North Grosvenordale, committed suicide Saturday cutting his throat with a razor. He had been ill for six months and for the greater part of that time suffered from hallucinations. He declared that some one was trying "to get" him and when asked why anyone should want to get him he said that he did not know. Although he had not exhibited any suicidal tendencies, care had been taken to keep any weapons out of his reach. He was alone in the house for a few minutes Saturday and when his wife returned she saw him with a razor that he had found hidden in a cupboard. Before she could reach him to try to stop his attempt to take his life he drew the razor across his throat, severing his jugular vein. He died a few minutes later. While still conscious he told Mrs Blaine not to worry, that he would be better off.

Besides his wife he leaves three daughters and a son. Funeral services were held Monday morning at St. Joseph's church at North Grosvenordale.

WESTERLY

On the Pawcatuck river bridge, Sunday evening, soon after 8 o'clock, a Ford touring car, 74-465 R. I., owned by Thomas Viscigillo, of 51 Pleasant street, Westerly, parked on the north side of the bridge, was run into by the Studebaker sedon, O-2708, of Joseph Smith, 19 Walnut street, Stamford, Conn. The Ford was pushed over the Rhode Island-Connecticut boundary line into Connecticut. The location is one fruitful for accidents for cars are parked on both sides of the river bridge on the Rhode Island side while on the Connecticut side the electric car of the Groton-Stonington line is allowed to stand before starting for New London. The accident was explained by the sedan being left in gear so that when it was started it moved ahead and tore off the left mud guard. Police Sergeant Michael Cronin of the Westerly force investigated. It is supposed that a settlement was affected between the parties, for the car proceded later without hindrance.

Sunday morning about 3:30 o'clock an automobile party with Stephen Downey, of 465 Montauk avenue, New London, came into Dixon square. The party must have been impressed with the quiet and apparently deserted aspect of Westerly's civic center. A lantern on the traffic beacon was appropriated, as the automobile turned into an adjacent driveway. The removal of the warning light did not escape the watchful eye of Sergeant Curtin for he followed the young man into the driveway and asked for an explanation. The sergeant was first told that the green light was taken so that they could see to repair a tire and later admission was made that the forsaken appearance of the squire had led to the lantern's appropriation. The danger of unmarked beacons was brought to the young man's attention and further he was invited by the police sergeant to again return to Westerly, the next Tuesday night.

Filed for record at the office of Westerly town clerk are the following:

July 30. Ellery C. Burdick, of Bradford, a lease to June 1, 1926, for the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, of a store on Main street, Bradford, R. I.

Addie G. Stillman and Edwin B. Stillman to William C. Clarke, a parcel of land on the east side of Summer street, with dwelling house, garage and other improvements.

Aug. 1. Charles L. Fontana, Antello Mataresse and Louis J. Rossie to Frank Turco, lot No. 12, plot of property of Charles L. Fontana and others on Brightman's pond, at the east end of Pleasant View.

Deborah chapter, No. 9, Order of the Eastern Star, of Westerly, is to hold a beach party at the cottage of Mrs. William D. Kenneth, at Pleasant View beach, this (Tuesday) evening.

Word received in Westerly from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Moran, their daughter, Florence, and son Roy, who are on an automobile camping trip through the Canadian provinces, located them at Quebec at the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kroebar, of Glastonbury, were guests of relations and friends at Pleasant View over Sunday.

John R. Fraser, of Meriden, visited relatives at Pleasant View Sunday.

The August session of Westerly town council with President Clifford W. Campbell, George B. Utter, Farquhar Smith, Charles Fowler, Louis J. Rossie, Council Clerk Everett E. Whipple and Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Pro. present, the absentees being Thomas W. Morrison and John D Nichols, was held Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The report of the Westerly health officer, Dr. Samuel C. Webster, showed five cases of contagious disease quarantined for July, one case of measles, one of German measles, one infantile paralysis and two of whooping cough. The council approved the report. A vote authorized the town treasurer to hire $50,000 for the construction of sewers in the town of Westerly, and to issue his note for the same under date of Sept. 1, 1-925, and due Nov. 1, 1926.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown showed 24 arrests for July as follows: Disorderly persons, one; unlawful possession of liquor, four; intoxication, five; peddling without license, three; town hackney violations, five; operation without driving license, four; the driving of automobiles at a speed greater than reasonable, two. One liquor raid was made during the month.

Joe Grills was voted a permit to on the 5th, 6th and 7th day of August a boxing exhibition in Westerly just, with the usual requirements.

From the Bradford Dyeing association was received deeds to Bowling lane, in Bradford, which it was voted referred to the Westerly highway commission before passage by the town council.

The acceptance of the plot of Melrose park, the land development of the Maynard Land company, of Providence, off John street, a map of which it is said is in the Westerly town clerk's office without letter or application, and which Town Clerk Whipple told the council he had written for without reply, was next considered by the council. It was voted that Town Solicitor Ferguson and Engineer A. L. Leon, of the Westerly highway commission, take up the matter with the owners to see that all requirements of the highway commission and the Westerly zoning board are met, before it is voted accepted by the council.

Engineer Leon asked the council to expedite the acceptance of the Bowling lane, Bradford, deed as the workmen of the highway department would be caught up with the work of improvement of Pierce street, in Westerly, and they would then want to go to Bradford to begin work there.

The question of Watch Hill sewerage, brought to the council's attention by Watch Hill cottagers at previous sessions, was referred to the state board of purification of waters. Formal complaint will be made so that the matter may be taken up with the different offenders.

The following apportionment of sewage assessments were voted: Mario Izzo, $29, and Ralph DeSimone, $85.91, to Nzzo, $108.50; William Riddell, $295, on High street, were voted.

The plat of Charles L. Fontana, Anello Mattaree and Louis J. Rossi for their development near the east end of Pleasant View beach, on Brightman pond, having met with the approval of the Westerly highway commission and the Westerly zoning board, was voted approved.

Councilman Charles Fowler brought before the council the matter of using automobiles for bath houses at the beach. No action was taken.

The nuisances complained of by Julia Dower, Columbus Zerbarini, Edward and Elizabeth Wheeler were voted a 60 days' notice for abatement.

Another nuisance complained of was "awful unhealthy condition" as described by Council President Campbell on a petition of nearly 100 signers headed by Mrs. Nicola Trebisacci of the nuisance existing between Pleasant street and Riverside park, where a brook is filled with sewerage and overflow surface water. The council voted to give the petitioners as expedient a solution as possible. Stating it would necessitate the construction of a drain costing between $1,200 and $1,500 a part of which should be borne by the state.

That the councilmen are determined to follow up to the state board of public utilities their complaint relative to charges made against the Westerly Automatic Telephone company, was apparent when a formal complaint on three points was signed by the "members of the Westerly town council and others."

The telephone subscribers in the Westerly exchange are required to pay a toll of 10 cents on each telephone message to the Watch Hill exchange, the complaint said, and this toll is unfair and unreasonable.

The Telephone company is unjustly discriminating in the base rate for telephone service, charging double season rates in the Watch Hill exchange. The town council will ask for a hearing by the state board of public utilities.

The following was presented by Councilman Charles S. Fowler and seconded by Councilman G. B. Utter: "Voted—That Benjamin Utter and Charles S. Fowler be a committee to contract with Wall and company, of Providence, to instrust the town treasurer's office in the new accounting system, to take off trial balances, to render each month a balance sheet to the town council, to close the books for 1925, and prepare the annual report to be presented to the council for this service they be paid $155."

The vote was taken and President Campbell announced the vote carried.

Councilman Smith asked how the vote could be passed when it stood a tie.

The vote was again called for and Councilmen Utter, Fowler and Rossi voted "yes."

"I am opposed to paying outrageous sums for this kind of work," said Mr. Smith.

Councilman Utter was made acting chairman, when at this point President Campbell told the other council fathers that "thirty people were waiting for him to go fishing and that he would have to leave."

Victualising licenses were granted Jennie E. Brown, at the east end of Pleasant View beach, on Brightman's pond, where the building had been moved back 30 feet, Annie L. Newton, Post road, Frank Cappizano, White Rock baseball field and the application of Domenico Negrelli, on Atlantic avenue, in a residential section, was voted laid on the table.

Tavern licenses were granted the Weekapaug Inn and to Elizabeth Edwards, of Norwich, for the Atlantic View Inn, at Atlantic beach.

To pay water bills for July $2,278.61 was voted: sewer bills, $3,328.80; poor department, $430.69; town hall bills, $10.53; miscellaneous, $163.45; printing and advertising, $61.38; mothers' aid expense, $3.95; dog fund, damage to fowl, $8.00, for street lights, $1,326.59.

Police bills voted paid were automobiles, $37.50; special officers, $56.25; traffic, $115.85; telegraph and telephone, $33.50, and miscellaneous $21.20, or a total of $264.4.

While the action of the town council in voting an audit and accountancy by the Wall and company, of Providence was made known, a Westerly town official stated: "In spite of all the system to show the amounts paid, I defy anyone to tell me the amount any one policeman is paid."

Edward M. Clarke, the instructor in August swimming lessons given free to the registrants at the rooms of the Westerly branch of the American Red Cross on High street Monday and Tuesday of this week, had many applicants all day Monday for the classes of beginners and advanced swimmers and the Junior Life savers, ages 12 to 17 and Senior Life savers, of 17 years or over. Instructor Clarke, of St. John's Manlius Military school, near Syracuse, N. Y., has a tent erected at Thompson's corners, on the Watch Hill road and workers busy in raking glass and rubbish from the cove, that the classes of instruction can be started Wednesday or Thursday of this week, cards to be sent registrants telling them the hour, time and place to meet him.

After flying 250 miles from Washington, D. C., to Miller field, Staten Island, without mishap, Lieutenant Donald Bigrke had an accident in a 25-foot trip from his flying boat to the shore when a canoe capsised and threw him into the water.

DEMPSEY AND WALKER WILL BE SUSPENDED UNLESS THEY APPEAR TODAY

NEW YORK Aug. 3.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker will be indefinitely suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission tomorrow if they do not appear in person before the commission and sign articles of agreement for title matches with their outstanding challengers, Harry Wills and Dave Shade. This was learned from a reliable source close to the boxing commission tonight.

Dempsey's presence on the Pacific Coast prohibits his attendance while Walker, it was learned tonight, will not accept the commission's invitation to a conference until the arrival of his manager, Jack Kearns, who is now on his way east and is due to arrive here the latter part of this week, or the first of next week.

Both Dempsey and Walker will come under an ineligibility ban which is virtually the same as a suspension inasmuch as it prevents them from fighting in New York State or sister states where a working agreement exists. Owing to the fact that they do not hold licenses with the New York commission they cannot be suspended technically, but the ban which will be placed against them will operate the same as a suspension.

It was furthur learned that Wills and Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, will be matched for a fight, the winner to be declared the "world's heavyweight champion," until such time Dempsey, personally, appears before the commission and posts a bond and signs articles of agreement to a match with Wills. While the commission would like to take more definite, drastic action against both Walker and Dempsey, it realizes that it cannot strip the title from either fighter and to bring both to terms it will declare the titles until the real champions are ready to defend their championships.

Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden promoter, still holding Dempsey's proxy, will attempt to forestall action against the heavyweight champion by appearing before the commission but this proxy will not be honored, it was intimated. Rickard said today that Dempsey positively will not fight this year either outdoors or indoors. He said he had hopes of matching Dempsey with Tunney as the opening card for the New Madison Square Garden but he was convinced that nothing could be done for Dempsey until he definitely agrees to fight Wills and posts a forfeit and signs article of agreement for the match.

DEMPSEY REFUSES TO SIGN FOR GREB BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3—(A. P.)—Jack Dempsey sat down hard today on Floyd Fitzsimmons' proposals for immediate signing of papers for a bout between Dempsey and Harry Greb next September, when he announced that the one fight he wanted was with Harry Wills and that he would do nothing in any other direction until he heard from the New York commission on the Wills matter.

"I am willing to abide by the dictates of the New York Boxing Commission and whatever decision it makes will be my pleasure," Dempsey said. He announced that he has refused a number of proposals for other bouts and is "only concerned with the Wills affair and may fight anybody but Wills."

Fitzsimmons, Michigan City, Ind., boxing promoter, arrived yesterday and announced he had come to offer Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, "attractive terms" for a bout with Harry Greb at Michigan City, September 26.

The promoter said that he and the champion had a luncheon engagement for today at which they would discuss the proposal.

Fitzsimmons offered the information that the governor of Indiana would not place any obstacles in the way of the bout and added the opinion that matters could be arranged with the New York Boxing Commission so that the Dempsey-Greb affair could precede the Dempsey-Wills match upon which the commission is insisting.

Greb is Disappointed.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 3—(A. P.)—Harry Greb, middleweight champion boxer, expressed disappointment here today when informed that Jack Dempsey would not immediately consider a bout with him. He expressed determination, however, to obtain the match if possible.

YOUNG COULON KNOCKS OUT PROVIDENCE LAD

(Special to the Bulletin.)

BRADFORD, R. I., Aug. 3—Young Coulon of Norwich battered his way to a technical knockout over Young Dutchie of Providence in the sixth round of their scheduled eight round semi-final bout here tonight. Young Coulon led the attack from the first round and for five rounds battered away at Dutchie, never letting him rest. In the fifth round the Providence lad was weakening fast and in the sixth he gave up the battle and Coulon was awarded the fight on a technical knockout.

The main bout of ten rounds between Battling Thomas of Boston and K. O. Billy Nolan of New York was declared "no contest" in the fifth round by Referee Billy Manice. Thomas was willing to fight but the New York colored boy lacked the heart and stalled all through the first four rounds. In the fifth the referee ordered Nolan out of the ring and declared the bout off.

Scottie Carroll of New London and Pat Murphy of New London fought a fast six round draw.

Young Reit of Westerly knocked out Al Sweeney of Providence in the second round bout. Reita floored Sweeney several times in the first and second rounds.

Young Sposato of Westerly lost a four round decision to Kid Bruno, also of Westerly.

The attendance was about 1,200.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3—(AP)—Chicago broke its losing streak of four games today behind some great pitching by Sheriff Blake who defeated the Dodgers 7 to 4. The Cubs won by bunching hits off Hubbell. Blake allowed only six hits, three of which were home runs, made by Wheat, Cox and Fournier, the latter's in the eighth inning with a man on base. Tigers Wallop Crescents.

In a five-inning slug-fest the Taftville Tigers walloped Don Courbois' Crescents, 14 to 5, Monday evening at the Academy campus.

The Taftville boys had a big night with the stick. Kampff or Tomtari had nothing in their deliveries to Laffle the Tiger batters. Krauss starred for the winning team. Out of four times at bat, he garnered three hits and three runs, and as an added attraction his whirlwind base running furnished excitement. Shorty Hamil the N. F. A. midget outfielder, pulled a wonderful catch on one of Finnicke's long poles.

WAUREGAN GRAYS LOSE TO CRANSTON TOWN TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WAUREGAN, Aug. 3. — Cranston Town Team defeated the Wauregan Grays, 7 to 1 in a rather loosely played game here Sunday. Mackie pitched good ball, keeping the hits well scattered, but received ragged support. Conway was the hitting star for Cranston, crashing out a triple and a brace of singles. A. Plankey of the Grays also hit well getting a double and a pair of singles.

South Windham will cross bats with the Grays on next Sunday, August 9th. The score:

EAST ENDS TIE UP FOR PLACE BY SWAMPING HALLVILLE IN LOOSE GAME

The East Ends climbed a notch higher in the race for the Twilight League pennant Monday evening when they trounced Hallville, 13 to 9.

As a result of last night's game, the East Siders are tied for third place with Mike Morin's Palace team, while Hallville dropped to sixth place, but one full game ahead of the seventh-place Nuggets.

As in last week's game, Manager Taylor was unable to secure his New London players and had to play the game with a lineup made up chiefly of substitutes. The East Ends on the other hand presented one of their strongest lineups, and from the very first inning, it was only a question of how large the score would be.

Harry Mills twirled for the East Ends and won his fourth game of the season. Harry held Hallville to four hits all of which were made by Sullivan and Red Charon, the former making two doubles, while the latter connected for a double and a single. Spicer in the box for the team "down yonder" proved to be no mystery to the hard-hitting East Siders, who accumulated fourteen safe hits, which coupled with eight errors by the Hallville nine enabled them to score thirteen runs. Mills led his team with the stick, collecting a double and two singles out of five trips to the plate. Joe Belair was close behind with two doubles out of three attempts.

The East Ends got off to a one-run lead in the first inning when Normandin singled, took second on a wild throw and scored on Bill Austin's single to right. In the second, the 1924 Champs, made a walk-away of the game counting four more times on singles by Noel, Normandin and Mills, and a two-bagger by Gaudette. In the next two innings, the East Ends continued their attack on Spicer, scoring three in the third, and four in the fourth.

Hallville scored their only run in the third. Red Charon led off in this frame with a double to left and when Jimmy Murphy let Gaudette's throw from the outfield get away from him, Charon went to third. Fuller then shot a line hit off Mills' glove, but Normandin coming in fast, made a pretty catch of the ball, retiring Fuller. He then attempted to double Charon on third, but his throw was wild of the bag and Charon scored. Sullivan kept up the rally with a double to right, but was caught a moment later stealing third. Boyd then grounded to Mills for the third out.

Tonights Game

Tonight's game between the Centrals and Yantic without a doubt will be the most important game of the week, if not of the season. The Centrals, who have been sitting on top all season, tonight will meet the first real opposition since the day Hallville took the boys from Taftville in tow for the first and only time this season. In the Yantic team Mgr. Holland's boys will face a bunch of hard-hitting boys who in the last two games have scored thirty runs on over forty hits. Yantic who was followed by a jinx since the opening of the season came near going under altogether when the men from New London quit them entirely and rumors started to find their way around that Yantic was about to quit the league.

But the spirit of Yantic was still there and Harry Ainsworth, who was acting manager at the time, assisted by many of the Yantic fans went out and signed up an entirely new team from Lebanon, Fitchville and South Windham. What these boys did against Hallville and the Saints in the last two weeks was enough to prove that Yantic is now a real dangerous team and tonight the whole of Yantic will come down to see their boys face the real test and a real test it will be, as the Centrals have proven without a doubt that the top rung of the league ladder is theirs by their hard hitting, fast fielding and great team work in every game played.

For Yantic tonight "Cannonball" Gill Jones will be on the hill and if he performs in the same manner that he has in the last two games the Centrals' hits will be far in between This boy has a great assortment of hooks and plenty of speed and to date has proved the most effective in the league. Smith, who is close to the top in the batting averages, will catch. "Big Boy Sweet" will play first, Hoxie will play second, Ainsworth short, A. Hoxie at third and Marchand, Cummings and Gibbs will play the outfield.

For the Centrals the fans will probably have a chance to see "Lefty" Dugas, the sensation of the Taftville A. A., make his initial appearance in the box. The fans have waited patiently for this opportunity and it is hoped that Holland will start this boy tonight as he sure will need his best against Yantic tonight.

The remainder of the team includes Eccleston catch, A. Dugas at first, Cardie at second, Gauchier at short, Yerrington on third and Murphy, Gaudette and Tombari in the outfield.

Should the Centrals lost tonight the E. C. P. will go into a tie with them for first place and Yantic will move into third place.

BEARS BEAT HARTFORD IN FIRST INNING

HARTFORD, Aug. 3—(A. P.)—A weird first inning in which Bridgeport scored five runs on four hits, a base on balls, two errors and a wild pitch sufficed to allow the "Bears" to defeat Hartford, 5 to 3. After the first frame, only two Bridgeport batters reached second base. Johnny Enzmann was forced to leave the game with an arm injury. Score:

FITCHVILLE WINS HECTIC GAME BY CLOSE SCORE

Spectacular plays, inexcusable errors and the most terrific hitting seen on the Cannon Hill grounds, Fitchville, were the noteworthy features of Sunday's game in which Mgr. Sullivan's nine defeated the fast Hampton team by the score of 11 to 10. The approach of football weather was presaged in the contest by the visitors who seemed like husky lineplungers in comparison with the local players. As a matter of fact both teams booted the ball considerably but with the outside team piling up nine misplays to Fitchville's four the uncoveted honors went against the Quilt town aggregation.

Hampton in P. Rathburn and Jones possesses the two most versatile infielders in these parts. Both players are heavy hitters and with a dozen assists jointly to their credit in this game some idea of their fielding ability can be guessed. Hewitt, Ainsworth, Coughlin and Chafetz wielded the willow effectively for the locals while E. Porter and H. Porter led the visiting wallopers.

NORWICH WATER SUPPLY

An adequate water supply for domestic uses, for the requirement of manufacturing industries and for fire protection is admitted to be a necessity for every community. It should be not only enough for all normal purposes and seasons but there should be the margin of safety that will insure no shortage under the stress of emergency use or the hazard of a dry season.

When the citizens of Norwich meet tonight in the special city meeting to decide whether a new reservoir shall be built, they will be called upon to take action upon a matter that will have a bearing upon the community's water supply for years to come. The water board and the common council are united in recommending the building of a reservoir upon the Deep River watershed in the town of Colchester, for which the citizens will be called upon to vote authority to raise $1,030,000 by a bond issue. In their public statement of the reservoir proposition, the commissioners have discussed alternate sites and methods of increasing our water supply, intending thereby to show the grounds for the decision they have reached and the recommendation they have made. It is entirely possible that their statement may not have been convincing to all minds and that groups of citizens may believe that other means should be adopted or that they desire additional enlightenment to dispel the doubts arising in their minds. Such will have the right—and should certainly exercise it—of calling for explanations that will clear up the mooted questions. Honest inquiries of this character will doubtless be received in the spirit in which they are made and the result will be helpful in determining the trend of the vote in the meeting.

The question to be decided is one of such far reaching influence upon the community that the meeting deserves a full attendance of the citizens and carefully considered action upon the recommendations that have been made.

SWIMMING THE CHANNEL

If Gertrude Ederle, of New York, swims the English Channel from France to the white cliffs of Dover in England, America will gain another honor in the world of sport and the plucky New York girl's name will have a fame as lasting as that of Captain Webb, the first man to make the channel swim, which he did in 1872. Although weather conditions caused postponement Monday, she will make the attempt as soon as possible.

The course from England to France is regarded as the more difficult, but whichever way the attempt is made it is a supreme test of the power and endurance of the swimmer. Henry F. Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., who is one of three who succeeded in swimming from England to France, describes the peculiar difficulties that beset the swimmer and he is skeptical of Miss Ederle's success because he knows the severity of the test.

"The North Sea tide," he says, "and the tides from the Atlantic meet in the narrowest part of the channel, causing a three-cornered chop or waterspout. This has a terrible effect on the swimmer because the water continually smacks you in the face no matter in what direction you are swimming. Again there is the alkali and the chalk bottom of the channel. Both dissolve in the water that takes the skin off a swimmer after about fifteen hours or so. Then you have the dark night and the hope that a calm or a change in conditions is a great test. The sun, as it comes up, blisters all may temporarily bend the average swimmer. Not only that, but you have to put up with the stings of jelly fish."

Miss Ederle has a well-founded reputation for pluck and endurance and whether she succeeds or not she will have the thanks of all whose friends who wish that she may conquer not only the first woman to conquer but the first stretch of water across which only strong men have preceded her.

PASSENGER COMPETITION

Freight traffic on American railways continues to increase this year as compared with 1924, but 24,000,000 fewer passengers were carried in the first third of this year as compared with a year ago. This meant a revenue loss of $23,500,345 on the passenger side, but as the carrying of commodities is by far the greater source of revenue, the effect on earnings is not as yet serious. Many of the systems show a good gain in freight carrying revenue.

However, the decrease in passenger business is not regarded lightly. The explanation of the change is not that fewer people are travelling but that motor busses are getting patronage that formerly went to the railroads. It is in the west, apparently, that the railroads have noticed the most serious effect, the decrease in passenger revenue being placed at $15,835,688, compared with $6,127,691 in the east and only $59,459 in the south. Highways of quality are much more rare in the south than in the east and middle west, which may account in a considerable degree for the limited spread of motor bus lines in that part of the United States. But with good roads programmes making progress everywhere it would seem that the southern railroads will not be long in feeling the effect of bus competition.

What seems to be on the way is increased competition for passenger traffic. Spokesmen for the railroads show no inclination to acknowledge that their losses may not be recovered in part. There are suggestions that more excursion trains be run, that feeder bus lines might be auxiliaries to the railroads and that revenue might be provided by establishing first, second and third class travel, such as prevails in Europe. Out of the situation that is developing there are likely to issue modifications, designed to appeal to the people and give them improvements in transportation that heretofore have not even been conceived.

A CRUSADE AGAINST CRIME

Judge Elbert H. Gary presided recently at a meeting in New York when a movement was initiated for a nation-wide crusade against the suppression of crime. As a focal point about which the organization would be based it is proposed to create a national crime commission which would do laboratory work in the study of crime and criminals and give law enforcement officials the benefit of its conclusions. But it was agreed that a more important part is to arouse the public to an understanding of the seriousness of the situation. It is recognized that as long as the public is indifferent to crime and the punishment of criminals crime is bound to increase. Not only is the public indifferent, but it contributes directly to lawlessness by a flabby sympathy for what may be a sentimentality over misfortune. The criminal has ceased to become an outcast, but frequently finds himself raised to the pedestal of a hero. Flowers and flowers instead of the dungeon and the hangman's noose have become the lot of murderers.

At the New York meeting there was lack of agreement as to responsibility for the fact that this country seems to be so infested with crime, some blaming the police, some the courts and others the prosecuting officials, but there was no disagreement as to the necessity for doing something about it. Every good citizen ought to help and one way good citizens can help is by obeying the laws themselves and insisting that lawbreakers be made to feel the weight of the law instead of escaping with comparatively light punishment through which they feel that they are willing to risk further punishment of a similar light character if they are caught again as lawbreakers.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

Sometimes I think I am too impulsively good natured for my own welfare. One day last week, for instance I was asking Polly Gray how she liked boarding at the Thorndale, and when she told me that it was a bit difficult to be cooped in a small room, where she could not have her dressmaker come to sew for her, I immediately suggested that she have Miss Barker sew for her at our house. She seized the idea with avidity and asked when she should tell Miss Barker to come.

"Any time," I answered genially.

But when I told mother on Tuesday that Polly and Miss Barker would be at our house the next morning she appeared quite annoyed.

"Why, Lucille," she protested, "the calciminers will be here. Can't you put them off till next week?"

"Now, mother, it isn't like you to wish me to disappoint Polly. Besides, I wish to have Miss Barker myself next week. Don't worry about Polly's dressmaking. They can sew in my room."

As the disorder of a sewing room gets on my nerves horribly I excused myself when Polly and Miss Barker came, and went downtown to look and shop. I called up George Requier and had a delectable lunch with him, and he took me for a drive in the afternoon. So I did not get home until just before my guests were leaving.

"Well," I said gayly. "I hope you have got on famously."

"Yes, indeed," answered Polly, "and I feel so grateful to you, Lucille, that I wish I could do something for you."

"If you really and truly do, Polly," I laughingly retorted, "you might buy me some heavy ribbed white silk sport stockings that I had to forego today, size 8 1-2. But, of course, dear, I wouldn't have you squander $6 on me. I was only joking."

About 10 o'clock on Thursday, just as I was getting ready to go over to Louise Fuller's, mother told me that I would have to prepare the lunch for Tilly was going out and she and Cousin Fannie were attending their guild meeting. I certainly felt no enthusiasm for cooking a meal, and it suddenly occurred to me that I really did not have to do it. A plan popped into my head.

"Polly, dear," I said, "it's too bad, but I fear I shall have to ask you and Miss Barker to stop your sewing this morning. Aren't you nearly finished anyway? Couldn't you take the work home, Miss Barker, and complete it there?"

"Why, I don't see how—"

"Certainly, that will be all right," put in Polly with dignity. "We can get along perfectly."

"Oh, I'm so glad, dear," I said, "for the decorators are coming in to do my room this afternoon, and you know how the whole house is stirred up. I do hope it won't inconvenience you not to finish your dress here."

"Of course not," Polly assured me in an odd tone, and Miss Barker gave me a strange look.

Just then the door bell rang, and I ran down stairs and found a delivery boy with a package for me.

"I do wonder what this is," I said as I regained my room.

"I think it must be the white silk sport stockings I ordered for you, Lucille," remarked Polly, who was busily packing her things.

"Surprise?" repeated Polly. "Well, I hope you enjoy them, Lucille."

Miss Barker telephoned me in the evening not to expect her next week. She said that certain matters had come up that would prevent her keeping her engagement with me. I am disappointed in her, for I always thought she was most reliable.

Fortunately I can have Cousin Fannie do the work, though she is rather slow and tires me a good deal with frequent fittings. But there is always something to put up with in this vale of tears. —Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Duke of Atholl, who is again mentioned for the governor-generalship of Canada, is one of the foremost peers of Scotland and one of that country's largest landowners. He succeeded to the dukedom in 1917 and was well known as the Marquis of Tullibardine. The duke has had a distinguished career in the army. He served in the Sudan campaign and won the D. S. O. in the Boer war. In the late war he commanded the Scottish Horse Brigade in the Gallipoli operations. He sat in the house of commons for some seven years before succeeding to the dukedom, and his wife is now a member of that body. The Dukes of Atholl have been quite famous in that about 1735 they acquired the sovereignty of the Isle of Man, which they held for 20 years before selling it and other rights to the British government for $350,000. Other rights sold in 1828 realized over $2,000,000, a vast amount in those days.

From Small Beginnings

Beethoven, the Poor Singer's Son, the Great Composer

In 1824 an audience listened spellbound to marvelous music produced for the first time. It was Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. When the last note had sounded deafening applause burst forth. The composer sat unmoved. He had heard nothing. He was deaf. Some one touched him and he turned and saw the moving hands. That was a dramatic moment whose pathos touched all.

Beethoven's whole life was full of pathos, but out of his sorrows came songs, operas, sonnatas, symphonies—the most glorious music the world has. In spite of sorrow and misfortune, Beethoven remained noble and unselfish and held high the standard of his high ideals.

His drunken, quick-tempered father and his mother, daughter of a cook, had never understood him. They had sent him to good teachers, hoping to turn his talent into money. While still a young man deafness came upon him and he could not hear his own music. He fell in love with girls who scorned him. He lived in poverty and often in suffering. His nephew, to whom he was devoted, became a scapegrace, his own brother drove him out in a storm, and from the exposure Beethoven contracted the disease from which he did.

Before his last days the world had recognized his genius and had given him high tribute. In the world of music Beethoven ranks as Shakespeare ranks in the world of letters.

When the great composer lay dying the deep diapason of thunder shook the house again and again. It was as if mighty chords were being struck by the elements, a grand funeral march as the musician passed into the beyond.

Stories That Recall Others

Bad Company.

Little Charles, 3 years old, had been rather naughty early in the day and was told he was a bad boy. Later in the day he grew lonesome and asked his mother whether he couldn't find some one to play with him. After some begging his mother told him he didn't need to have any one to play with, he could play by himself. Charles did not like this idea and quickly replied: "No, mother, I'm a bad boy and I don't think I'd better play with myself."

Showed His Training.

The man was trying to sell his watch dog.

"You see," he said, "I bought him and trained him myself. I taught him to bark if a person stepped inside the gate, and I thought I was safe from burglars. Then my son wanted me to train him to carry bundles, and I did.

"If I put a package in his mouth the dog would keep it there until some one took it away. Well, one night I woke up and heard movements in the next room. I got up and grabbed my revolver. Two men were there—and the dog."

"Didn't he bark?" interrupted the man.

"Never a bark; he was too busy."

"Busy? What was he doing?"

"Carrying a lantern for the burglars."

RUSSIAN CROP CONDITIONS ARE FAVORABLE THIS YEAR

Grain crop conditions in Russia are above average and better than at the same time last year, according to a cablegram from the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome to the United States Department of Agriculture. Cotton conditions in Turkestan is somewhat better than in Transcaucasia where it is a little above average.

Crop conditions according to the system of the country, in which 1 is for fire, 3 average and 5 excellent, are reported as follows: wheat 3.5 against 2.2 last year; rye 3.2 against 2.7; oats 3.3 against 2.5; flax 3.0 against 2.7; hemp 3.3 against 2.3. The cotton condition for Turkestan is 3.8, and for Transcaucasia 3.6 the same figures reported on June 15.

A considerable increase is reported in the rye crop of Lithuania and a slight increase in wheat production. The rye crop is forecast at 25,559,000 bushels against 14,295,000 bushels produced in 1924. Wheat production is placed at 2,454,000 bushels against 3,467,000 bushels produced last year.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Grows More Uncomfortable.

When troubles multiply hold tight
To faith that all will yet come right.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse felt more uncomfortable every minute. He couldn't recall ever having felt quite so uncomfortable as he did sitting on that board in the Smiling Pool with a great big fish, called a pickerel, close alongside. Every time he looked at that pickerel, Danny shivered. Somehow that board which had seemed plenty big enough before that pickerel came along now seemed very far from big enough.

You may be sure that Danny sat perfectly still. He even wished that his heart didn't have to beat. Every time a merry little breeze rumpled up his fur, Danny shivered. It seemed to him that that great fish was watching him. He sat so still for so long that at last he began to feel stiff and uncomfortable.

Suddenly, that big fish shot ahead like a flash. Danny had just time to see a small fish, and then that great mouth full of sharp teeth opened and that little fish disappeared. "And that might have been me," whimpered Danny as the big pickerel returned to his old position alongside Danny's raft.

Danny had just about made up his mind that he must change his position when, happening to look off on the other side, he quite forgot that he wanted to change his position. He quite forgot that he had the least desire to move. There, thrust out of the water, only a short distance away, was a big black head with a pair of cruel, bright eyes. It was the head of Snapper the Snapping Turtle. Danny had never seen him quite so close before, and he hadn't realized what a big fellow Snapper is. Danny suddenly felt very small, very small indeed, and very helpless. My, how helpless he did feel! If he had been uncomfortable before, he was twice as uncomfortable now. He was more than twice as uncomfortable. You see, he knew that that big pickerel couldn't possibly get him as long as he stayed on that board, which was his raft. But Snapper the Turtle could climb right up there after him if he felt like it. Anyway, he could upset that board, and then Danny wouldn't have a chance in the wide, wide world.

Perhaps you can guess how anxiously Danny watched those bright eyes of Snapper the Turtle. He could tell by those eyes that Snapper had not yet seen him. Danny just froze, which you know is the way little people keep still in times of danger. He hoped the Merry Little Breezes would stay away from him. He was afraid that if they should rumple up his fur Snapper would see that moving fur and would know that there was some one alive sitting on that board. Anyway, he might get curious enough to come over to find out what it was. So Danny hoped and hoped that the Merry Little Breezes would keep away.

"Oh, dear," thought Danny. "Oh, dear, this is dreadful!" This is the most dreadful fix I ever was in. Whatever shall I do? It's bad enough to be in a tight place when you have a chance to do something, but to be in a place like this with a hungry enemy on each side and sitting right out in plain sight all the time with nothing to do but to keep still, is awful. My, how hungry Snapper looks! What an awful mouth that fish has! If I ever get out of this, I'll never, never visit the Smiling Pool again."

One new regular and one supernumary officer was added to the police department force at the meeting of the court of common council held in the council chamber Monday night. Officer William Sharvan was unanimously elected a regular member of the force to serve as an "emergency officer" and Howard A. Ryan was added to the supernumary list.

The meeting was a short one, business being confined largely to small petitions and reports of officials and departments, being called to order at 8:35 o'clock by Mayor Milo R. Waters, with every member of the council in attendance.

Petitions read and action taken were as follows: For street light on Carroll avenue, referred to police commission with power; to have trees removed from in front of 22-24 Fairmount street, referred to public works commission and tree warden, with power; to remove tree from in front of No. 460 North Main street, referred to public works commission and tree warden, with power.

A petition from Max Sternlieb and others, requesting that Market street, from Main street to Water street, be cemented, was read by the clerk. Alderman Henry Gebrath stated that this called for an added expenditure but if sufficient funds were remaining after the Main street cement had been laid, the public works commission might do the work. The matter was then referred to the public works commission.

The police commission reported progress on the petition of Charles M. Gordon, for a light at 259 West Main street, and grants for lights at 149 Broadway and Rockwell street.

The police commission then made recommendation that Officer William Sharvan be made a regular member of the police force, his duties to be emergency. By vote of the council, Clerk Weston C. Pullen cast one affirmative ballot for his appointment. A similar course was followed on the recommendation of the police commission, that Howard A. Ryan be added as a supernumary.

One claim was presented, that of Mrs. Margaret Collins, who claims damages of $50 from the city as a result of sprains and abrasions received in a fall on Union street. The claim was referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

Two resolutions were adopted: that the city treasurer be instructed to pay to Brown & James, attorneys for Alice V. COURT DROPS CHARGES AGAINST NINE DRIVERS

Parking head on to the curb at Union square instead of rear to the curb resulted in nine local autoists being summoned into court Monday morning. Judge Arthur F. Libby allowed them to depart, informing them that there was no case against them. He stated that he had been in communication with Mayor Milo R. Waters and had found out that the signs to park with the rear of the car to the curb, had been erected during the term of Judge Allyn L. Brown, as mayor. By the new parking ordinance enacted last January, the ordinance, parking rear to the curb, was revoked. It now remains with the police commissioners to make a ruling to cover parking at Union square and the old signs have been removed. No charge was made against the nine automobile owners.

Edward J. Graham, superintendent of schools, stated that his car had become boxed in on Shetucket street and that he was compelled to leave it there while he went to his office to keep an appointment. Returning he found a tag there as he had left his car for 50 minutes in a 40 minute zone. He then moved his car, the machines which had pulled in close to his car having been moved away. Judge Libby stated that under the circumstances he would enter a nolle, which was done.

William Seifert, driver for the American Railway express was charged with parking too far from the curb. He entered a plea of not guilty and Judge Libby continued the case for six months.

Judge Libby suggested that the Norwich Gas & Electrical company ask the city for a restricted parking area in front of the office on Shetucket street, as the city ordinance, as it now reads, makes it impossible for them to park in front of the office.

Michael Houlihan, driver of car No. 8, used by the company, stated that he parked in front of the office to do emergency work as there was no place to park on the other side of the street where 40 minutes is allowed. Judge Libby informed him that his case was similar to that of Shepard B. Palmer, who was also engaged in city business. He imposed a fine of $5.

Carl Sharp, a stranger in town, coming from Pomfret, parked in front of an undertaking establishment, this being a violation of the city ordinance. His case was nolled and City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins suggested that signs should be put up in front of undertaking establishments, theatres, hotels and other places where no parking is allowed, these being restricted areas.

Violators who paid $5 each for their failure to obey the ordinances were Hector Draycott of Rockville, Levias L. Gould of Norwich, Benjamin Dubson of New York, Tony Vincente and Isadore Itzbitski.

Michael Koslowski, of 50 Golden street was sent to jail for three months upon being found guilty of non-support. Koslowski had been ordered by the court to pay $10 a week to his wife, but he chose to leave town. A daughter testified that the father had not sent her mother any money.

The usual intoxication cases were heard, one man going to jail.

Charles Schuman, of New London, was notified to appear in court this (Tuesday) morning, charged with not having an operator's license with him and failure to obey traffic rules.

FLAG RAISING AT GREENEVILLE PLAYGROUND

Wednesday evening will be Greeneville's gala day. This date will mark a signal event in the history of this thriving community. Tomorrow night the Greeneville playgrounds will celebrate the erection of its first flagpole.

For the past two months all Greeneville has been eagerly anticipating this noteworthy event. It is but justice now to pay a small tribute to Edward Sullivan for his great share in this splendid undertaking. He and his assistant, Celine Bowen, were the first to foster this novel idea for the betterment of their playground. With the sanctioning of the proposed project of a flag-pole raising, Coach Sullivan began an untiring subscription campaign among the local merchants, clubs and even private population. Due to the generous response of the many subscribers success has rewarded his effort—subscription money has purchased a magnificent thirty-five foot, gilt-edged flag-pole. The Daughters of Veterans, as a token of their true spirit of patriotism and public-spiritedness have donated a handsome silk banner of the stars and stripes—an appropriate companion for its flag-pole.

Wednesday's celebration will be well worth the journey to Greeneville. The evening's programme will be inaugurated with a parade, followed by a band concert which will immediately precede a picturesque patriotic pageant. Mayor Waters will honor the occasion with an opening address. Miss Florence Hoffman will speak in behalf of the D. of V. The flag raising will immediately precede, following which Rev. Charles H. Ricketts will give a brief address and Chairman William J. Fitzgerald will talk in in behalf of the playground association.

Invitations to patriotic organizations, the Rotary club, Chamber of Commerce, Lions club and Boy Scouts of America have been extended. The following patriotic organizations are expected to be represented: Grand Army of the Republic, Woman's Relief Corps, Sons of Veterans, Daughters of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Sons of American Revolution, Daughters of American Revolution.

Swahn's band will render the following concert programme concert at 7 p. m.:

March U. S. Field Artillery	Sousa
The Charter of Liberty	Hughes
America
Overture Felicia	Gruenwald
Popular Medley—Let It Rain, Let It Pour	Feist
Medley Songs of the Boys in Blue	Laurendeau
Fox Trot—O Katharina	Feist
Selection—Jack O' Lantern	Caryll
Popular Hits—No Wonder	Feist
Star Spangled Banner

The order of the evening's programme will be as follows:

6.45 parade, 7 band selections, 7.20 patriotic playlet, 7.40 Mayor Milo R. Waters, 7.45 Miss Florence Hoffman, patriotic instructor, Daughters of Veterans, flag raising, America, address, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts; Star Spangled Banner, band concert.

ESCAPED FARM INMATE CAUGHT AT WESTERLY

Rondau Corvin, 30, was taken into custody in Westerly Monday morning near the Westerly branch of the Industrial Trust company on High street by Patrolman Fred Ferraro, having taken French leave from "The Farm" at Norwich State Hospital. Hospital authorities were communicated with and Thomas Duggan and Herbert Baker of the hospital force went to Westerly by auto to give the man "a pleasant ride back."

Henry Kunslan, 24, described as wearing a light coat, dark hat and blue overalls, who quit the state institution with Corvin and known to have a penchant for returning to Norwich Town, was also sought by the hospital authorities. When asked where Kunslan had gone, Corvin gazed at his right foot, where he had fastened the sole and upper of his shoe together with a large safety-pin, and mumbled, "for pleasure."

REV. LIONEL E. W. MITCHELL TO GO TO NEW HAVEN

Ran Into Parked Car.

Friday evening a Ford touring car operated by Edward W. Blackford of Church srteet ran into a Cadillac touring car owned by Lloyd G. Hall of 160 Broadway. Mr. Hall's machine, he says, was parked by the curb near the top of Broadway Hill.

LINEMAN BADLY HURT IN FALL

Shortly after 2 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning, Max Dempske, about 25, lineman in the employ of the Connecticut Co., while at work on wires at Franklin square fell to the pavement, 25 feet below and was badly injured. He was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital in the police patrol in an unconscious condition.

Mr. Dempski, with other members of the crew, was engaged in shifting wires on Main street and as he was working along the wires he evidently received a shock from one of the leaders carrying 550 volts, throwing him off balance and he fell to the ground, a distance of about 25 feet.

In falling he struck his head on the cement curbing, cutting a deep gash in the back of his head, rendering him unconscious, also breaking his right arm below the elbow and shoulder. One of the workmen, hearing Dempski cry out as he touched the leader, tried to catch him as he fell but was unable to hold him. This broke his fall.

Word was sent to the hospital for the ambulance but as the police patrol was the first to reach the scene the injured man was rushed to the hospital by the police.

At the Backus hospital shortly after 3 o'clock this morning the report was that Dempski will probably recover. An X-ray is to be taken today to determine whether or not there is a fracture of the right arm.

BUSY SESSION FOR THE WATERFORD TOWN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WATERFORD, Aug. 3.—The town court had half a dozen cases to claim attention at its session this evening. Seif Hoff was prosecuted for violation of the liquor law in having booze in his possession. He was declared to have been selling to a man and woman passenger. He was convicted and fined $100, with half the fine remitted. Joseph Kane of Hartford was charged with a breach of the peace. He is represented by Major John Buckley, of Hartford, and the latter is taking a vacation to recover from illness, so the case was continued for two weeks. Mary Sullivan was charged with "hogging the road", but the complaint was not substantiated and the case was dismissed.

J. W. Worrall was charged with a breach of peace in having beaten his son and daughter. The matter was one that the court nolled on payment of costs. Paul Gager was charged with breach of the peace. He was summoned into court by State Policeman Giles Watson, but at the request of Watson the case was continued a week. J. W. Smithson was charged with breach of the peace, it being alleged that he attacked his daughter and struck her in the face, the blow producing a free flow of blood. The girl complained to the state police. She failed to appear as a witness against her father so the complaint was dismissed.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Joseph F. Smith

Following a general breaking down, due to advanced years, Mrs. Katharine Spang Smith, 83, widow of Joseph F. Smith, died Monday morning at seven o'clock, at her home 409 Washington street, where she had lived for the past 58 years.

Mrs. Smith who was born April 8th, 1842, in Germany, had been in exceptionally good health until about ten days ago. She came to this country when about ten years of age, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Spang, they having located in Philadelphia, Penn.

November 26th, 1863, she was united in marriage with Joseph F. Smith, of Philadelphia. A few years later, Mr. and Mrs. Smith came to Norwich, where since then a successful florist business has been conducted under their management, Mrs. Smith continuing at the head of the business, since the death of her husband in October, 1915. Joseph F. Smith was the first one to conduct a florist business in Norwich.

Mrs. Smith was the mother of nine children, eight of whom are now living—Edward A., of Mystic; Frederick W., of Sierra Madre, Cal., George A. and Frank R., of Norwich; Mrs. Elizabeth Harvey, of Stonington; Mrs. Annie S. Tubbs, Clara L., and Katherine D. Smith, of Norwich.

There also are six grand-sons who survive—Raymond E. Smith, of Mystic; Frank D. Smith, of Meriden; William Smith, of Long Beach, Cal.; Robert, George and Harold Smith, of Norwich.

The large list of warm friends possessed by Mrs. Smith, in Norwich and elsewhere, learned of her death with sorrow. During her many years residence in Norwich Town she had endeared herself to many by her affability, kindness and cheery personality. In the happy home circle where her chief interests were, her life was one of pleasure and contentment.

For many years prior to the death of her husband and since then, the hospitality of the Smith home has been extended to many friends and acquaintances, who always availed themselves of an opportunity to spend an evening in games or sociability with "Pa and Ma" Smith, as they were more intimately known by those most dear.

A loyal wife, mother and friend, she was most companionable, especially among younger people and it ever was a pleasure to be in her company.

The sympathy of the community goes out to the members of her family, from whom she received the most devoted attention.

Mrs. John L. Campbell

Word has been received in this city of the death of Bertha H. Coskey, wife of John L. Campbell, a former Norwich resident, in a Boston hospital Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. She was born in Meriden, Dec. 10, 1894, the daughter of the late Andrew and Frances Coskey and for about a year she was a resident of Boston. Her marriage to John L. Campbell took place in Baltimore, Oct. 12, 1922. He survives her with five sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Charles Devoe, Mrs. Jacob Suter, Misses Amelia and Amelia Coskey of East Hartford and Mrs. John Miller of Waterbury, William and Frank Coskey of East Hartford and John Coskey of New Britain.

OVER 30 REGISTER FOR FARMER'S WEEK

STORRS, Aug. 3—Plans for the annual Farmer's week at the Connecticut Agricultural college to be held from Tuesday to Friday inclusive, were completed today, and all is in readiness for the influx of agriculturalists which is expected to take place tomorrow. Programs in poultry, beekeeping, dairy and livestock, floriculture, fruit growing, homemaking and other allied interests will be offered during the week, and it is expected that hundreds will be in attendance for the meetings.

To Frank Kline of Spring City, Pa., goes the honor of being the first to register for the 1925 Farmer's week. Mr. Kline arrived in Storrs last Saturday, thereby making certain to be here on time for the opening of the meetings tomorrow. To E. Newton Searles of Pomfret, president of the Connecticut Poultry association goes the honor of being the first Connecticut man to register. Mr. Searles registered early this afternoon, coming in early for the meetings of the Connecticut Poultry association. A party of New Jersey poultrymen, led by W. H. Allen of the New Jersey Extension service and Elmer H. Wene, prominent Vineland, N. J., poultryman, arrived here this afternoon. Over thirty were registered up to three-thirty this afternoon.

Although the official opening of Farmer's week does not come until tomorrow poultrymen of the state gathered here today for business meetings and the annual banquet of the Connecticut Poultry association.

Following a meeting of the executive committee of the poultry association this afternoon announcement was made that Philo T. Platt of Newtown, the newly appointed state commissioner of agriculture would tomorrow be nominated as an honorary member of the association. This inaugurates a new policy in this organization of poultrymen and the statement was made that from now on honorary members would be elected from time to time, though not more than two would be elected in any one year. A business meeting of the Connecticut Baby Chick association of which A. B. Hall, of Wallingford is president was held here this afternoon.

Connecticut poultry men made merry tonight when the annual Connecticut Poultry association banquet was held in the college dining hall. Over 150 poultrymen including visitors from Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and New Jersey were present. E. Newton Searles of Pomfret, president of the Connecticut Poultry association, as toastmaster introduced the speakers. These included W. H. Allen, poultry specialist from New Jersey, B. W. Ellis of Storrs, director of the C. A. C. extension service, William F. Kirkpatrick, professor of poultry husbandry at Storrs, George A. Cosgrove, of Willington, veteran poultry man, Mrs. A. E. Anthony, of Mansfield Center, S. McLean Buckingham of Watertown a member of the board of trustees of C. A. C., Woodbury, O. Rogers of Bolton, Me., a former Connecticut poultry keeper and past president of the Connecticut Poultry association and "Honest Dan" Lambert, veteran Rhode Island poultry man.

Asserting that the problems of the Connecticut poultrymen are similar to those faced by the New Jersey poultrymen, Mr. Allen in his talk suggested cooperation as a means of overcoming the difficulties commonly experienced and an association of poultrymen working along legislative, educational and social lines would do much to iron the difficulties experienced, he said.

It then evaporates and leaves only a pleasant, clean odor. Wall paper or drapes are not stained. FLY-TOX is harmless to humans. Those stray, elusive flies that invade the most carefully screened homes, are quickly and easily eliminated with FLY-TOX.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

The new Paramount picture which made its local debut at the Broadway theatre last night suggests a problem in filmathematics. Take a couple of savage South Sea Islands and add one brave and fearless white man; multiply that by several hundred head-hunting cannibals; then add one woman soldier of fortune and two unscrupulous money lenders; divide the sum total by one romance and at least a dozen dynamic thrills—and the answer is—?
There can be only one correct answer, and that is—Adventure, the title of this latest of dramatic screen plays which Victor Fleming produced from Jack London's famous novel of the same name.
Victor Fleming, the director, has many successful pictures to his credit but Adventure outshines them all. Photographically, the picture is flawless and scenically it leaves nothing to be desired.
The cast is one of the finest and includes some of moviedom's top-notch favorites. Tom Moore, Pauline Starke, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton have featured roles and their individual performances are worthy of the highest praise.
Other pictures include a Mermaid Comedy and Kinograms. Vaudeville Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Coming to the Breed Wednesday.

"Love's Whirlpool," the new James Kirkwood-Lila Lee picture, which comes to the Breed theatre Wednesday and Thursday, is a story with a powerful theme. It deals not only with the regeneration of a master crook and a hard-hearted banker, through love, but shows how the credulous public is hoodwinked by fake seances.
Madge Bellamy is featured with James Kirkwood and Lila Lee. Others in the cast are Robert Agnew, Mathew Betz, Margaret Livingston, Clarence Geldert and Joe Mills.

Heels were originally put on shoes to prevent a horseman's foot from slipping in the stirrup.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Quick Quaker Rolled Oats.

Business men make a grave mistake, scientists agree, in going without breakfast.
Going without breakfast requires the body to go without energy replenishment for seventeen hours, including two most important day periods, and, after all, breakfast may be had without imposing on the woman of the household at all.
During sleep, bodily processes engage themselves almost wholly in repairing the wear of the previous day. Used up vitality is restored. Like an automobile or a radio storage battery which has been discharging its energy all day, the body is now being "charged" for another day.
That process uses up the energy supplies of the body. If breakfast is passed by then for another five or six hours the "battery" must go on discharging energy without any replenishment. It takes some time for food to be assimilated, so that it is well on in the afternoon before help comes to the hard-worked body.
Many men omit breakfast for two reasons: They find heavy food makes them feel sluggish, and they don't want to impose in hot weather on the woman who must stand over a hot stove to prepare it.
Yet, like other great discoveries, the remedy is "so simple it is strange it wasn't thought of before." The remedy is Quick Quaker rolled oats.
Heavily laden with energizing elements, yet so easily digested that the body is not fatigued in warm weather to assimilate it, this simple food ends the sluggishness following heavy breakfasts, and brings to the body quick replenishment of vitality.
Since it cooks in from three to five minutes, requiring no attention meantime, it will be ready for the breakfast table while the woman of the house is brushing her hair and donning an attractive morning gown or house apron.

At the Lyceum, New London

A famous woman playwright's latest and most laughable play is coming to the New London Lyceum Friday and Saturday, Aug. 7 and 8, with a popular matinee on Saturday. Zelda Sears' "Broke!" with George MacFarlane will be seen. This comedy, with incidental music by Harold Levey, is the latest work by the author of "Lady Billy," "The Clinging Vine," "The Magic Ring" and "Lollipop," all of which have played here with success.
"Broke!" is one of the most novel comedies in years, for it reverses the popular idea that a rich man's life is all joy.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New York.

Stocks strong; high priced industrials at record highs.

Foreign exchanges: steady; Danish kroner rallies sharply.

Cotton barely steady; rains south Texas.

Sugar featureless.

Coffee lower; European selling.

Chicago.

Wheat firm; bullish spring wheat estimates.

Corn steady; bullish visible supply.

Cattle lower.

Hogs higher; big packers inactive.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Constructive forces were again at work in today's stock market, which was featured by the buoyancy of the high-priced industrial shares. Bear selling, motivated by the higher call money rate and the cut of 25 cents a barrel in Gulf Coast Crude prices, failed to make much headway except in the oil shares, which displayed a heavy tone. Trading was in moderate volume, the day's sales aggregating about one and one-quarter million shares.

A spirited advance in high priced industrials indicated a scanty floating supply of those stocks. General Electric soared 13 points to $309 3-8, its highest price since the segregation of the Electric Bond and Share properties, and then eased to 307 3-4. American Can soared over 6 points to a record top at 214 1-4, maintaining the most of its gain. International Telephone closed 5 points higher at 104 1-2 after having attained a new peak price 1 point above that figure. Du Pont attained a new maximum price of 197 3-4 and then slipped back to 196, up 4 1-4 on the day. General Railway Signal jumped 6 1-4 points to a new top at 226. Sears Roebuck closed more than 4 points higher at 103 1-4.

Substantial gains were recorded by a number of the lower priced specialties. Frank G. Shattuck moved up over 4 points to 80 3-8, a new top, and more than doubled the year's low. Simmons Company duplicated its 1925 high in response to a report of unusually larger earnings in the first half of the year. Mullinson was run up nearly 3 points to 28 7-8 on reports that negotiations practically had been completed for the sale of a large block of stock to the DuPont interests. Coca Cola reached new high territory by crossing 133.

American Sugar, Brown Shoe, Electric Storage Battery, Great Western Sugar, International Harvester, May Department Stores, Public Service of New Jersey, Savage Arms, Texas Gulf Sulphur, United States Cast Iron Pipe and Westinghouse Air Brake were among the many issues to show net gains of 2 to nearly 80 points.

Established Products touched another new record high in reflection of the semi-annual report showing net earnings of nearly $.50 a share. New York Canners touched a new top at 52 after selling as low as 45 1-2.

Nash Motors broke 29 points to 331, but recovered all but two points of its loss. Independent Oil and Gas fell back over 2 points to 7 and net losses of a point or more were recorded by Marland, Colorado Fuel, Mid-Continent, Standard Oil of California, and Standard Oil of New Jersey and Texas Company.

Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent and then advanced to 4 1-2 in reflection of the usual heavy demand for funds in connection with first of the month requirements. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was restricted by the observance of the bank holiday in Great Britain, but parities held relatively steady. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.85 1-4 and French francs just below 4.75 cents. Danish kroner rallied 24 points to around 22.50 cents and Norwegian krones added 10 points higher around 18.20 cents.

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Bond prices moved irregularly higher in today's dealings the improvement though slight, being reflected principally in the obligations of first grade rails and public utilities. Trading generally was marked by the same dullness that has characterized recent sessions. Government issues, reflecting the recent increase in time money rates, lost ground, the treasury 4 1-4s and 4s showing the largest declines.

Realizing checked the spectacular advance of Florida, Western and Northern 7s, a net loss of 7 3-4 points being recorded. New York, Westchester & Boston 4 1-2s, "Nickel Plate" 5 1-2s and Missouri, Kansas & Texas 5s "A" also developed weakness, but Western Pacific first 5s, Southern Railway 6 1-2s and Virginia Railway 5s each moved up a point or so.

Strength was displayed by Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7 1-2s which advanced 1 1-4 points. Strong spots in the public utility group included Utah Power & Light 5s and Western Electric 5s.

The foreign division showed more gains than losses, the Belgian 6 1-2s and Buenos Aires 6 1-2s standing out in the list.

Bonds called for payment in August will approximate $38,800,000 against $56,375,000 in July and $45,415,000 in August last year.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $24,000,000, three-year 6 per cent. notes of the Tokio Electric Light company, limited, at 98 7-8 to yield over 6.10 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—With sensational crop damage reports at hand from Canada and with an outlook that the 1925 yield of wheat in the United States will be only a little in excess of home needs, the wheat market today took a fresh upward jump of $ 1-2c a bushel. Closing prices on wheat were unsettled at $ 1-2c to 4 1-2c net gain, including September at $1.57 3-4 to 1.58 and December 1.57 1-2 to 1.57 3-4. Corn finished 3-4 to 1 1-8c up, oats showing 7-8@1c to 1c advance, and provisions ranging from 3c decline to a rise of 15c.

Rapid upward swings in the value of wheat began as soon as the market opened, and they continued until shortly before the close. Pessimistic crop advices from Canada, vouched for by the foremost crop expert of that country, were current here before trading began, and it also was confirmed that new unofficial estimates of wheat production this season in the United States had been reduced about 17,000,000 bushels as compared with a month ago. Inasmuch as figures on domestic yield already were far below last year's harvest, total, the latest shrinkage of the aggregate had an immediate disturbing effect when taken in connection with reported severe crop losses in Canada.

Corn and oats owed their advance mainly to wheat strength. Besides the visible supply statement as to corn was bullish.

Provisions were firmer, sympathizing with hog values and with grain.

CURB MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Strength and activity of the public utility issues was the feature of today's irregularly higher curb market. Middle West Utilities soared nearly 9 points to a record top at 124 3-4 and then cancelled half the day's gain; American Light & Traction moved up 3 points to a new peak at 189 1-2 and Southeastern Power & Light, Power Corporation of New York, Electric Bond & Share and National Public Service B closed 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points higher on buying influenced by earnings and merger reports.

Oils continued sluggish in reflection of a sharp cut in Gulf Coast Crude prices. Humble Oil dropped 3 1-2 points to 61 1-2 and Reiter-Foster sagged 2 points, but the losses in the other active issues were held to fractions.

Industrials were mixed; Fox Film moved up 1 point to a new top at 59 and Pathe recorded a similar gain at 56 1-2; Serv-El closed 3 points higher at 27 1-2 after attaining a record top at 28 3-4. Other electrical refrigeration issues were unchanged.

Speculative activity in the mining list was confied largely to the cheap stocks, Kay Copper duplicating its recent high record.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Hormidas Disco, Napoleon Disco, Miss Marilda Disco and Miss Aldea Disco, of North B. street, left Monday in their automobile for a month's tour of places of interest across the Canadian border. They will visit Quebec, Montreal, Sherbrooke, St. Anne de Benupre, and tour along the St. Lawrence river, returning through New York state and making a stop at Plattsburg, where they will visit relatives.

Richard Kyle, of Norwich, was a visitor in the village Sunday.

The recreation park and pavilion at the J. B. Martin Co., Ltd., continues to attract the attention of the passer-by, as beautiful cannas are in bloom there this week.

Many of the village youngsters are visiting Mohegan Park to see the red and blue macaw recently presented to the park by Robert Graham, of Cristobal, Canal Zone, Panama, who is spending the summer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Emerson, of Lisbon. Although the bird is short its tail feathers at present, its queer antics on its swing, make it a favorite for the children who visit the park zoo.

Arcarde Plante has resigned his position with the No. 1 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hamel and family have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

Reports of the state highway commissioner show that the contract for building the new state road from Merchants avenue to Norwich Town has been let to a New Haven contractor. It is believed that the work will be started at once and will be well along if not entirely finished by winter. For several years this road has remained in its present condition, viz, half state road and half country road. A special town meeting, well attended by the voters of the fifth district, who are to benefit greatly by the improvement of the road, and the hard work of the selectmen of the town in attempting to get the work started, have had their results. Taftville people can now reach Williamantic and points further north without going into the city of Norwich. The road also is a direct route to the William W. Backus hospital and the Yantic cemetery. The Sacred Heart cemetery will also front on the state road, which will convenience a great many people, as the road is practically impassable in its present condition during some months of the year.

Work has progressed rapidly on the new garage owned by Dieudonne Dorais of Norwich avenue, and the building is now being roofed.

Two cars were killed by automobiles on Providence street Sunday morning.

GENERAL PLAN FOR DEVELOPMENT OF NORWICH WATER SUPPLY

CITIZENS WILL VOTE TONIGHT ON NEW WATER SUPPLY PROJECT

A large attendance is looked for at the special city meeting called for this (Tuesday) evening in the town hall for the purpose of taking action on an appropriation not to exceed $1,080,000 to provide a permanent water supply for Norwich. Realizing that the city is constantly faced by the serious problem of a water shortage and that the consumption of water is more than the present reservoirs will yield during a dry period, the board of water commissioners, after considerable study of the matter, have recommended that the city acquire and construct a permanent water supply with a reservoir on what is known as the Deep River watershed.

Above is shown a general plan, drawn by Chandler and Palmer, for the development of a permanent water supply for Norwich, on the Deep River watershed. As will be seen from the plan the reservoir would be located within the town of Colchester, to the northwest of Norwich. The water shed covers a considerable portion of the town of Colchester and extends south into the town of Salem.

The water would be drawn from the north end of the reservoir through a 24 inch pipe in a north east and easterly direction to the state road at Bozrahville and from there would follow the state road through Fitchville and Yantic and on to Harland's corner in Norwich Town where it would meet the city pipes. With reference to the permanent development of the water supply, the general plan says:

The pipe line to Deep River would cross the main stream near the old Yantic paper mill site. This stream at this point is higher than the overflow of Stony Brook, and if the pipe line could be laid to this point this season, water could be taken into the city from this temporary connection without the use of a pump.

The estimated cost of the total project of Deep River with a 24-inch pipe line as far as Broad street in the city, is $1,270,000. This will furnish 5,500,000 gallons daily. A dam 20 feet lower could be built, giving a storage reservoir of 400,000,000 gallons. This would yield 2,500,000 gallons daily and would last the city quite a number of years. The pipe could be laid to Harland's Corner, where a connection could be made with the 16-inch mains. Later it could be extended to Broad street. This lower dam and shorter pipe line would reduce the total estimate by $130,000.

DISCLOSES ERROR IN ADMISSION OF LETTERS

The full text of the opinion of the Connecticut court of errors on the appeal of Ernest Schlefer from conviction and state's prison sentence for an address delivered before the striking shopmen on the New Haven road on November 22, 1922, discloses that error in admission of three letters offered by the prosecution, pejorative remarks made by State's Attorney Alton A. Alling before the jury, and evidence too remote prompted Justice George W. Wheeler and his associates to grant a new trial.

The Schlefer trial was presided over by Judge Newell Jennings in the criminal superior court. The prosecution was represented by State's Attorney Alling and Assistant State's Attorney Walter M. Pickett, while the defendant was represented by Attorney Thomas J. Spellacy, Benjamin Slade and Samuel Platcow.

"In 1917," the opinion states, "the accused was an organizer for the International Association of Machinists, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and at the same time in the service of the United States government without pay in recruiting men for war service at the Fore River shipyard. The state, upon cross-examination of the accused, while a witness in his own behalf, offered in evidence for the purpose of affecting his credibility these letters which indicated that at the time he was serving the government in war time he was preaching anarchy and advocating social revolution among the employes of his shop yard. The court admitted the letters over the objection that they were irrelevant, concerned collateral matter, would tend to create prejudice against the accused, were remote and did not affect his credibility."

SUMMONED FOR VIOLATING LOCAL TRAFFIC RULES

Charles Schuman, 61 Franklin street, New London will be in the Norwich city court Tuesday morning charged with violation of the motor vehicle law, also charged with violation of the Norwich city traffic ordinances. Schuman, it is alleged, was operating his machine about the local streets Sunday without having his operator's license signed also operated his car on the left hand side of a traffic beacon. Chief Linton, of the Norwich police department, informed the New London department, informed the New London Schuman's arrest, but on the assurance of Schuman that he would present himself in the Norwich court this (Tuesday) morning, the accused was not taken into custody.

To be Buried in New Haven

The body of Miss Ella M. Morann, 52, who died in Preston, Sunday, was sent to New Haven Monday morning at 10:25 o'clock, relatives accompanying the body to that city. Burial is to take place in New Haven.

SECTIONAL MEETING TO START AT STORRS TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS Aug. 3—Sectional meetings in beekeeping, poultry husbandry and homemaking will be held Tuesday, the first day of farmers week. Discussions in the various sections will be led by authorities of national reputation, members of the faculty at C. A. C., extension specialists of the college, and successful farmers of this and other states.

The beekeepers on Tuesday and Wednesday will discuss diseases, apiary methods and selling methods, led by experts from within and without the state. Feeding and sanitation will be emphasized in the poultrymen's program on Wednesday. A feature of their program will be the dedication of the Card Memorial Poultry house, which has been built by the Connecticut Poultry association in honor of the late Judge W. H. Card, of Manchester, nationally known poultry authority and a strong supporter of the Connecticut Poultry association.

Dedication of the new "Horticultural Storage building" will be a feature of the fruit growers program, which will be held Wednesday. Their discussions will emphasize the procedures and difficulties experienced in fruit storage.

Connecticut's Feed dealers will have their annual conference at the college, and this year they are combining it with the farmers week program. Their program is interlocking with the dairy and livestock program, which will cover three days. This will include the growing of young stock, the feeding of producing animals and milk marketing.

Last year's conference for rural religious workers was so successful that a second conference is being held this year under the leadership of the Rev. George B. Gilbert, of Middletown. The topic of the country home will be discussed by rural workers representing the Catholic, Jewish, and Protestant faiths.

In addition to these specialized programs there will be programs for home makers, daily with topics varying from how to set up a sewing machine to how to choose dresses and hats. Friday will be devoted to the health question, with addresses by Dr. Valeria Parker, of the American Social Hygiene association, Miss Nickerson of the state board of health, and Dr. Jackson of the New Haven Children's bureau.

Even the children are not forgotten, for already a playground has been set up where the youngsters can be left for a good time while their parents attend the meetings. Capable instructors will be in attendance at the playground, and a nurse will be on duty at the infirmary where infants may be taken care of during program hours.

Two of the evening speakers are George L. Farley, state club leader of Massachusetts, and Charles M. Gardener, formerly master of the Massachusetts grange.

ROBERT GAIR IS STILL ACTIVE AT 86

"Retire? I should say not!"

Thus at the age of 86, said Robert Gair, head of the Robert Gair company, with a manufacturing plant in Montville.

Mr. Gair is 86 years old and he spent his birthday at his summer home at Westhampton Beach, L. I., with his sons and daughters, and a few other close relatives and friends. There was a birthday dinner and birthday congratulations.

Mr. Gair does not believe in retiring merely on account of age. His favorite saying is:

"As soon as a man retires from active business he might as well retire altogether. Many men would make a great deal more of their lives if they took as their motto, 'Never lie down.'"

So, living up to his own motto, Mr. Gair keeps actively at work. Three times a week he motors in from his summer home at Westhampton Beach, to see that everything goes along as it should. In winter when he is closer to his office, his contact with business is much closer than that.

The head of the Robert Gair company recalls that he cast his first ballot in 1860—and for Abraham Lincoln. He entered the Civil War with his regiment, the 79th Highlanders, in April, 1861, and participated in 17 engagements. He started in the paper business on Reade St., Manhattan, and moved to Brooklyn in 1887.

To young men his advice is, first, to make sure they are in the line of work for which they are best suited, and second, that being sure, "give everything you have to your business."

STATE EMPLOYES ALLOWED THEIR TRAVELING EXPENSES

Attorney-General Frank E. Healy have given a verbal opinion to the state comptroller's office that employes of the state under the commissioner or head of a department should be allowed their traveling expenses, such as those which are incurred by those who live outside Hartford. The ruling of the attorney-general will affect a large number of the payroll of the state.

The attorney-general himself although he has an appropriation of $2,000 for expenses, confined his bill of expenses to the expenditures which he incurs in the business of the state, such as going to other cities to represent the state in the trial of cases. Last year he spent but $59.42 out of his appropriation for expenses and turned the balance back to the state treasury.

Some state officials come from their homes in the country and stay at hotels in Hartford at the expense of the state, while others charge their meals to the state. Under the ruling of the attorney-general this custom must cease. Until the comptroller has a written opinion from the attorney-general he will not be able to state definitely what course he will take. In the meantime, his deputy, Mr. Wilkins, will advise the employes interested what to do in order to avoid a conflict of opinion with the attorney-general.

LAW COMPELS BRIDE TO PAY FOR WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS

Under the general statutes of the state of Connecticut, wedding announcements are not for the joint benefit of both parties, according to a finding by Judge H. A. Ross of the Hartford city court. Judgment was directed for the Carleton Engraving Co., to recover $29.34 from Caroline E. Clafin of Burnside as a result of an alleged unpaid bill of $28 for wedding announcements.

The action was instituted against Charles R. R. Chaffin but during the trial the court granted the company's motion that Caroline E. Claflin, his wife, be made a co-defendant.

"It is the opinion of the court," says a memorandum of decision, "that the plaintiff sustain the burden of proof that the articles were ordered by her subsequent to her marriage. It did not appear, however, that the articles had in fact gone to the support of the family or for the joint benefit of both within the meaning of section 5275 of the general statutes. The court accordingly denies a judgment against the husband."

FELL FROM STAGING WHILE PAINTING HOUSE

Bernie Brayman of 294 Laurel Hill avenue sustained painful injuries when he fell a distance of 25 feet while painting at the home of Judge Nelson J. Ayling Friday afternoon. He was working on a swing staging and in some manner slipped and fell to the ground, receiving a badly sprained wrist and back. He was taken to the Backus hospital, where his injuries were treated by two hospital physicians and Dr. A. C. Freeman. Following the necessary medical treatment he was taken to his home where he has showed improvement.

New Postal Stamp Rule.

Postmasters of Connecticut have received inquiries from manufacturers as to a reported change in postal regulation which would require all parcel post packages to have stamped on them the words "Return postage guaranteed." A rubber stamp maker in Hartford had sent to many of these manufacturers a notice of the reported regulation, but the postmasters state that the regulation applies only to C. O. D. and insured parcels.

Wm. R. Perkins Out of Hospital.

William R. Perkins, of Norwich, who has been a patient for over two weeks at a New London hospital where he underwent an operation for appendicitis, was dismissed at the week end and is steadily gaining, at his home, 142 McKinley avenue.

The body of James O'Connell, 74, who died in Preston, Sunday, was taken in charge by Cummings & Ring. Relatives from Burlington, Vt., came to this city to arrange for burial and the body was sent to Holyoke, Mass., Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be in that city.

NORWICH TOWN

Sale and festival, First M. E. church, Huntington Green, this evening, if pleasant.—Adv.

A missionary social, under the auspicies of the missionary committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, of the First Congregational church, was held Friday evening, in the chapel, with an attendance of twenty or more.

The social was given for the purpose of doing work for Rev. and Mrs. Edward Huntington Smith, who are soon to again take up their missionary work in Ing Hok, China, where they have been carrying on the Master's work for many years. They return after a leave of absence of about a year in their native land.

During the evening, while the girls were making bags for toilet articles, also bags for sewing materials, which bags will be filled with such necessities, and at which time the boys were pasting post-cards together, Miss Jessie E. Hyde and Mrs. Burton Jopson, chairman of the missionary committe, told stories about China.

The chapel was decorated with Chinese banners and signs.

At the conclusion of work, several games that are played in China were led. In the contest of eating rice with chop-sticks, Miss Victoria St. Martin won first honors and Lyle Johnson, second, the competition being close.

Later, tea and wafers were served by the committee in charge.

When returning to their home in China, Rev. and Mrs. Smith will be accompanied by their youngest daughter, Margaret The two older daughters are to remain in America for a continued period. Miss Helen Smith, a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, is to devote herself to a fine position, while her sister Miss Eugene Smith will attend Wheaton College at Norton, Mass. near Boston.

At the Sacred Heart church, Sunday morning, at both masses, when the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan made the announcements for the day, words of appreciation were expressed to all who in any way assisted in making the recent lawn fete on Huntington Green, the success that it was. In recognition of the handsome sum of $857.29, presented him Saturday, by the Altar society, Miss Nellie Kingsley, president, under whose auspices the fete was given, Rev. Father Brennan stated how very pleased he was and thanked the parishioners for their hearty co-operation as to achieve this fine result certainly meant hard work. The amount quoted is the net proceeds.

In closing, Father Brennan emphasized his gratitude to the First Methodist Episcopal parish, for the neighborly spirit in loaning tables chairs, benches, etc.

Since returning from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. John Leo Hassan (Helen Grace O'Connell) formerly of Norwich Town, have located in New Britain. Eventually they plan taking an apartment in Hartford, where Mr. Hasson is construction boss for the H. and H. Wales Lines company.

POETRY

INVITATION.

Arvia, east of the morning.
Before the daylight grayed.
I heard a night song's warning,
"This bubble-world shall fade.'

"The daytime, with its fire-flower,"
It sang, "shall fail and stray.
And beauty, like a brier-flower,
Shall pass—shall pass away."

Then soon the faint and far light
Would fade beyond a beam,
And we'd lie down without starlight
And there would be no ream.

But now, when the moon is bluest,
Like a shell that murmurs all,
I see this world in the truest
Of any I recall.

The sky's wild birds are glancing,
The sea's long waves are slaw;
It's all a place for dancing—
But no one seems to know.

Come with me to the meadows—
We'll dance your secret name,
With an outside dance in shadows
And an inside dance in flame.

The songs and the wings have slanted
And blow with a golden sound;
Life burns like a peak enchanted,
Oh, wild, enchanted, crowned!

All day, while songs from the heigh' fail,
We'll dance the valleys bright,
But we'll be on the hills at nightfal
In the lovely, lonely night.

Let's play we are a tune,
And make a kind of song
'bout the sun and moon
Before the stars were born.
You be the breath, I'll be the horn.
It will not take us long.
—Ridgeley Torrence in "Hesperides."

REMEMBERED SPRING.

When apple blossoms fall
I shall remember you.
And moonlight covers all
The earth with silver dew.

My breath will deepen when
I meet you in the lane.
The flame that knew me then
Will visit me again.

Your lips will speak the lie
In faith with their dread part,
But mirrored in your eye
I shall see your true heart.

"Goodnight," you'll say, and go
Into the orchard gloom.
Leaving the cold moon-glow,
Taking the night's perfume
—Arthur Wilson Eddy.

NEW COMMUTATION RATES EXPLAINED BY N. H. ROAD

Benjamin I. Spock, General Counsel of the Road, Calls Attention of New York State Commuters to the Discrimination That Has Prevailed Against Commuters in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, Where the Rates New Yorkers Are Protesting Have Been in Effect For a Long Period—Road Offers Receipts For Tickets Purchased by New York Commuters Since August 1

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Following announcement in Nyack, N. Y., today that the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad had agreed to issue to commuters between stations in New York state receipts for commutation tickets purchased since Aug. 1, 1925, under the new tariff allowed by the public service commission increasing the rates forty per cent, a statement was issued here tonight by Benjamin I. Spock, general counsel of the railroad, outlining the railroad's position in the case.

Mr. Spock stated that the company had been trying to increase its New York commutation rates for five years for two prime reasons, "first, because it is under a legal obligation to remove the unjust discrimination which has existed for five years against commuters in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, where the increased rates have been in effect for a long period, and secondly, the company's legal right to rid itself of conservatory rates which expired July 31, and to charge for service rendered increased rates which would more adequately compensate it."

One reason which Mr. Spock gave in connection with the company's willingness to issue receipts for commutation tickets was to relieve the commuters of the embarrassment in which they would find themselves in furnishing an adequate bond to the railroad in the event the injunction were granted to insure the company against loss in the event the new rates finally were approved.

"The question of increased railroad rates along our line has been agitated from time to time," the statement continues. "However, many persons do not care to think about such economic questions until the problem actually stares them in the face—this time meaning the payment of more money for commutation. Our case was presented to the interstate commerce commission in 1920, and as a result, an increase of 20 per cent. was granted to all railroads on interstate rates. At the same time we sought to increase the interstate rates 20 per cent. in the states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut and New York. This increase was granted after the various state bodies made a study of the situation in all states except New York.

"The mounting operation costs continued. Consequently toward the end of 1923 we again applied for permission to increase our interstate rates 20 per cent, and our intrastate rates a similar amount. The interstate commerce commission and the commissions of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut granted the second increase and the rates became effective January 15, 1924, on traffic within and between those states. New York still continued to study the problem, but in the meantime, New York commuters traveled for almost five years at from 20 to 40 per cent cheaper than did commuters in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

"Finally, the interstate commerce commission granted us the increase of 20 per cent in interstate rates and at the same time, the public service commission . . . granted a 40 per cent. increase in rates, which in effect meant the back increase of 20 per cent. and the later increase of another 20 per cent.—40 per cent. in all—and now there are those who would keep this raise from us."

Mr. Spock declared that the New Haven railroad had shown an increase in net operating revenue for the month of June, 1925, but that this increase had not been due to passenger earnings. "On the contrary," he declared, "the passenger earnings for June, 1925, were $160,471.12 less than for the same month in 1924, and the passenger earnings for the first six months of 1925 were $332,282.26 less than for the same period of 1924."

The general counsel for the road said that in deciding the case, the commission disallowed some of the principal claims of the company, and adopted the commuters' figures. Even on the commuters' figures, the commission decided that the company was nevertheless entitled to about $65,000 a month ($750,000 a year) to make the rates lawfully reasonable, he said. This amount, he continued, is only about half claimed by the company on its figures.

MLLE. SION FAILED BY MILE AND QUARTER TO SWIM ENGLISH CHANNEL

DOVER, England, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Mlle. Sion, the French girl swimmer failed tonight in her effort to swim the English channel. She was within a mile and a quarter of Dover when she gave up.

Mlle. Sion was overcome by the low temperature of the water.

Mlle. Sion left the water at 9:40 p. m., having been swimming for 13 hours and 30 minutes. This is a record for submersion by women.

Although she failed in her effort, Mlle. Sion set a record for women swimmers in the channel. Miss Harrison's five-mile approach being the best previous record.

Weather and water conditions were favorable when Mlle. Sion took her plunge at Cape Gris-Nez at 8:19 o'clock this morning. By mid-afternoon she had reached a point approximately halfway across the waterway, and early in the evening was within five miles of the pier at Dover the sea remained calm, but adverse tides held back the swimmer. At a quarter to eleven o'clock tonight she fought her way in against the rising tide to about four miles from her objective. Rain began falling about this time. At 11 o'clock she beat her way in toward the shore another half mile.

The final effort brought her to within a mile and a quarter of Dover but the rushing tide and the coldness of the water forced her to give up. She was pulled aboard the accompanying tug which did not come into the pier here, but put about and started back for France.

CHANGE OF AUTHORITY IN CANADIAN BORDER PATROL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—As a first step in a concerted effort to curb liquor smuggling over the Canadian border, Assistant Secretary Andrews today ordered transfer from the prohibition unit to the customs service of all authority over the Canadian border patrol from the Detroit river to Port Huron.

Customs Collector Ferguson at Detroit, was directed to augment his force immediately and then to make a complete survey of the entire territory to determine the number of men, fast launches and automobiles that will be required to close up the avenues through which liquor is now reaching this country from Canada.

Mr. Ferguson will make his report to Mr. Andrews as speedily as possible and reorganization work then will be carried out. Through the concentration of all efforts against smuggling in the customs service, the assistant secretary expects to get more satisfactory results than possible with a divided force.

WORLD'S LARGEST OFFICE BUILDING TO HAVE SEVEN STORIES UNDER GROUND

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(A. P.)—Negotiations have been completed for the erection near Grand Central Station of what will be the world's largest office building, it was announced today. The structure, rising thirty stories from the street level will cover an entire city block and will cost $15,000,000.

Seven complete stories, a new record in "underground skyscraper" construction, will be built below street level in a gigantic cavern cut in the granite foundation of Manhattan island. The excavation work planned is considered one of the world's notable engineering feats.

The structure will contain 21,000,000 cubic feet with 1,350,000 square feet of rentable space. The General Motors building in Detroit, now the world's largest office building, contains 1,520,000 square feet.

The Todd, Robertson and Todd Engineering Corporation and Sloan and Robertson, architects, are the heads of the syndicate which will erect the building. S. W. Straus and Co. will underwrite an issue of $10,000,000 first mortgage serial gold bonds to finance the structure which will be on a leasehold obtained from the New York Central Railway company.

The building will run from 43rd to 44th street, between Lexington avenue and Depew Place.

INTERSTATE ROADS NOW UNITED STATES HIGHWAYS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(A. P.)—A system of interstate roads, known as United States highways, was created here today by the joint board on interestate highways.

More than seventy roads were included in the system, forming a network over the entire United States and touching every state capital. Thirty arterial routes were designed to traverse the country east and west, and north and south, reaching virtually every point of historic and scenic interest.

Final action on the routes will not be taken until tomorrow when they will be numbered and chartered. Eight cross the Rocky Mountains and extend across the continent; nine originate along the Gulf coast and terminate in Canada; another starts in Northern Idaho and ends at Charleston, S. C., while one begins on the Pacific coast and ends in southern Florida. One route runs the entire length of New England and another starts in Texas and run across the southwest and up the Pacific coast to Canada.

COOLIDGE CONSIDERING TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 4—(A. P.)—Solution of the transportation problem, President Coolidge believes would be greatly facilitated by voluntary consolidation of railroads.

As to the agricultural situation, which in his mind is linked with the railroad rate question and is one of the greatest domestic issues confronting the administration, he intends to await further advice from the agricultural commission before formulating his recommendations to congress.

The view of the president with regard to transportation, as outlined today at White Court, is that while he believes legislation probably is necessary for the benefit of the railroads, shippers and the public, he is of the opinion that the main thing desirable is consolidation.

Witnesses Protest Postal Rate Increases

Patent Medicine Concern at East Hampton Has Been Forced to Suspend.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(A. P.)—Witnesses continued today to file protests against the recent increases in the postal rates before the pecial joint sub-committee of congress, now in session here as part of a nation-wide inquiry. The effect of the new rates on various businesses was outlined in statements read to the committee.

H. B. Thompson, counsel for the proprietary association, submitted a report purporting to show a decrease in revenue to the postoffice department since the one and one half cent rate on samples going through the mails was installed.

That at least one firm has been forced out of busines was the statement of Theodore Flaucke, treasurer of the Dr. D. A. Williams Company of East Hampton, Conn., patent medicine manufacturers. He said that firm had been forced to suspend by the increased cost of mail distribution of its product.

The hearing today was confined mostly to the two cent service charge on parcel post and the one and one half cent an ounce charge on samples sent through the mails.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire presided.

Other witnesses who offered testimony today were H. C. Freeman, vice president and general manager of the National Cloak and Suit Company of New York, John Sullivan of the Proprietary Association, C. M. Baker general manager of the Ponds Extract Company, Arthur F. Stevens, International Council of Religious Education representing 35 denominations and 30,000,000 members, Ira D. Joel of the Kolynos Company, New Haven, Conn., Mary E. Thomas, National Church Periodical Club, John Clyde Oswald, manager director of the New York Employes Printers Association and Benjamin H. Miller, advertising manager of the Permutil Company of Brooklyn.

TO PROVE ADMINISTRATION OF THE PUBLIC LANDS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—The senate public lands committee has decided to enter upon a sweeping investigation of all matters affecting the administration of the public lands, including oils.

Beginning at Salt Lake City August 26, the committee will conduct a series of hearings in practically every public land state in the west.

Starting on an investigation of grazing on the public domain the committee has decided that its authority is broad enough to include all public land questions, and it will go thoroughly into mining, Indian affairs, timber matters, proposed legislation for the disposition of public lands, forest reserves, reclamation projects, power sites and the national parks.

Committees from the American Wool growers and the National Livestock associations, meeting in Salt Lake City August 24, will appear before the committee at the opening hearing.

With the public lands totaling 430,000,000 acres, of which 94 per cent. are in eleven western states, members of the committee expressed the opinion today that congress should regulate its administration by laws instead of by rules made by the interior department. More than one-third of the area of some of the western states consists of reserved public lands which will never come into private ownership. Since much of this is in national parks, its management of these will be closely studied.

MILLIONAIRE REALTOR ADOPTS HIS IDEAL GIRL

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—Before the dazzled eyes of sixteen year old Mary Louise Spas, only daughter of illiterate Bohemian parents, who, fifteen years ago, sailed for America in search of wealth and fortune, was unveiled today a vision of a modern fairy land, greater in promise than the mirage that drew her parents to these shores.

The Aladdin for Mary was Edward A. Browning, millionaire realtor, who saw in her the ideal girl he sought for adoption into his palatial home at New Gardens, Lond Island, as sister-companion for his other adopted daughter, Dorothy Sunshine Browning.

His three weeks quest, in which he received 12,000 letters from little girls all over the country ended today when he filed adoption papers in the Queens surrogate court. Her new name is Mary Louise Browning.

Bound by promise, Mr. Browning refused to give the address of the girl's parents. He said they lived in Astoria, L. I., that they came from Prague, Bohemia, fifteen years ago, when the girl was one year old, and that they were very poor.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(A. P.)—Sale of 200 vessels for scrapping was awarded to Henry Ford today by the shipping board. His bid was $1,706,000.

The vote was 4 to 1, with Commissioner Benson, who has opposed sale of the ships for scrapping, casting the negative ballot. Those in the affirmative were Chairman O'Connor and Commissioners Lissner, Haney and Hill.

Mr. Ford's intention, as understood in shipping board circles is to convert a few of the ships to Diesel Engine compulsion for use in transportation his own products, and to retain some of the engines and other equipment of the vessels to be scrapped for use in his manufacturing plants. Both will be permitted under the advertisement calling for bids. The rest of the vessels and equipment are to be broken up for junk.

The sale had been recommended by President Palmer of the fleet corporation. It was the highest offer received and had been declared legal under the Merchant Marine Act in an opinion by Attorney General Sargent.

The second highest offer, $1,370,000 was made by the Boston Iron and Metal Company of Baltimore, when the first bids were opened on June 30. These did not include a bid by Mr. Ford. They were rejected by the board and the Baltimore company's offer was withdrawn after second bids were called for. The latter were opened July 6th.

WORTHLESS CHECKS APPEAR IN ROCKAWAY LAND BOOM

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—A flood of worthless checks returned by Rockaway banks today dampened the falming enthusiasm of the thousands of speculators trying to become rich overnight through the land boom which started two weeks ago when an ordinance assuring Rockaway a $1,500,000 municipal boardwalk, was passed.

Bankers estimated that from 500 to 1,000 bad checks were being received daily and banks are employing extra clerks to trace this paper. Real estate operators fear that many contracts will be voided becuse they were originally floated on worthless checks. There is also considerable skepticism as to whether there is enough capital to take care of contracts running into millions of dollars.

In the early days of the boom uncertified checks were accepted as first payments on lots.

Many deliberately gave checks for which they had no funds in the hope that they could quickly re-sell and cover them.

The trend of prices today was said to be towards higher levels, but speculators were demanding certified checks or cash as first payments, and many who started with a "shoestring" found their paper profits turned into losses.

Unless the boom collapses, it is probable that 20,000 persons living in bungalows on the ocean front, will soon have to seek other homes. Real estate men say that a vast seaside resort will follow the nine-mile boardwalk and that the "bungalaters" will go. Meanwhile, hundreds of them are trying to ride to fortune on the speculative wave, and have dropped summer sports for amateur salesmanship.

While huge paper profits are common, few speculators are assured that they will really collect the prices they have contracted to receive for land, and the real estate agents who are collecting commissions are among the few to whom profits are assured.

A HARTFORD HOTEL BOND CHEF AND WIFE DROWNED

HARTFORD, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Joseph Stok, a chef at the Hotel Bond, and his wife, Mrs. Sophie Stok, were drowned while bathing today in the Connecticut river at a point opposite the North Meadows just above the railroad bridge. Their daughter, Helen, aged 6, was rescued by Anthony Thomas Swisko, a World war veteran and employe of the Underwood Typewriter company, who witnessed the tragedy. The water at this point was only waist deep, and it is surmised that the little girl had wandered beyond her depth, her parents stepping into one of the many deep holes in an effort to save her.

Swisko, seated on the bank, had noticed the Stok family disporting in the water and suddenly saw the girl disappear. He dashed into the water and was able to grasp the child by the hair, taking her to shore. His return for the parents and subsequent diving for their bodies was of no avail. When he brought the girl to shore he called for help and workers answered, calling Policeman A. H. Schaefer who in turn called Policemen Marsh, Dooley and Dorsey. A canoe was commandeered and the police grappled for the bodies, recovering them after an hour at a point a number of yards below the drowning spot.

The Stoks have only been in Hartford for two months, coming from New

Before the men go back they will demand recognition of their union, it is said.

ANTHRACITE WAGE SCALE NEGOTIATIONS BROKEN OFF

Motion to Adjourn Sine Die Was Proposed by C. J. Golden, Representing the Miners—The Motion Was Seconded by Several Operators—Conferees Reported They Were in Complete Disagreement and That Furthur Negotiations Appeared Useless.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4—(AP)—The anthracite wage scale negotiations were broken off at 6:39 o'clock tonight.

The motion to adjourn sine die was proposed by C. J. Golden, president of District No. 9, United Mine Workers, was seconded by several operators and passed by the joint committee. The conferees report they were in complete disagreement on the miners' demands and that further negotiations appeared useless.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, submitted a reply to the letter he received yesterday from Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators conference. Mr. Lewis said in part:

"The mine workers' representatives deeply regret that the anthracite operators have seen fit to publicly announce their refusal to negotiate upon a basis of fact. Public statements of Mr. W. W. Inglis and yourself obviously preclude any agreement. The public advertisements of the anthracite operators given out while the negotiations were in progress demonstrate that the operators do not propose to make any constructive contribution toward the success of the conference. With these facts in mind the mine workers' representatives are of the judgment that it is utterly futile to continue further in these wage scale negotiations."

The operators went into a secret caucus for fifty minutes and upon their return they asked Mr. Lewis:

"Are we to understand from your letter that in view of our opposition to an increase of wages and the checkoff, you refuse to continue negotiations?"

Mr. Lewis answered yes, according to the account given by Mr. Inglis, chairman of the operators committee.

"In view of the differences between us," came a second question, "do you flatly reject the proposal that all matters in dispute be submitted to impartial arbitration under conditions ensuring adjudication fair to all parties concerned, work to continue at present wage rates pending the result of such arbitration?"

Lewis replied, according to Inglis quoting from his letter to Warriner to the effect that arbitration would not be accepted.

Mr. Inglis later charged Mr. Lewis with deliberately wrecking the wage conference.

"Mr. Lewis came into this meeting today," said Inglis, "with a fixed determination of breaking off negotiations. His letter to Mr. Warriner was the basis prepared in advance."

Mr. Lewis said he stated his position on this point in his letter to Warriner.

Asked at the end of the day what the next step would be, Lewis merely smiled.

CALLS FOR PARTICIPATION OF U. S. IN WORLD COURT

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 4—(A. P.)—In a formal statement issued tonight former Governor Robert P. Bass of Peterboro calls upon United States Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, to follow the lead of Senator George Wharton Pepper and come to the support of the Hughes-Harding-Coolidge plan for American participation in the world court. The statement was accepted here as the forerunner of an announcement that he will seek Senator Moses' seat.

"The announcement of Senator Pepper's changed position in regard to the manner of our adherence to the world court," Mr. Bass said, 'and his acceptance of the Hughes-Harding-Coolidge plan for our participation immediately focuses attention on the attitude of Senator George H. Moses toward this question."

Both Senator Pepper and Senator Moses are members of the committee on foreign relations and neither have up to this time, given their support to the president's method of participation in the court. Senator Moses was a prominent member of the small band of irreconcilables who stood for a policy of isolation. He has severely criticized the world court in some of his speeches.

FIREMEN AND CHEMISTRY STUDENTS BADLY BURNED

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—Naked firemen adopted war tactics today in extinguishing a $30,000 blaze which followed an explosion of "phosgene gas" and other chemicals, at the college of the City of New York, four firemen and two chemistry students were badly burned.

Joseph Glanz, a senior chemistry student, was washing out the acid vault when a 5-gallon glass flask of acid cracked. The acid, mixing with the water on the cement floor, exploded. The detonation set off five other flasks.

The explosion and subsequent wave of gas routed a laboratory class, members of which turned in a fire alarm. Firemen who entered the building were driven out again by the gas. Even after making their escape the gas, saturated in their clothing, continued to burn them.

MAN PERMANENTLY BLINDED IS DENIED COMPENSATION

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 4—(A. P.)—Both eyes permanently blinded by a dynamite blast, Leopold Schneider of Norwalk, is not entitled to compensation from his employers, Robert O. Raymond and Deodate S. Davenport, Norwalk real estate dealers, under the workmen's compensation act because says a decision of the supreme court of Connecticut filed this afternoon in superior court, Raymond and Davenport did not have more than five employes at the time of the accident.

Compensation Commissioner Edward T. Buckingham awarded Schneider $12 weekly compensation for 520 weeks and "all reasonable medical and hospital expenses." The superior court confirmed the commissioner. The award is vacated by decision of the supreme court. Attorney George Vosburgh Norwalk, represented the real estate dealers.

Because of a high wind, Schneider, in igniting the fuse of a dynamite blast, used a rag torch saturated with kerosene. In contesting payment of compensation to him, Raymond and Davenport held Schneider was guilty of "wilful misconduct" by the use of the rag torch, and that, in addition, he did not come within the compensation act because they did not employ more than five persons.

The compensation commissioner declared Schneider "used poor judgment" in setting the blast, but was entitled to benefits under the act, in that, he ruled, the real estate dealers actually employed more than five persons.

In an opinion written by Justice Beach, the supreme court, stating Schneider's case does not come within the jurisdiction of the compensation act, declares: "There is no evidence that the respondent employed more than four on this work on any day prior to the injury."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IS PLANNING FOR FUTURE

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 4—(A. P.)—President Coolidge is looking ahead, trying to determine what should be done during the remainder of his administration rather than spending his time in retrospection of what has been accomplished since he entered the White House two years ago.

This attitude of the executive was disclosed today at the summer White House with the statement that off hand the president considers as outstanding achievements of his administration thu far the resumption of friendly relations with Turkey, the strengthening of relations with Mexico and South American republics, the negotiations of debt settlements with some of the European nations and the persistent effort to cut government expenditures of the bone.

As to the Dawes reparations plan, the president doesn't care to claim credit for it as an administration achievement. Collins' right to drive his car in view of the fact that the local police had received notification, the day before the accident, that his operators license had been suspended, remains unsettled. She was afraid to live in another city where she had no friends for fear that he would start drinking again. In answer to a question by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, Hanson said that he was willing to take the pledge for life. After a conference the case was continued for four weeks, on condition that Hanson arrange with his employers to send his wife ten dollars a week also in the meantime to hire a tenement at Rocky Hill for the family. MICHAEL KOZEK STRUCK BY PIERRE MARROTTE'S CAR

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 4—Michael Kozek, 10 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kozek, of 15 Main street this city was probably fatally injured, about noontime Tuesday, when struck by an automobile driven by Pierre Marrotte on the bridge over the Natchaug river on the North Windham-Willimantic road. The bridge is near the "tent city" being occupied by former operatives of the American Thread company. The Kozek boy and other children had apparently been visiting in that section and were standing near the entrance to the bridge. As the machine came on the bridge the child suddenly started to run to the other side and was struck by the fender and front of the car. Mr. Marrotte rushed the child to St. Joseph's hospital and he was attended by Doctors J. A. Girouard and F. M. Smith. Late in the afternoon hospital authorities stated that his condition was unchanged. He is suffering from a fractured left arm and possible internal injuries.

INTERFERENCE WITH OFFICER BRINGS WARNING FROM COURT

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 4—Mike Renejkowski, of 74 Elm street, was found guilty of interference with an officer in the performance of his duty also with carrying a concealed weapon, when in the police court, Tuesday morning. This was the outcome of a mixup between former operatives of the American Thread company and State Police Officers were holding a parade in the vicinity Henry Heinold, while the strikers of the mills, about five o'clock, Monday afternoon. The man was given fifteen days in Brooklyn jail and a fine of $25 and costs on the charge of carrying weapons; for interference with the officer he was fined $25. The total assessment amounted to $57.15. Officer Heinold testified that in observing the parade Monday evening, he, like the remainder of the officers, was under orders to make arrests in case of disturbance, including shouting. He noticed one woman shouting in the ranks and as he was about to arrest her a crowd of about forty strikers surrounded him and in the melee the woman escaped. A man whom he identified as Renejkowski grabbed witness' nightstick from him and handed it to another, identified as William Bosse who ran off with it. The stick was later recovered when the officer drew his gun. It was further stated that George Rock figured in the mixup. Bosse and Rock were charged with interfering with an officer in the course of his duty.

Renejkowski, Bosse and Rock all pleaded not guilty. All three were arrested while parading Tuesday morning, and flatly denied anything to do with the mixup. The weapon which Renejkowski had on his person when arrested was part of a broom handle, about nine inches long and butted with a five inch iron coupling fastened to one end. The weapon weighed about one pound. Renejkowski said that the stick was one that he had carried around with him for about a year and that he merely used it to measure off stove lengths of wood. The fresh knife cuts on the wood, however, belied this statement and the man was found guilty. The case against Rock was nolled, as officer Heinold was not positive that the accused had really interfered with him. Bosse was found guilty of interference and was given a suspended jail sentence and a fine of $5 and costs. He gave notice of an appeal to superior court and a bond of $200 was furnished by his brother Joseph Bosse. Bosse maintained that he was some distance away when the trouble between the officer and the strikers occurred. Judge Frank H. Foss deemed the statement necessary, due to the acute situation existing between the strikers-strike breakers and the state police; that it is unlawful for anyone to interfere with the performance of the duties of an officer, even though that person may be quite sure that the officer is not within his rights. The proper form of redress is through legal means and a person taking the law and its execution upon himself when not an authorized officer becomes a violator and must be dealt with as such. The purpose of this court he said is to maintain law and order and profound peace and tranquility and to this end this court must carry on its duties as never deemed necessary. The court warning was also extended to the well-filled gallery of spectators and the press was requested to issue the warning that violations may not be committed in ignorance.

RAID AT WM. LIER'S HOME YIELDS TWO STILLS AND BOOZE

WILLIMANTIC Aug. 4—Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers William S. Congdon and Stanton L. Briggs, of this city, returned from the home of William Lier, 34, corner of Mile Hill road and the Tolland road, in Tolland, Tuesday forenoon, with a cargo of two gallon jugs, filled with moonshine, one hundred and thirty gallons of cherry and grape wine, a ten gallon still complete, two additional quarts of powerful liquor, and another small still, all disconnected.

The officers drove up to the Lier home about nine o'cock in the morning and after passing through the gateway were met at the door by a vicious dog, weighing in the neighborhood of 120 pounds and by Mrs. Lier, who stated that she was seventy-five years of age. The dog bared a fine set of teeth and for a time it appeared that the officers were about to be bereft of the important part of their trousers; but a little coaxing subdued the animal and the search for contraband liquor started.

Mrs. Lier objected strenuously, but not in a violent manner and when her husband arrived at home in a buggy, late an hour after the unexpected visitors had arrived, the search was complete, but for the finding of the top of the ten gallon still. Lier hesitated for some time and then came out with the story of his misdealings. The cover to the still was recovered by him from underneath a pile of old apples in the cellar. Lier was notified by Officer Congdon to appear before United States Commissioner Edgar Mathewson in Norwich, at two o'clock (daylight time) Wednesday.

The booze selling business was apparently a profitable one to Lier. His only apparent means of livelihood was a little front yard garden, a few hens and a pig. Within two years he secured a clear deed to a considerable plot of land on Hale Hill and built a good sized barn.

The liquor is stored in the federal building in this city. Before leaving the Lier place the officers destroyed forty gallons of prune wine, which was discovered in the attic.

Patrick Doran, chaffeur for a Watch Hill cottager, charged with being drunk, fighting, quarrelling, revelling and behaving in an indecent manner when arrested at Watch Hill, was given a hearing in a special session of the third district court Tuesday afternoon, before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, of Westerly. At first, inclined to enter a plea of not guilty, he was adjudged guilty and fined $15 and costs amounting to $20, which he paid and left for New York.

Anthony Saverison, arraigned on complaint of Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell on two complaints, assault and theft of an automobile, pleaded not guilty and in default of $200 bail on each count was detained, to await the probable arrival of his father as bondsman from New York.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell and deputies of Washington county Monday afternoon conducted raids on three different places in the vicinity of Wickford and North Kingstown. In two of the three sites visited alleged liquor was found and seized, but in the third only slight evidences of activity could be found. One man was taken into custody by the police, and a second ordered to appear for trial Thursday.

Entering the woods on the northeast side of Silver String lake, in North Kingstown, and proceeding southward, Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Washington county, Deputy Sheriff Thomas Pierce of Wickford, Jailer Fred W. Bull and Capt. Frank Smith of Wickford, came upon a 10-gallon still in full operation over an oil-stove burning in the open woods, and a gallon jug of alleged moonshine.

No one appeared to be present in the vicinity, but, upon waiting for a few minutes, the officers heard the slap of oars coming across the lake. A man came into view on the shore, but, apparently scenting danger started back in the boat across the lake. He was captured by the officers and proved to be Vernon Holberton of North Kingston. The officers arrested the man and took the still paraphernalia and coil to Wickford where Holberton was presented before Clerk John P. B. Pierce on the charges of manufacturing alleged moonshine and selling. A pint bottle of alleged whiskey was found on the man's person. He pleaded not guilty and bail was set at $200 on each count, in default of which he was committed of Kingston jail, awaiting trial in the second district court, before Judge Watts in Wickford, Thursday.

The second raid was conducted at Pork Hill, North Kingston, on the premises of Alonzo Coon, where the officers found two quart bottles of alleged moonshine, 50 glasses and six cases of alleged beer. Two 50-gallon casks of cider, one partly full, were found in the cellar. It is claimed. The liquor was taken to Wickford Tuesday morning.

The third place visited, about one mile north of Wickford Junction, was occupied by Elizabeth Linn. In searching the place thoroughly, the police found only a number of empty bottles and glasses.

Anthony Saverison was taken into custody by Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly at the home of his uncle, two complaints. The first alleged assault with a dangerous weapon upon Dominic Aello, in Charleston, on Joe Pepe, and the second the alleged theft of a truck in Branford, Conn., last April. Saverison appeared before Clerk Flynn at a special session of the third district court in Westerly Tuesday night. This is the second time that Saverison whose home is in New York, has visited this section of the country in a comparatively short time.

WHY DONT YOU USE SAN-GRI-NA To REDUCE SAYS WOMAN WHO TOOK OFF 50 POUNDS of UGLY FAT

Do you want to improve yourself? To be attractive, young looking? Do you want health and happiness? Then GET RID OF YOUR EXCESS FAT. IT'S KEEPING YOU DOWN IN EVERY WAY. Have you tried everything to reduce, without success, and are you so discouraged that you are willing to remain fat and unattractive, or do you want to know of something harmless, easy, inexpensive and sure in results?

Whatever your case may be, 10 pounds too much or 50 pounds, YOU CAN GET RID OF IT JUST AS I DID. Let me tell you how I took off 50 pounds of ugly fat with practically no expense and no trouble whatever, after I had been burdened for years. First, I tried diets, which weakened me so that I had to stay in bed to recuperate. Then I exercised, without any results. Then one day I heard about SAN-GRI-NA. As a last resort, I tried it. With one box I lost 6 pounds, and in a little over seven weeks I lost Forty-Five pounds more—never regained a pound since, and enjoy the best of health.

I HAVE PROVEN IN MY OWN CASE AND IN HUNDREDS OF OTHERS, THAT SAN-GRI-NA WORKED WHERE EVERYTHING ELSE HAD FAILED. I have given this same advice to society women, moving picture stars, actresses, working girls and business men who have succeeded beyond hopes. All you need to do is to go to-day to any good drug or department store, get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, and take two small tablets before each meal. Go at your work as usual, eat as you care to—do not change anything in your mode of living. Simply take SAN-GRI-NA, and watch your figure lose that clumsy appearance and become more and more slender each day. At the same time your health will improve. If you have high blood pressure, it will very likely entirely vanish. You will feel younger, full of pep and ambition. SAN-GRI-NA IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS, does not contain habit-forming drugs. Do not accept any substitutes. "SAN-GRI-NA IS THE ONLY THING I EVER FOUND TO REDUCE, AND I TRIED THEM ALL". On sale at any good Drug or Dept. Store.

If your druggist does not carry SAN-GRI-NA in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 B'way, N. Y. C., and one full sized box SAN-GRI-NA will be mailed you direct.

DANIELSON

If the good people of Windham county want to see their legislators and other citizens who hold public office therein at play, they will have their opportunity at Rocky Point, Thursday of next week.

Senators and representatives, county commissioners, judges, lawyers, justices of the peace, sheriffs, constables, police officers, clerks of court and various other officials will be there. And you may go if you like. The officials just love to play.

The grand imperial conclave is going to be the main feature. Of course there is to be a bountiful shore dinner and, it is said, a program of sports. Cross word puzzles will be given as prizes to the winners. Events sure to thrill will be the relay race for office, all candidates entering, a fashion exhibition of the intricate game of passing the buck, a popularity contest (for voters only) and many other things that will be sure to please.

Actually, the "boys" are going out for a real holiday, and citizens who join with them on the outing are certain of a splendid time. County Commissioner Ureole LaFrance has the arrangements in charge—and that in itself is full assurance of having the best available and of the getting together of a happy company, free for the day from the burdens of office and legislative problems—and the other daily worries that are the lot of mortals.

It is not improbable that the borough of Danielson will carry out, during the next manner or carry out an improvement that it has been considering for more than a year—the grading of a cement frontage to the Central Fire station on Academy street. This work needs to be done and will be in line with the borough's campaign for better sidewalks. The present frontage of the building is graveled. Bad conditions invariably prevail there during seasons of the year when there is much rain and especially when winter is breaking up or a snowstorm mixed with heavy snow on the ground. In fact there are times when the place is almost impassable for a pedestrian. The cost of the proposed improvement will be several hundred dollars, but regarded as a necessary improvement and as money well expended.

Tomorrow (Thursday) 33 more cans of brook trout will be received here from the state fish commission. It is announced by Richard D. Banigan of the Danielson Rod and Gun club. Members of that organization will lend their automobiles and their energies to the work of distributing these fingerling trout in brooks in this and nearby towns. The shipment will number about 9,600 trout. Distribution of the fish will mark another step forward in what the Rod and Gun club is doing to stock the brooks in this section of the country that all who like an outing with rod and gun—whether members of the club or not—may have one with some certainty of getting a gaming string of the speckled beauties. Other releases of trout will be made hereabouts during August and September.

Tryouts for the state rifle team that will represent the national guard organizations of Connecticut in the national rifle match at Camp Perry, O., and practically the team selected prior to the match will be held this year on the range of the Seaside battery, two miles south of Dennison instead of at New Haven. Captain F. O. Johnson of the Seaside battery said Thursday that in that it is hoped the necessary additional funds will be received to put the range in suitable repair for the use of the riflemen who are coming to Danielson for the tryouts.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Aver has what many will declare a very good idea for relieving one cause of traffic congestion on the main trunk line highways of Connecticut. Sheriff Aver believes that the constant flood of motorists at speed limits of twenty miles an hour would allow many persons to hold out a fast traffic basis if ways be provided whereby a motorist might be passed without the risk of a serious thing killed by passing machine at a speed of twenty miles an hour. Sheriff Aver cites a recent case—in which a long line of automobiles was compelled to move at a snail's pace for a few hours because two motorcycle police were ahead and a couple of cars in the opposite direction. In two out the rear of the drivers of the horses, they were moving as rapidly as the cops their teams were drawing would permit and they could not turn out into an opportunity presented itself. Nevertheless, their rigs caused a material delay for a large number of persons. The turnouts the sheriff suggests could be built at comparatively small cost.

Borough people apparently are not much concerned about the fixing of a tax rate on their property at least has may be assumed in view of the fact that but 15 turned out to attend the financial meeting of the borough. It may be that this points to absolute confidence that the borough officials will not ask for a penny more than is actually required to run the borough government. That being the case there is really no need of getting all hot and bothered up one night to attend a borough meeting. It may be said that economy is the watchword in the borough government and every effort is being made to keep the expense down and to reduce the borough debt and it is to be as rapidly as is consistent with good government.

It is necessary to say again this morning to set forth what the adjourned borough meeting did Monday evening in fixing a tax rate for the ensuing year. The tax is a half-mill over this year—9 1-2 mills rather than 9 as it was stated in Tuesday's issue due to a misunderstanding of words in transmitting the item over the telephone. The tax rate last year was 10 mills.

At the home of his daughter, Mrs. Theophas Beauvais, on Franklin street, during Monday night the death of Clement Stebbins, 82, occurred. Mr. Stebbins came from his native Canada to the United States as a young man and for 43 years had been a resident of Danielson. He had lived 9 years in Attawaugan in poor health for a number of years. Mr Stebbins was retired from active work. For a long period he was in the employ of the Quinebaug company. Mr. Stebbins leaves two sons, Albert who is engaged in business here, Joseph, who is at Camp Devens, and two daughters, Mrs. Beauvais and Mrs. Arthur LaDue of Canada. Mrs. Stebbins has been dead a number of years. The body is to be taken to St. Ange P. Q., for burial.

What to the timid might have suggested an earthquake, Monday afternoon, and to others more frivolously inclined some mysterious force to set the feet a jazzing here in Danielson, is herein to be briefly but fully explained. Paul Whiteman, famous bandsman and king of jazz, honored this town with his presence for a few minutes—a very few minutes. Just long enough to ride through in his foreign-made motor car and gonvce the community over as the machine idled along. Paul—all us boys call him that—was in negligee, in fact something a little less than that. He and the man with him had discarded coats and shirts and were down—about the waist line—to that burdensome amount of clothing that a bathing beauty wears when she expects to be chased off the beach by a policeman. And, the boys noted, Paul needed a shave. Nevertheless he did manage to communicate that jazzy feeling as he rode along. He had been over at Providence, following a week end engagement.

Many will find Brooklyn an especially delightful place to visit this week when the Women's society of the Congregational church in that place have a lawn fete. Brooklyn is particularly beautiful during the summer season and its historic places and things make it a locality with a real appeal.

The bearers were Russell O'Neil, Warner Page, Julian Tatoon and Denny Woodson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Relatives from Danielson and Dayville were at South Woodstock, Tuesday afternoon, to attend funeral services conducted by Rev. Henry D. Baker of East Woodstock, for William Henry Young, at the Young home. Burial was in Abington cemetery. The bearers were George W. Butts, Henry Wells, Dr. James Hutchins and Frank Johnson. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

The Windham County National bank, Danielson, Conn., offers all modern banking facilities, and is a general source of information on all financial matters. Consult them frequently, as they gladly offer their services without charge.—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Goulet are on a motor trip that will take them to a number of places in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Jule Vanhee, Archie Laher, Raymond Laherand, Raymond Laher and Paul Zimmerman are making a motor trip to Niagara Falls and into Canada.

Twenty-eight empty alcohol cans picked up in the rear of a building in the heart of the business section brought some revenue to the finder and indicate something more or less.

An estimate just compiled shows that the Danielson postoffice directly serves about 5,700 people, and many others from nearby territory, including other communities of the town of Killingly.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Knecht are mooring to their home in Detroit, after having been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. O'Connell of Spring street.

Tuesday afternoon the temperature in Danielson ran up to 90 degrees, a shade higher than the record for Monday.

The town court has given attention this week to some more tax cases—delinquents who had failed to pay their personal tax assessments.

Joseph Sennier is heading a motor party that is making a tour of Canadian towns and cities.

PUTNAM

County Agent Davis has issued the following statement:

The Windham County Farmers' Association through its officers, directors, town and county committees, is behind the country's agricultural meetings of all kinds at which helpful ideas are presented. It directs and helps maintain the Farmers' Association office which receives, on the average, over two thousand telephone calls each year. At this office spray calenders, bulletins and circulars pertaining to agriculture are distributed to farmers in the county in large quantities.

It promotes the use of pure bred bulls; helps obtain them, together with pure bred females. It maintains the Market News Service, weekly, for its members in which they can advertise. It presents, through the News, the happenings in agricultural progress in the country, which is more important to the local farmer than what is going on in California, for example.

It carries on demonstrations, such as orchard management, alfalfa, chevy, nitrate of soda poultry disease control, etc. Backs and arranges for vocational clubs, poultry clubs, organized fruit work which is represented by the Quinebaug Valley Fruit Growers' Association, organized live stock work which is represented by the Windham County Guernsey Association. Promotes field trips of all kinds. In fact the Farmers' Association is a group of the leading and progresive farmers in Windham county which has an exceedingly important influence on the county's agricultural welfare. It is watching and studying the things that are best and presenting them to the farmers of Windham county in practical manner. It is a farmers' organization that is a going concern and stands nigh among like organizations—so high that its members have a right to feel proud of being members.

The Farmers' Association is making a reputation for the team work of its directors and committees and this, as in the instance of the fine piece of Grade A milk work, offers a real basis for Windham county's agricultural development.

Officer Fred T. Caron of Groton barracks brought in seven cars and Officer Walter Watrous of the Hartford barracks summoned three cases. On other sections of the road there were about as many more. BACK WITH GOMPERS

By making announcement through its executive committee that hencefor th a deaf ear will be turned to third party movements, the American Federation of Labor returns to the political policy which Gompers advocated in his ardent patriotism he saw best that labor made an offensive and defensive alliance with the government during the World War and after the armistice this alliance was kept up. Perhaps it was chiefly responsible for preventing the fall of wages and the rise of prices.

Much criticism followed in labor circles the decision of the council a year ago to support the LaFollette national ticket. The critics insisted that it was a mistake to abandon the traditional policy, for which Gompers had always stood, of non-partisan political action under which organized labor has always endorsed and supported candidates friendly to labor no matter what party badge they wore. The result a year ago proved that the labor vote was not deliverable according to the mandate of the party leaders. Theoretically at any rate has the Gompers balance-of-power idea been abandoned and it is now re-affirmed.

In every state where a United States senator is to be elected and in every district where a congressman is to be chosen, the federation is to support candidates who are "true to the people," according to labor's point of view. Where parties are nearly divided a 1 per cent. minority may change the result. Perhaps in half the congress districts and in many of the states a 10 per cent. minority might easily change it. Used in this way, the voting power of the federation power goes farther. It puts its friends into office and incidentally holds the whip over those who will stand for re-election and who are classed as neutral or hostile to labor.

The Gompers way of using votes to produce results is the most efficient the federation can employ to accomplish government by a minority.

MELLON WILL STAY

Andrew W. Mellon says he has no intention of resigning as secretary of the treasury. Rumors that he would retire have probably had nothing more tangible to support them than the feeling that Mr. Mellon, being a very wealthy man and having had one full term in the cabinet, would not care to spend more time in a public position, even of such importance. While his age is seventy-one, he comes of a long-lived family, and as his position brings him into touch with problems in which he takes an intense interest, there is every reason to believe that he wishes to continue as head of the treasury.

Mr. Mellon is not the type of man to quit in the face of difficulty and he has repeatedly indicated that his experience in the treasury has shown him the need of an improved tax system in the United States. It is natural that he should want to give whatever aid he can to forwarding that achievement. If the effect on national life proves to be what he expects it would, a part of the credit would attach to his record. It is a laudable the international debt situation involving immense sums to be refunded. As chairman of the funding commission established by congress, he will be influential in shaping results. He, doubtless, would hesitate about retiring, even if so inclined, until more is done about these obligations.

It is reassuring, both from a domestic and a foreign point of view, to have Mr. Mellon so decisively set at rest the resignation rumors. It insures his continuance in the effort to work out an improved taxation system at home and retains him as a competent guide in the debt problem negotiations abroad. The secretary's announcement is thus of the first importance.

MODERN INHUMANITY

The evictions being carried out by the Polish and German governments are progressing in a spirit of stupid inhumanity. Twenty thousand Germans are being driven out of territory now Polish, but once German, since a reprisal the German government is deporting 10,000 Poles who are on German territory still held by Germany. Those who are selected for deportation or eviction, as the case may be, are those whose vote in a plebiscite was in favor of their national leanings.

Dispatches giving details of the evictions from Poland call attention to the arbitration verdict from the international court of justice upholding the Polish claim to the right to compel the emigration of Germans from this territory. Poland bases its eviction order on this decision. But the existence of a right does not always warrant the exercise of that right. Apart entirely from the tragic drama and the personal suffering which such methods impose upon thousands of men, women and children torn from homes which they have occupied for years and thrust into strange lands, are the seeds of hatred that this action is calculated to germinate. If the time ever comes when Germany is again able to strike, Poland may expect little mercy. Indeed, the desire to strike will be enhanced many times by such actions as the deportation of thousands of people.

The deported people, it is reported, are faced by grim want and suffering. They are being herded into concentration camps from which it is hoped they will be distributed throughout Germany and Poland, as the case may be. They are penalized because they voted, as any nationals would vote for citizenship in their own home country. No advance word was given them that upon their vote depended the retention of their homes. The action taken seems to make for war, rather than peace, in Europe.

MORE COAL STRATEGY

If there has been any public sympathy with the miners in the coal controversy, John L. Lewis seems determined to alienate it. His demand in his letter to Mr. Warriner that the personnel of the operators' committee must be changed in order to make it acceptable to the miners is just another indication of his defiance, while Mr. Warriner makes good use of the opportunity, in his reply, to impress upon the public that the miners will be responsible for any shutdown of the mines, because, they have refused to agree to continue operations while the conferences were being held.

Mr. Lewis' position which resulted in the breakup of the conference was that the checkup must be granted along with wage increase. In other words, the only compromise that is possible is one that grants everything to the miners. The probabilities are that the operators will give in on their demand for a wage cut. The miners can hope for little more than a new agreement on the existing wage scale.

So far as public sympathy is concerned both sides are in disgrace. If Mr. Lewis persists in his policy of obstruction, some sympathy may be aroused for the operators. The public will view his decision to end the conference as a deliberate obstruction of peace in an essential industry. The so-called coal barons have been remiss in the past, but the tactics of Mr. Lewis are bad. Apparently he does not realize nor he does not care, that he and his miners, as well as the operators, are in an extremely delicate position so far as public regard is concerned.

THE TREASURY POSITION

Having studied the tax returns of the past year and considered the revenue needs of the nation and the burdens of the taxpayer in the United States, the treasury department has come to certain conclusions about taxes. These are likely to form the basis of the administration's tax policy in the sixty-ninth congress. As set forth by Under-secretary Winston, they include the abolition of the federal estate taxes, a 20 per cent surtax maximum and the end of the nuisance taxes. Reduction will be made in the smaller income rates by means of higher exemptions, if in no other way.

Of these proposals, the reduction of the surtax figures from their present 40 per cent should be the easiest to carry through. Enough democrats have announced themselves in favor of it to make it possible. Partisanship has well nigh surrendered on this phase of taxation. The abolition of the "death taxes" will be more difficult. West of the Alleghanies they wish to keep this weapon against great estates. There is a strong probability, however, that inheritance gift and estate levies may be reduced.

Treasury estimates show that from a revenue standpoint we can get along very well with a maximum "normal and surtax combined of 25 per cent." This is much higher than many suggestions made within the administration forces, as well as by some democratic leaders. Suggestions as low as fifteen, ten and even eight per cent have been made. It is probable, however, that the final figures will be nearer those of the treasury than of the more enthusiastic reducers. The tax garment must be cut according to the available cloth.

EDITORIAL NOTES

August is starting in like an old-fashioned summer.

The man on the corner says: "Been tagged yet?" is the Norwich autoist's daily greeting.

Refrigerated music from the Arctic Circle promises to compete with our present supply of canned melody.

Statistics show that the milk industry is greater than the oil industry. And it is a great deal better for the babies.

An anarchist was found in Florida just in time to explode the report that everyone there is a real estate agent.

It appears that some of the jay walkers are motorists hurrying back to the safety of their parked machines.

It is evidently Henry Ford's idea that an old ship may be an asset if converted into junk but a liability if kept afloat.

The cabinet resignation rumor, usually so effective, has met so many rebuffs that it must be somewhat confused by this time.

The press agents seem to be a little afraid that they cannot obtain the acquittal of the bold alleged movie actress kidnappers.

More than 2,000,000 automobiles were made in this country in the first six months of 1925 and yet some people wonder at the traffic congestion.

Many republicans are hoping for a reorganization of the democratic party at least to an extent to give the impression that there is a force to be defeated.

The congressman who has gone to college between sessions to study economics is taking his job more seriously than most who are elected to congress.

Crime in the United States is represented as having attained startling proportions. Statistics are never compiled on the number of law-abiding citizens who represent the country's controlling influence.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

It was exciting to have Aunt Rachel who is in a little town in Florida, send me a $10 check with instructions to buy Christmas gifts for the family. I felt touched by her confidence in me, though she did say in her letter that, "as we don't always quite agree, Lucile, I am inclosing a list of articles that I should like to have you select. Please be so good as to adhere to my suggestions."

It would have been more gracious, I think, to have allowed me to use my own judgment, as I was the one to do all the work. However, I was grateful that she had left a free choice for my own present.

I called up George Requier and asked him if he wished to render first aid.

"In what way, Lucile?" he asked. "You know I'm always at your service." George is really a dear.

"I remember," I said, "that you have the entree to a large wholesale establishment, and I'm wondering whether you would be so angelic as to take me there to do my Christmas shopping. An out-of-town relative has sent me money to buy gifts and I have to do the best I can for her. Poor little me! I'm the family drudge, George!"

"Too bad about you," laughed George and then he urged me to meet him downtown right away for luncheon before our shopping expedition.

I stopped in Michigan avenue to price a perfectly lovely jade ornament which I have been coveting two weeks or so ago. To my great delight I found it had been marked down to $48 and it began to seem within my reach.

At luncheon George and I discussed the ethics of Christmas giving. I said that I believed in giving only to one's nearest and dearest and then contributing as largely as possible to charity.

"Don't you think it right to give to friends?" he asked.

"Well, perhaps to very dear friends," I answered, smiling at him, and I was greatly surprised to receive yesterday a beautiful pair of opera glasses from him. I scarcely know what to think about his present, but I am glad to have some new enameled opera glasses, for my old mother of pearl ones are quite out of date.

On Christmas morning I could not help being disappointed at the lack of enthusiasm with which Aunt Rachel's things were received.

"Well, well! I wonder why she sent me this little woolen shawl," remarked granny. "I should feel like an inmate in it."

"I don't like to criticize anything dear Aunt Rachel does for us," said mother, "but I'm surprised at her for getting this frail tortoise shell lorgnette for me. I'm such a practical person."

"I wonder how she happened to get Grant's Memoirs for me," father looked at the two volumes oddly. "I read them two years ago, and I think the set is up in the garret now."

Cousin Fannie examined her coin purse and said nothing.

Mother looked at me questioningly. "What did you get, Lucile?" she asked.

"This little jade ornament," I said deprecatingly.

"Why, Lucile, it's perfectly exquisite! I never saw a handsomer piece of carved jade. Aunt Rachel—"

Just then Tilly brought in a special delivery letter. "Why, it's from Aunt Rachel, how nice!" said mother, as she tore it open and began to read.

"'Just a line to you dear ones to say that I hope you will all be pleased with the little remembrances that I have asked Lucille to select. I trust she found a fancy silk shawl for dear granny, and that the mother of the family will enjoy looking at the world through her white gold lorgnette. If Fannie's under-arm purse is as pretty as I wish I am sure it will add to her winter outfit, and I hope that pater familias will be able to forget all care in one of the delightful biographies. As for Lucille, I know she will fulfill some little desire, and—well you certainly did." Mother actually glared at my bit of jade. "Lucile, you are impossible!"

"Nobody ever appreciates anything I do," I burst into tears and laid my head on dad's shoulder.

He slipped his arm around me reassuringly and mother really appeared annoyed because he said he was going to change the baby bond he had for my Christmas present for a $500 one. I often wish that mother was as sympathetic as dear dad, who really understands my sensitive nature.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prince Aage of Denmark, who has been wounded in Morocco while fighting as a captain in the French Foreign Legion, is one of the most attractive personalities among European royalty. Because of his democratic ways, he is known among his associates as "the American prince." He is an ardent sportsman and a clever boxer. The prince is the eldest son of Prince Waldemar of Denmark and a nephew of the Queen Mother of England, the Dowager Empress of Russia, and the late King George of Greece. Prince Aage inherits his good looks from his mother, an extremely beautiful princess of the house of Orleans. The prince was trained to a military career in the Danish Life Guards and during the late war he fought gallantly on the side of the allies. In 1914 he was married to the Countess Calvi di Bergolo, daughter of the Italian minister to Denmark.

From Small Beginnings

Palissy the Potter

Stretched on the floor in a dungeon of the Bastille in Paris in 1589 lay an old man, dying. He was Palissy the Potter, nearly 80 years old. If he would recant his religion he would be free; but weak though he was with age and hard usage, he preferred death to dishonor.

The spirit of "stick-to-it-iveness" had brought him fame, and now it brought him death with honor.

As a boy Palissy had tramped through the villages of France, the low countries, down the Rhine, and over the Alps into Italy. Sometimes he painted glass as he had done as apprentice to his father; sometimes he surveyed; sometimes he made pictures.

One day, as a young man, he had held in his hand a young man, he had held in his hand a porcelain cup brought from China. No one in all Europe could make a cup like that. Palissy said to himself: "I'll do it if it takes a lifetime." It did take a lifetime, and he never made the cup, but he made better pottery than any one in Europe had made before—he made himself a thorough man; and he made his name immortal.

After his first tramping trip he had married. To support his family he had to survey salt swamps, paint glass and make pictures, but he found time to learn to make pottery. Then, for 16 desperate years he made nothing but pottery. Money disappeared. He broke up his scanty furniture to keep his kilns burning. He chopped up the walls and floors. His wife and all who knew him called him "The Mad Potter."

He made a glazing so fine that the king called him to court and protected him for 30 years until he was accused of heresy. In those busy years he refreshed his mind by studying springs, fossils, agriculture and philosophy, and became a learned man whose lectures stimulated scholars. In the field of pottery no one could rival him. His blues, browns, grays and greens were beyond imitation. From being a mere tramp he had become the world's greatest potter. His realm in prison was that of a martyr and hero.

Stories That Recall Others

Not the Answer Expected

At a lecture the speaker orated fervently: "He drove straight to his goal. He looked neither to the right, nor to the left, but pressed forward, moved by a definite purpose. Neither friend nor foe could delay him or turn him from his course. All who crossed his path did so at their own peril. What would you call such a man?"

"A truck driver," shouted a voice from the audience."

The Wrong Sign

A professional beggar who had a profitable stand at the New York approach to the Brooklyn Bridge waxed indignant when a woman handed him a Canadian dime.

"I can't use this," he remonstrated. "It's no good in this country. It's Canadian money."

"You are a fraud,' she snapped. It says on that sign hung round your neck, 'I am blind.'"

"Is that so?" queried the panhandler in a tone of concern. "Then they put the wrong sign on me today. It should a been: 'I am deaf and dumb.'"

POETRY

NEW ENGLAND FARMHOUSES.

They stand forth frankly to the world
—four-square
And solid, plain, disdaining ornament.
Their barns and woodsheds quite as prominent
As porch or parlor is! They have the air
Of having been designed for work or wear—
To beauty they appear indifferent,
Like homely women, worthy, excellent,
Who scorn the vanities of ladies fair!

Such houses, unaware of coquetry
Have no small balconies, no inglenooks,
No dear retreats for which a lover looks—
They have not learned the lure of mystery,
Yet they achieve a beauty none denies—
One looks at them—as in a mother's eyes!

—Rosella M. Montgomery, in Stamford Advocate.

TO A HUMMING-BIRD.

Voyager on golden air,
Type of all that's fleet and fair,
Incarnate gem,
Live diadem,
Bird-beam of the summer day,
Whither on your sunny way?

Loveliest of all lovely things,
Roses open to your wings;
Each gentle breast
Would give you rest;
Stay, forget lost Paradise,
Star-bird, fallen from happy skies.

Vanished! Earth is not his home;
Onward, onward, must he roam,
Swift passion-thought,
In rapture wrought,
Issue of the soul's desire,
Plumed with beauty and with fire.

—John Vance Cheney.

CITY MEETING VOTES IN FAVOR OF DEEP RIVER WATER SUPPLY

By a vote of about 300 electors of the City of Norwich, the Deep River reservoir project, so called, was carried at a 43 minute special city meeting, held Tuesday night in the town hall. Steps will be taken immediately to float a bond issue of $1,080,000 to provide sufficient funds to carry out the project of bringing an additional 2,500,000 gallons daily supply to the 3,000,000 gallon supply the city now has, thus giving the City of Norwich a dependable daily water supply of 5,500,000 gallons.

The vote to go through with the Deep River project was not made without a fight by those opposed to the measure and for a time it looked as though the entire matter would be laid on the table, and the city be compelled to find some means of gaining an additional supply nearer at hand, either by metering to save water, using a pumping station or using some water shed nearer at hand, if available.

When the meting was called to order at 8 o'clock by His Honor Mayor Milo R. Waters, slightly over 150 voters were in the hall but this number was added to steadily and doubled in size before the final voting was done.

The main opposition to bonding the city for $1,080,000 was voiced by Edward Kirby and he had the support of a number of voters assembled in the hall. Throughout his argument Mr. Kirby spoke in favor of the project, provided no other means was available for obtaining more water, but he advocated waiting and trying metering 100 per cent in the city, use of pumps and use of nearer available supplies before spending this amount of money.

The remarks in favor of securing Deep River for the reservoir were made by H. H. Gallup and Chief Howard L. Stanton, while data for exolanation was furnished by Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., and City Engineer Shepard B. Palmer.

Following the reading of the call by City Clerk Weston C. Pullen the resolution to appropriate the necessary money was presented by Corporation Counsel Shields, as follows:

RESOLVED, That the court of common council of the City of Norwich be, and it is hereby authorized to appropriate a sum of money not to exceed one million eighty thousand dollars ($1,080,000.00) for acquiring and constructing a permanent water supply for the city with a reservoir on the Deep River watershed, so called, in the Town of Colchester, Connecticut, the same to be acquired and constructed in accordance with a resolution adopted by the board of water commissioners of the City of Norwich on July 13th 1925 and approved by the court of common council of said city at a meeting thereof held July 24th, 1925.

Explains Water Situation.

Upon moving the adoption of the resolution he had presented, Corporation Counsel Shields by way of explanation said that a shortage of water in Norwich was felt last fall and that a pumping station was operated to supply 2,000,000 gallons daily. The situation today, he said, is worse than when the pump was started and the board of water commissioners investigated the matter and concluded that the Deep River water shed was the best available reservoir being selected in preference to Gardner Lake, Pease brook or any others looked into.

On July 13, 1925 the commission voted to adopt the recommendations of Chandler & Palmer for the 400,000,000 water shed, this report being adopted by the common council on July 24th. Money is needed for this development, he said, and the consent of the voters is needed before the money can be spent. Deep River was favored, he said, because of its higher elevation, better bottom, and because Pease brook could be added later if necessary without much additional cost.

He then moved that Clerk Pullen cast one affirmative vote for the resolution.

Remarking on the resolution presented, Mr. Kirby stated that he did not favor it as there was no need of additional water supply at the present time, that there was no dire necessity for water and if it was needed we have the means right at our door to use a supply of water which would furnish 2,000,000 gallons a day additional it has cost us $50,000 for a pumping station, he said and this is taking care of the situation. These dry periods come and go, he said, but the supply is sufficient. Let me say right here that Deep River is 3 1-2 miles away and the $1,080,000 asked for doesn't include the mill rights. I understand that one mill wants $100,000 for its rights and that others will go to court to get their price if necessary.

Compares Westerly to Norwich.

Even if you vote for it, two years will pass before you get the additional water, this mean 1927 and possibly longer. I am not in favor of this proposition, said Mr. Kirby, property owners are interested for if we float these bonds we assume an interest debt of $75,000 a year and it will be years before the water department will make any return. We have paid $100 a day to operate our pump while Westerly does so for $72 a day. We own our own gas and electric plant so why should the cost be so much? Even if we pumped for three months in the year we will save money as against the interest on the bond issue. The dam they speak of building is fifty feet high and one fifth of a mile long. Just think what this will cost and where is the market for the water when we get it?

Would our gas plant pay 4 per cent. if the department was but 40 per cent. metered? We know it would not. Figures show that we use more water at night than during the day. We ought to be 100 per cent. metered like New London. Meter your city and your problem is solved. This is an old project and I will vote for it, if they try to save money first by trying other methods of giving us a dependable supply.

Motion To Lay On Table

At this time Mr. Kirby moved by way of amendment that the motion be laid on the table and there was considerable applause.

Mayor Waters asked Mr. Kirby if he insisted on having his motion put through without allowing both sides to be heard on the question and Mr Kirby said that he thought that the other side had made its statement through Corporation Counsel Shields. He stated that he would not press his motion if others were to be heard.

Mayor Waters then stated that he would like to hear from City Engineer Palmer, asking him to answer the following questions brought out by Mr. Kirby during his remarks—that the water rights were not included in the estimate—that metering the city would save money—what quantity of water was furnished from Stony Brook—the standing of the the state department of health on Trading Cove brook.

Trading Cove Brook "Emergency"

City Engineer Palmer stated that the state department of health gave Norwich permission to use the water from Trading Cove brook only as an emergency measure and that this was now closed and could be opened again only at their sanction. When the department gave permission to use Trading Cove brook, he said, they made it plain that Norwich should immediately take steps to procure more water.

Concerning metering the city, he said, we have a dependable water supply of 3,000,000 a day. Stony Brook was estimated to supply 1,500,000 gallons daily the same as Fairview and this has proven true. We are now using 4,000,000 gallons a day, 1,000,000 gallons over our supply. If we install meters we must save 25 per cent. and then we would be only on the safety line. There are 5,000 taps in the city and 2,000 are metered, these including hotels, mills, boarding houses, restaurants and all large consumers of water. The houses make up the taps not metered and we must save all water from this source. We would save some water by this means, he said, but the use of water in Norwich is increasing as is shown by the records. The Venturi meters show that the night consumption of water is not less than two million gallons a day, and the average considered good is 50 per cent. of the daily use, which, in Norwich, is 4,000,000 gallons. We find this average in week days mostly and it is accounted for by factories which are consumers 24 hours in the day.

Speaks For Project

H. H. Gallup gained the floor and stated that he was surprised at the opposition to the reservoir project. A competent board of water commissioners have decided on the project, he said. The common council, equally divided between parties, is unanimous on the project, thus making no chance for politics, and I supposed there would be a unanimous vote here, said Mr. Gallup. I have lived here since 1868, the time of the Fairview reservoir and I have seen growth here and we are still growing. Water is a necessity of life and we had better get Deep River while we may. Don't let us delay. Westerly gets her supply from wells but we have several times the population of Westerly We will sell more water as time goes on so let's have it to sell. This Deep River supply is of sufficient elevation to furnish not only drinking water and water for the houses, but will afford protection against fire on such high spots as Jail Hill. With our efficient fire department we should be able to take care of them. I hope the project is not turned down.

More Pressure Needed

Chief Howard L. Stanton then gained the floor and mentioned that permits are coming in faster than ever for new houses and buildings and all need water. I am in favor of water, he said, and I also favor meters. I am in hopes that the new reservoir will give us from 30 to 40 pounds pressure in the hill sections, at least 25 pounds pressure on Jail Hill. The time has arrived, said Chief Stanton, to remember that we are penalized for our water system. We are now class B and if we ever want a class A rating we must get it through changing our water system.

He then asked Mr. Palmer what the pressure would be in the hill sections and received an answer that 35 pounds pressure would be furnished by Deep River.

What we need, said Chief Stanton, is bigger water mains and pressure, for if we do not the people in houses on high ground must expect to burn. I have seen water shortages from 1891 up and last year the fire department bought hose and prepared to go to the docks for water to get it to Chelsea if needed. Our pipes are too small. I would like to see 6-inch pipes and see our 4-inch and 6-inch pipes replaced. I hope the Deep River piping will not be like Stony Brook when 24-inch mains were voted and the 24-inch went only to the cemetery, then into a 20-inch and then to the 16-inch The 24-inch pipe should have gone to Breed hall. I favor the project, said Chief Stanton, in closing his remarks.

Advocates Gardner Lake

Mr. Kirby again gained the floor and stated that if Stony Brook ever failed the city need only go two and one-half miles to reach Gardner Lake where there is a pondage of 1,500,000,000 gallons. To pipe this to Stony Brook would cost but $400,000, he said, and there are less mills to buy out. He asked Mr. Palmer if options had been secured on Gardner Lake and Mr. Palmer informed him that no options had been secured. Gardner Lake, continued Mr. Kirby, is 370 feet above sea level and Chief Stanton would need new hose if this was used. Why not put a tank on Jail Hill, he said. No, they don't want to do this, they want to spend the million.

I move that the motion be laid on the table because the income would never pay for the cost of Deep River project and the city is already bonded to the limit, and I understand that some Boston banks refuse to purchase these new bonds.

Called for a vote on the motion to lay on the table, there was a roar of ayes and a slightly larger one of nays. Some cried "doubt" when Mayor Waters declared the motion to table defeated but after the vote on the original motion to appropriate the $1,080,000 was taken there was no challenge to his announcement, "The motion is carried." City Clerk Weston C. Pullen then cast the ballot and the city had voted for Deep River.

From this point on the remaining motions necessary to complete the work and furnish power to the city to issue bonds and borrow money went through without a voice being heard in opposition and many people left the hall realizing that the vote would be in favor of motions for the Deep River project.

Corporation Counsel Shields presented his second motion, which was unanimously adopted as follows:

Voted: That this meeting approves and authorizes the issuance of bonds by the city of Norwich to the amount of one million, eighty thousand dollars ($1,080,000.00), either in one lot or in several lots, from time to time, under the provisions of an act of the general assembly of the state of Connecticut entitled "An act authorizing the city of Norwich to issue water bonds" passed at its January session, 1923, and approved May 21st, 1925.

In presenting the third and final motion, Corporation Counsel Shields explained that the sum asked for $50,000 was to be borrowed that work might be started immediately and that this sum would be paid back out of the money realized from the sale of bonds. His motion which was carried by one affirmative vote of the city clerk was as follows:

RESOLVED, That authority and sanction be and the same are hereby given to the borrowing by the city of a sum of money not to exceed fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00) said sum of money so to be borrowed to be used for the purpose of meeting the expenses that may be incurred by the city under the appropriation that was authorized by this meeting for a permanent water supply for the city, such sum so to be borrowed to be repaid out of the avails of the sale of the bond issue authorized and approved by this meeting, and the notes or certificates of the city may be given and are hereby authorized and sanctioned for such sum so to be borrowed.

The meeting adjourned at 9.48 o'clock after having been in session but 43 minutes, most of which were filled with action.

The committee in charge of arranging for bids for the work and the arranging for the issuance of bonds will start working immediately in hopes to complete some of the work before the coming of winter. The appropriation of $50,000 will be used for the taking up of options and making necessary purchases to get the new reservoir project under way within a few weeks.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS METHODIST LAWN PARTY

Pleasant weather attracted a good sized crowd to the lawn fete Tuesday evening on Huntington Green, Norwich Town, held under the auspices of the First Methodist Episcopal church, many having attended from other churches. This is the third festival of its kind at this location the past week and the cordial spirit and co-operation regardless of denomination, has been most pleasing to the townspeople who have had a part on the several different occasions.

At the festival Tuesday evening Lewis Aldrich was the general chairman, assisted by the several classes of the Sunday school, under the supervision of the following teachers: Mrs. James B. Aldrich, Mrs. George Manning, Mrs. Albert Miner, Mrs. Richard Carter, Miss Gertrude Tefft, and Miss Theodora Brown, who made up the various committees.

The express purpose of th efestival was to defray the expenditures of the recent Sunday school picnic at Mohegan Park; also to raise a good sum toward the repair fund for necessary improvements to the Methodist parsonage on West Town street, which are being accomplished through the efforts of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, of which Mr. Aldrich is president.

The same colored electric light bulbs strung on three sides of Huntington Green used on the two previous occasions, were courteously donated for use on Tuesday evening.

In charge of the several tables, etc., were: Ice cream, Mrs. George Manning's class, Rev. James B. Adrich, Lewis Aldrich, Edward Howe, and others; cake, Mrs. James B. LINEMAN DIES FROM INJURIES IN FALL

Max Anthony Dempske, 23, of 723 Boswell avenue, lineman employed by the Connecticut company, died Tuesday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock as the result of injuries received when he fell a distance of 25 feet to the pavement at Franklin square early Tuesday morning. Mr. Dempske was working with a night crew changing over wires near Preston Bros. store. Shortly after 2 o'clock he lost his balance, somehow, and pitched headlong to the pavement.

An emergency call was sent in for the ambulance and Dr. Paul A. Gadie called. Captain Thomas P. Murphy despatched the patrol wagon and officers to the scene of the accident and the unfortunate man was rushed to the hospital in the patrol which was on hand before the ambulance arrived.

The young man remained in an unconscious condition throughout the day, steadily losing ground and death came at 5:15 o'clock. Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve conducted an investigation and announced that death was due to a fractured skull. Dr. Gildersleeve said he found no signs of the young man coming in contact with a charged wire. It was at first thought that he had come in contact with a 550-volt current and had been knocked to the pavement. Besides a fractured skull, he received a gash in the back of his head, a broken arm and other injuries.

Max Anthony Dempske was born in Norwich Sept. 15, 1901, the son of Antone and Theresa Dempske and had passed all his life in this city. He graduated from the Greeneville school and for the last seven years had been employed by the Connecticut company. Mr. Dempske was a member of Germania lodge, Sons of Hermann, and also a member of the Foresters. He attended Park Congregational church.

Mr. Dempske leaves his parents, two brothers, Arthur and Bernard, and a sister, Miss Rose Dempske, all at home. He was well known and extremely popular with his many friends who learned with deep regret of his sudden and untimely death.

The meeting voted to bring this matter to the attention of the city authorities and the state police.

Another matter that came up for discussion was he feasibility of providing electric lights for the recreation field so that the field can be used for croquet, tennis, etc., at night. THOUGHT DEAD MAN HAD COME TO LIFE

Stories have been told of the dead returning to life or of people being buried alive. One traveling salesman passing through Norwich, Tuesday, thought for a time that the dead had come to life.

Passing close to a casket box, at the local New Haven railroad station, the salesman heard a low moan as of someone in anguish, coming from the box. He could hardly believe his ears and leaned closer to make sure. Again came a low moaning sound.

Rushing up to some men standing not far away, pale as a ghost, he exclaimed, "My ——, there's a live person in that coffin." Hastening to the box the men speedily unscrewed the cover and lo and behold, up sat the "dead" man, smiling broadly all the while, very much alive and healthy.

The salesman looked, rubbed his eyes, then seeing that he was the "goat," grinned sheepishly, tucked his case under his arm and made himself minus.

The joke had been planned in advance by the men at the station, one of the gang volunteering to act "dead" for a while, suffering himself to be locked into the wooden box to await the arrival of a victim.

SERGT. MATTHEW DELANEY STOPS RUNAWAY HORSE

The usual quiet and peace of Boswell avenue was rudely broken Tuesday evening by a runaway horse attached to a buggy. The horse started on his dash from the vicinity of Fourth street and finally landed on Boswell avenue. The runaway dashed around the corner of Fourteenth street with Sergt. Matthew Delaney riding on the running board of a Ford, in close pursuit, and followed by a second machine.

It was a spectacular chase. Nearing the hill at 10th and 11th streets the horse slowed up somewhat, was finally outrun by the Ford and captured by Sergt. Delaney. The mad dash of the horse ended, everyone in the vicinity breathed freer as Sergt. Delaney, climbing into the buggy, drove the horse back over the course and restored it to its owner and driver

CENTRALS RALLY IN THE SIXTH AND BEAT OUT YANTIC TEAM, 6 TO 3

The Centrals won their fourth straight game and their eighth victory out of nine starts in the Twilight League Tuesday evening when they nosed out the Yantic Mills team, 6 to 3.

About the largest crowd of the season was on hand to see the game and was rewarded with a close and hard-fought exhibition. For five innings it was anybody's game but in the sixth the Centrals, displaying the fighting spirit which has marked their previous games, pushed four runs across and put the game out of reach of the up-town boys.

Gauthier pitched for the winners, and stopped Yantic, after they had made fifteen hits in each of their last two games. The Centrals' twirler allowed Yantic but six hits, and three runs, only one of which was earned, and fanned six. Three of his strike-outs came in the sixth, when he retired the side in order. In addition to his fine twirling, Gauthier knocked out a home run in the third, and played a snappy game in the field.

Gil Jones with two straight victories to his credit pitched for Yantic and was touched for eight hits and six runs. Several of these however, were the result of errors by his teammates who made a total of seven misplays in the game.

Yantic started off with a run in the first inning. With one out, H. Hoxie singled to center and when Sweet doubled into the right field swamp, went to third. Smith then shot a grounder to Tombari, and Hoxie was erased at the plate, Sweet going to third. With Jones batting, Smith started to steal second, and when Eccleston threw to second, Sweet crossed the plate. Jones then grounded out to Gauthier.

In the first half of the third, the Centrals tied up the game when Gauthier drove a home run into center field. E. Hoxie misjudging the ball.

In their half of this frame, Yantic went to the fore again, scoring two runs. McCall led off with a walk and went down to second when Tombari mussed up Cummings' grounder to short. H. Hoxie then singled to left and the bases were full. With the Central infield playing in close, Sweet drove a grounder to Tombari, and when the Central shortstop fumbled, McCall scored and the bases were still full. Smith then raised a high fly in short field which fell safe between Murphy and Tombari. Cummings scored on the play, but H. Hoxie was caught going to third. Gauthier then tightened and retired the next two men.

After scoring one run in the fifth on an error by Cummings, and singles by Cardie and A. Dugas, the Centrals went out and won the game in the sixth, tallying four times. Eccleston led off by hitting a grounder to Sweet and when the latter fumbled, the runner was safe. H. Hoxie then mussed up Yerrington's roller and the latter was safe, Eccleston going to second. Tombari dumped a bunt in front of the plate and when Jones threw wild to third in an attempt to catch Eccleston, the latter scored, and Yerrington went to third. At this point the Centrals tried he squeeze play, Gaudette bunting to the pitcher, but Yerrington was caught easily, Jones to Smith, Tombari going to third on the play. While Gauthier was fanning, Gaudette went down to second, and with two out and men on second and third, the stage was al set for Lefty Dugas. Lefty came through with a scorching single between first and second, scoring both runners, and when Marchand kicked the ball around, went down to second. Cardie then shot a single through short, and Dugas scored with the fourth run of the inning.

The ever-growing custom of allowing substitutes to run for pitchers, catchers and any other players who are too lazy to run for themselves is meeting with considerable criticism on the part of the fans and should be stopped. It seems that if a player is able to field his position and take his regular turn at bat, he should be able to run the bases if he gets on. As it is at present, a base-runner may get a substitute for practically no reason at all in fact in some cases, it is taken for granted that certain batters are unable to run the bases, and substitutes are all ready to run even before the batter in question gets on fise. It would be much better for the game if baserunners were given substitutes only when it is readily seen that they are unable to run due to some injury, rather than make a farce of it. The score:

Tonight's Game.

After a week of one-sided baseball games the crowd which numbered well over a thousand last night got the thrill of their lives in the seven innings of baseball played by the Centrals and the Yantic team. From the very beginning the huge crowd was kept on edge rooting for their favorite teams. Yantic took the lead in the very first inning and increased it in the second and until the sixth inning it looked like the Centrals were due for a tumble, but the same spirit that has kept the Centrals on top from the very start again came to the front and these youngsters fighting mad came through again in the sixth and scored four runs, enough to add another victory to their ever-increasing string.

There is no use talking, these boys are there, and it is going to be a big surprise should any team in the league stop them, not only does it seem like a pennant for them, but it also looks like they will cop the prize put up for the team winning the most games in the second half.

Tonight's game between the Palace and the Saints should be a game well worth watching as both of these teams are pretty evenly matched and will fight to the finish to add a victory to their list. After the string of bum games put up of late it now looks as if the fans are in for some good baseball as the teams are now pretty evenly matched for the remainder of the season.

Manager Oney will start either Spike Liberty or Paul Zemke against the Palace with either Mike Morin or Ruck Shahan working for the Palace. The Saints have won only one game during the season and claim that starting tonight this shall be increased rapidly, whether they will make good or not will be seen after the dust has settled tonight.

The league will be left open for the remainder of the season and no doubt all the teams will take advantage of this and all indications point toward good baseball for the remainder of the season.

CARDS MAKE IT THREE STRAIGHT FOR GIANTS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Playing without Manager Hornsby, who is under suspension, the Cardinals made it three in a row over New York by winning 4 to 2 in the series final. Bell's freak circuit clout in the eighth, with one man on base, broke the tie and won for St. Louis, his high fly dropped on the corner of the left field pavilion for a home run.

The Cardinals were without their manager and star slugger because of a three day suspension handed Hornsby for his argument with Umpire Sweeney in yesterday's game. Jimmy Cooney played in his place at second. Score:

FORMER CADDY LEADS GOLFERS AT GARDEN CITY

GARDEN City, N. Y., Aug. 4—(AP)—Raymond J. McAuliffe, of Buffalo, N. Y., ten years a Caddy, today surprised 97 other public links players by leading the field in three less than par, and equalling the amateur record for the Salisbury country club course.

The West produced two men, however, who were right on the heels of the youthful Buffalo representative. Eli Ross of Cleveland, ending his round with a fine 71 after Walter Murray of St. Louis had attained a 72. The professional record is 67.

New York's team of four, requiring 310 strokes, led 14 other players in the competition for the Warren G. Harding cup, won at Dayton last year by the Chicagoans. Cleveland, through good scoring by Davies, Harry Schweitzer and Carmen Bill, stood only two strokes behind. The standing of the other teams follows: Buffalo 313. Pittsburgh 316; Washington 316; Chicago 319; Philadelphia 320; Detroit 320; Jacksonville 320; Toronto 323; Newark 317; Baltimore 329; Dayton 332; Boston 333; Toledo 334.

PROFS WIN TIGHT GAME FROM BRASSCOS

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Gleason's single, Mayer's sacrifice and Hauk's single in the ninth inning broke up a pitching duel between Bishop and McKenty here today, New Haven winning over Waterbury, 1 to 0. Only two Waterbury runners reached third and up to the ninth only one local man saw that bag. A running catch of Bachand's liner by Yordy in the eighth was a feature. Score:
Two base hit, McCarthy.

Parke Retires

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4—(A. P.)—Jockey Ivan Parke, at one time leading American rider of the thoroughbred racers, has retired, it was learned here late today, when Parke announced he was returning to his home at Delco, Idaho, where he has purchased a ranch.

N. Y. BOXING COMMISSION PUTS BAR ON ALL BOXERS WHO FIGHT DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The bars of ineligibility, lowered against Jack Dempsey for his alleged dilatory tactics in signing for a title match with Harry Wills, were reinforced by an added barrier today when the New York state athletic commission ruled it would suspend any boxer who meets Dempsey before the champion signs articles of agreement and posts a suitable forfeit for a match with Wills.

Flaying Dempsey's letter-written tactics as an intentional evasion of the Wills' issue, Chairman James A. Farley said the commission would "wash its hands," of the whole situation until such a time as the champion or his legitimate manager binds a match with Wills with a certified bond.

"We cannot suspend Dempsey," declared Chairman Farley, "as he holds no license with this commission. We cannot declare the title vacant because we haven't the power but he is already on the ineligible list and will remain so until he signs for the Wills match. If we could declare the title vacant we would.

"However, we have taken an additional step to bring Dempsey to terms. Any boxer who fights Dempsey before the champion definitely binds himself to a match with Wills, will be promptly suspended or declared ineligible by this commission. This ruling likely will be effective in states where a working agreement exists with this board. Massachusetts, Connecticut and Pennsylvania all have a working agreement with us."

Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden promoter, told the commission that he had received a letter from Dempsey to the effect that the champion will be ready to step into the ring against Harry Wills about July 4, 1926, but the commission refused to rescind its action against Dempsey until he, himself, binds the match with a bond.

Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, said the commission had suggested to him that he prepare a set of articles and forward them to Dempsey for his signature but Mullins frowned on the suggestion. He said he did not think it was his place to take the initiative in the matter as he had already signed articles and posted a forfeit, both of which were in the hands of the commission.

Asked whether he would seek a match with Tunney in the event he was assured that Dempsey would not fight before next year, Mullins said: "Our concern right now is a bout with Dempsey. We don't care about the big money which might be realized from a Tunney match. Rickard suggested the Wills-Tunney match but I'd rather not discuss that possibility now. I asked the commission to accept Wills the world's champion but Commissioner Farley informed me that the New York board didn't have the authority to strip Dempsey of his title."

Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, whose tactics in evading a match with Dave Shade places him in a similar category with Dempsey was not disciplined by the commission today despite advance reports to the contrary. Walker's signed agreement that he will meet Shade on or before Aug. 15th is still on file with the commission and the board ruled that it would take no action against Walker until the expiration of the time limit for this match.

"If we suspend Walker now he can come back and say that his suspension prohibits him from meeting Shade," Chairman Farley said. "So we elected, today, to postpone action against him until after Aug. 15th after which time he will be indefinitely suspended. We gave Walker a license in this state to fight Harry Greb upon condition that he fights Shade on or before Aug. 15th. But he evidently will not fulfill the agreement by that time and as a result he must take the consequences."

Asked about the $10,000 bond which was posted for Walker by Humbert J. Fugazy, promoter of the Italian hospital fund matches at which Walker met Harry Greb in the main go, Chairman Farley said it would likely go to Leo P. Flynn, manager of Shade, upon demand. However, Chairman Farley added, the commissioner will have to pass upon this before definite action is taken.

Fugazy is left virtually "holding the bag," in this situation. The commission demanded a bond of $10,000 from Walker that he meet Shade on or before Aug. 15th before it would grant him a license to fight Greb. Fugazy posted the forfeit for Walker upon the latter's assurance he would meet Shade before the time limit expired.

Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, whose illness prevented him from meeting Maxey Rosenbaum here, tonight, was given two weeks to fulfill the engagement. The commission ruled that Slattery must fulfill his contract for the Rosenbaum match before he fights in this state again.

"I still hold the same position in my attitude to the New York Boxing Commission," Dempsey's statement said, "notwithstanding any consideration they have given my letters and telegrams. In the matter of courtesy and decency I am going to remain the same.

"I still insist that I will fight Harry Wills, and if New York bars the world's championship fight, I am open to propositions from boxing promoters elsewhere.

"There are two sides to all questions, and I am content to keep to the decent side, with the reiterated statement that I will fight Harry Wills and forego offers to fight any other man or men.

"If New York bars the possible match, the match is open to any or all promoters throughout the country."

"If Paddy Mullins (manager for Wills) still wants a match for the world's title, he can operate with me or not, just as it suits him.

"My proposition when in New York was to fight Harry Wills as the commission insisted and I never promised that I would return at a designated time to meet the commission personally. I did say that I could return and personally confer with the commission as a whole, and nothing has ever come from the commission naming a time when I would appear before them.

"Of course, there is method in the official decree, but it is past me to do a lot of guessing.

"Again I say that I will fight Harry Wills for any promoter who can induce Paddy Mullins to sign for a match."

SOCONY CLUB AT JEWETT CITY SUNDAY

The attraction at Ashland Park Sunday will be the fast Socony team of New London. The Oilmen have a snappy ball club, being right up there in the New London Twilight league. They defeated the Sub Base last week, the first defeat that club has tasted in the Dusty league, 8 to 0.

The Ashland team is playing wonderful ball, having won their last five games.

Lineup for both clubs will be announced in Saturday morning's Bulletin.

Elizabeth Street Downs Lake St.

Power with the willow, clever hit and run plays united with Greene's superb delivery brought the bacon home to Matt Sheridan's West Side team last nite. The winners seemed an entirely different organization from the Elizabeth team of a week ago. All the boys displayed heads of baseball through the entire nine full frames.

Lake St. found Greene more or less of an enigma. Only one hit was flicked from the victors star moundsman. Lake St.'s hurler Gillis pitched fair baseball but poor support on the part of his teammates stole victory from his grasp. For the West Side legion Shankers faultless backston work, and Serephin's hard hitting and fast fielding were the shining lights of the game. Score:

DICK KERR COMES TO HELP THE WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Big help was enroute to the Chicago White Sox tonight in the form of Tiny Dick Kerr.

Reinstated in organized baseball today upon expiration of a year during which he had refrained from playing with ineligibles, the little left-hander lost no time in starting to rejoin the club with which he reached fame in the otherwise disastrous world's series of 1919.

Kerr left his St. Louis home late today and will arrive in Boston at 11 a. m. Thursday.

He is in good physical condition, and baseball followers here expected Eddie Collins, the White Sox manager, to make immediate use of him.

In obtaining reinstatement after suspension since 1922 for violating the reserve clause in his contract, Kerr applied to R. B. Johnson, American League president, who immediately forwarded the appeal to K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner. Mr. Johnson expressed pleasure at Kerr's return.

YANKEES MAKE IT THREE FROM INDIANS

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The Yankees made it three out of four from the Cleveland Indians by winning today's game, 4 to 1. A seventh inning rally which brought across three New York runs contributed largely to the downfall of the Speaker tribe. Karr's wildness and erratic play by the Cleveland infield aided the victors. Shocker went the route for the Yanks, keeping the seven hits garnered off his delivery well scattered. The entire series is unique in that not a single pitching change was made in any of the four games by either team. The score:

HARTFORD COUNSEL AT WATERFORD-WHY? QUERY NEW LONDON LAWYERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 4—New London lawyers are wondering why Hartford attorneys are secured for so many cases in the Waterford town court, as has been the case recently. Some of the best known lawyers in the capital city have been secured by clients in that town of late, but how this comes about New London attorneys cannot state.

Gus Govas, a restaurant waiter was in the police court today for a breach of peace on complaint of Samuel Fern part owner of the Star restaurant on State street. Govas declares that the restaurant man is actuated by a desire to avoid the payment of wages to him, but that fact must be esablished in the police court tomorrow when the case is heard. There are some peculiar features to the case as Govas has worked for Fern some half dozen years but now he wanted to quit to take a long vacation and perhaps secure other employment. When Govas terminated his engagement at the Star, Fern owed him $30, a week's wages. Monday was payday so Govas went to collect. Fern then set up that a condition of the engagement of Govas years ago, was that he should work all summer and with that understanding Govas was to have a week's vacation with pay. The vacation was taken, but now, Fern holds, that he will not pay Govas because he is quitting his work before the season is ended. The men were friends till the time when Govas desired to quit work. When he asked for his wages the alleged agreement was held up to him as a reason for not paying. The men got into a debate and Fern is alleged to have thrown his arm around the neck of Govas to hold him in struggling to free himself. Govas declares that a ring he wore scratched the face of Fern. Then the latter called the police and set up the claim that he had been attacked. The facts as claimed by Mr. Fern were presented in the police court today. Govas is to appear with a battery of witnesses tomorrow.

Abram Gordon, head of the Economy stores in this city, was fined for operating an automobile without having a license in his possession.

Fred Ceccarelli, of Groton, was charged with violation of the parking ordinance, but the circumstances were such that the court suspended judgment.

Charles Travers was presented in the police court today for obtaining goods of the value of more than $99 from the Schwaner market on the representation that, as cook of the government steamer General Nathanael Greene, he was authorized to make the purchase. He resold them and made off to Hampton, Va. But he was located there and a warrant for his arrest found him and he was brought back here to explain his transaction. He could not do this in any way but to tell the truth and that led to his conviction for obtaining goods under false pretense. Travers happens to have an indulgent father and the latter is expected to make good the expense to which his son has put the state, which in this case is the city of New London, in bringing about the arrest and prosecution of Charles. That amount will be more than $130, which represents a fine of $50 imposed upon the young man today. Travers was sentenced to a jail term of 60 days, but that sentence was suspended, that he might have an opportunity to raise the money he needs.

An automobile, owned and operated by A. W. Palmer of Oswegatchie, Waterford, in pulling away from the curb on State street this afternoon was struck by a machine owned and driven by Victor Casmore, 18 Nassau St., Freeport, L. I. Both cars were slightly disfigured.

There is no change today at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital in the condition of Hugh McPartland, veteran master plumber who underwent an operation last Saturday for appendicitis. Mr. McPartland is in his 74th year.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Samuel Snitkin, 14 Cutler street, to be returned. The license was suspended two weks ago, for Snitkin's violation of the automobile law.

George G. Cook, 73, of 18 Hope St., died this morning at Norwich State Hospital, where he had been under treatment about two weeks. Mr. Cook who for many years was employed at the plant of the D. E. Whiton Machine company, is survived by his wife and a step-son, the latter residing in Hastings, N. Y.

Mrs. Joseph O'Brien, 67 Franklin St., reported to the police early this morning that a youth was prowling about the yard of her home. Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney and Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey responded in the police auto, but a search of the vicinity of the O'Brien residence did not result in locating the prowler.

A youth of about 9 was taken into custody this evening by Patrolman Clarence Martin, when the officer detected the youngster with a stolen bicycle. The boy was in the vicinity of John and Water streets and when he espied the officer he abandoned the wheel and started on a run through John street. The officer gave chase, but did not overtake the boy until he made a run of a half dozen blocks. At the police station the boy was turned over to the care of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and the wheel is being held at the station house to await a claimant.

An automobile, a public service car, owned and operated by Joseph Porretta, of Summer street, struck Walter Lambert, 10, of 161 Hill street, late this afternoon, corner of Main and Shapley streets. The youngster was taken to the office of a physician by Porretta and it was found that beyond bruises and slight lacerations, he was uninjured. After the wounds had been treated by the physician the boy was taken home.

The Providence police requested the New London authorities tonight to be on the lookout for a Buick touring car stolen from the former city this afternoon. The machine bears registration of New York issue, 3D-76-88.

Miss Doris Bishop of Sterling a patient at Lawrence hospital, was able to return home today.

An automobile, owned and driven by W. C. Braun, 21 Ann street, and traveling northerly on Howard street, was in collision with a machine owned by N. Bendett, 32 West Main street, Mystic, and traveling in the opposite direction to that of the former car and operated by Mrs. Bendett, this evening. The collision occurred when the Bendett car was attempting to pass a machine parked by the curb. Both cars were damaged, but not seriously.

THREE MORE STORES ROBBED AFTER 3 A. M. TUESDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 4—The police were inspired to renewed activity today to apprehend the gang of thieves and apparently youthful crooks, who have figured in at least a dozen robberies in lower Bank street and vicinity, the past week or ten days, for this morning it was revealed that three additional stores had been visited by the crooks and on each of the stores loot was obtained, a small amount of cash, but a good quantity of cigarettes.

Because of the boldness of the thefts and the persistency with which the crooks carried on their work, Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh and Patrolmen Edward Daniels and Clarence Martin were assigned today to make an endeavor to bring about the end of the robberies and arrest the thieves. With that end in view the officers this afternoon rounded up a gang of a dozen or more youths, who it is believed, are guilty of some of the breaks, or else have knowledge of the youthful burglars' identity. The youths are being grilled in the hopes they will tell what they know regarding the burglaries.

The places burglarized last night were the confectionery stores of Louis Satti, 777 Bank street; Mrs. Rachael Ulanoff, 149 Howard street, and Jeremiah J. Lyons, 73 Truman street. At the Satti store, the intruders removed a rear door from its hinges and entering the rear of the place, forced a door leading to the main stores by using an implement similar to a jimmy. The cash register was rifled of its contents, about $5. The other plunder taken comprised the entire stock of cigarettes, of the aggregate value of $50.

Entrance to the Ulanoff store was gained by forcing a rear door, going to the front of the place and taking about $3 in pennies, nickels and dimes from the register and then taking about $30 worth of cigarettes.

At the Lyons store a door was pried open and the entire stock of cigarettes, valued at about $25 was taken and included all the plunder obtained from this place.

At each store bags or similar articles were used to carry away the cartons of cigarettes.

The police believe that the breaks occurred after 3 o'clock, at which hour all members of the night force report off duty, except four officers, two of whom are on duty until 7 o'clock on Bank street and two others on duty on State street. The crooks, it is contended wait until they observe the officers going toward the station house and then start their work of pilfering.

All of the stores burglarized last night always keep an electric light burning, but with the opening of the stores this morning it was noticed that the lights had been turned off and that the crooks carried out their stealing in the darkness. The doors of the Ulanoff store were tried at 1 o'clock this morning by Patrolman Martin and were then secure and the officer was in front of the store at 2 o'clock and at that time the electric light in the store was burning. Martin went off duty with the 3 o'clock shift and it was after that hour that the breaks occurred, according to the police.

Following the nightly burglarizing of places of business, Acting Lieutenant Frank Howard this evening instructed the street sergeants to cause the entire number of patrolmen on Bank street and intersecting streets to exercise extreme vigilance in watching places of business and to adopt acute scrutiny of all persons, particularly youths, who are observed in the streets at a late hour. These youths also will be given a grilling as to the reason for their being about the streets and will be instructed to go to their homes. If, later, they are found about the streets, they will be taken into custody, for the police are reasonably positive that the breaks of the past fortnight have been committed by thieves of the juvenile type. There are many youthful crooks known to be about the city upon whom crime cannot be definitely fastened. Early this evening, Patrolman Patrick Sheehan observed two youths, both of whom turned out to be strangers, loitering in the vicinity of Main street and Crystal avenue. When questioned, they declared that they resided in Charlestown, R. I., and were on their way home. One had $4 and the other 30 cents. The pair were taken into custody and are being held at the police station over night and tomorrow will be forwarded to Charlestown.

CHARLIE LAWSKY AGAIN NEEDS TO BE LOCKED UP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 4.—Charlie Lawsky, of North Bank street, was taken into custody this evening by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky, at Ocean Beach, charged with intoxication. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorow morning.

Lawsky went to the shore resort during the afternoon and donned a bathing suit. It is understood that he had a supply of liquor in his bathhouse, for in a short time he became much the worse for drink; his condition became such that he was unable to take care of himself and made it necessary that he be taken charge of.

Lawsky is at liberty on bail furnished for his appearance at the next term of the superior court on a charge of assault and battery. Several weeks ago he and a companion attacked and bodily beat Prohibition Enforcement Agent Harry W. Avery, of Windham, at Montville, when Avery intercepted the pair, who were wanted by the Norwich authorities on a reckless driving charge.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Fred Thomson and Silver King in their latest F. B. O. production, "The Bandit's Baby," a hilarious thriller which has more laughs than a congressional investigation—is now showing at the Palace Theatre.

As if uproarious comedy and burlesque were not enough, "The Bandit's Baby" is a smashing action western which brings Mr. Thomson back into his familiar cowboy regalia in which he has won so many laurels for popularity. A corking horse race, a rodeo, the rescue of a youngster from the tracks in a race between a horse and a train and a dozen other features make this a remarkable picture. The story and scenario, by Leete Remick Brown and Marion Jackson respectively, develop delightful situations, not the least of which is a baby show in a western town where gun threats of the proud parents make the life of a baby judge something to think about. Del Andrews did a fine job in directing the production.

Tomorrow night will be Merchants' Night at the Palace Theatre. Many valuable presents will be given away.

Broadway Theatre.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville program that opens at the Broadway theatre tomorrow promises to set a precedent in stage entertainment. There will be the usual number of five acts, but you will be astonished when you see how much entertainment there really is in this program.

"Eve's Secret," a new Paramount picture co-starring Betty Compson and Jack Holt, which will be the feature at the Broadway theatre tomorrow, is the story of a duke who falls in love with a pretty peasant girl and sends her to Paris to be educated and then has the time of his life keeping her for himself.

The chateau of Jack Holt, Duke of Poltava, overlooks the picturesque little French village of d'Enville. Following a banquet, the duke discovers the princess, the woman he loves and ... to marry, in the arms of another man. A duel ensues. The duke kills his adversary, adding another victory to an already long list, which has earned for him the title of "The Killer."

So it is that the duke becomes disillusioned and loses all faith in the women of his own rank and turns elsewhere in his quest for happiness. But it is not until another duel passes by the boards, with the duke getting the worst of it, for the first time in his life, that he finally finds it.

"Eve's Secret" has everything—action, thrills, drama, love-interest and comedy-relief. The story is based on the Broadway stage success, "The Moon-Flower," by Zoe Akins. Clarence Badger directed and Adelaide Heilbron wrote the screen play.

William Collier, Jr., heads the cast playing in support. Others include Vera Lewis, Lionel Belmore and Mario Carillo.

At the Breed.

Moving picture thrills, like women's fashions, are continually changing. Not so long ago, train wrecks were "the rage." This season the taste runs to shipwrecks. But a fire at sea is a comparative novelty; a "creation." This time it has been executed by Bruce Mitchell in "Love's Whirlpool," which comes to the Breed theatre for a two-day run, today and Thursday.

The fire begins at the pre-dawn hour of three, when the passengers of a giant liner are deep in slumber. Flames blow off the hatch of the forward hold and, battling their way against the efforts of the ship's firefighters, send the terrified passengers dashing from their staterooms to huddle on the blistering deck.

With the fire gaining ground, panic sweeps through the ill-fated voyagers. They rush the guards at the lifeboats, crowding into one little craft until its davit ropes break and the scrambling mass is precipitated into the sea, some to swim and others to sink.

Critics who have seen "Love's Whirlpool," which was adapted to the screen by Elliott Clawson and Bruce Mitchell from the novel by Martha Lord, "The Inner Sight," have declared the fire scene to be one of the most realistic and pulse-thrilling actions of a photodrama ever pictured. To see it, they say, is to feel that one is in the midst of its vortex—a fighting, struggling participant in its terrors.

James Kirkwood, Lila Lee and Madge Bellamy have leading roles, while others in the cast are Robert Agnew as Larry, Mathew Betz as "Pinkey" Sellers, an underworld spy; Edward Martindel as the banker; Margaret Livingston as a maid in the Milton home; Madge Bellamy as the financier's daughter, Clarence Geldert as his lawyer, and Joe Mills as "Parson" Monks, an ex-convict.

HELP FOR MOTHERS OF AILING DAUGHTERS

Mrs. Quigg and Mrs. Betton Tell in the Following Letters What Is Best To Do

DAUGHTER OF MRS. QUIGG
210 MAIN STREET, ROYERSFORD, PA.

Royeraford, Pa. — "My daughter was sickly from the time she was 13 years old, and when she was 16 she was irregular and also had severe headaches and pains in her sides and back. She was this way about six months before I began giving her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly although she had tried it before. It helped her very much. She is not bothered by headaches, backaches, or cramps any more, and has not missed but one days work. We recommend it to other mothers with girls who have these troubles." —Mrs. QUIGG, 210 Main Street, Royeraford, Pa.

Mrs. Betton's Letter

Ridgely, Md.—"I want to tell you how much good your Vegetable Compound has done my daughter. Before she started taking your medicine she was in a nervous, run-down condition, so that she could hardly sleep at night. She always had a pain in her side and sometimes cramps so that she would have to go to bed. She is a schoolgirl and was going to school only half the time because she was so weak and run-down she could not stand it to walk there some days. She was this way for three or four years. She had been reading your advertisements in the different newspapers and she noticed that some of the girls and women had suffered just as she had. So she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and is a lot better. With the first bottle everybody could see a big change. She can go to school every day and can eat just as much as any one else, when before she did not have any appetite. We have told others about the medicine, and we are perfectly willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial. We are also willing to answer letters from other women concerning the help my daughter has received from the Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. JOSEPH BETTON, Ridgely, Maryland.

YANTIC

Mr. and Mrs. William Kempton have been entertaining their granddaughter, Miss Grace Kempton of Springfield, Mass., who recently won a Jilliard fellowship, giving her an advanced course in vocal and piano studies in New York city, under Madam Sembrick and Joseph Lhevinne. Miss Kempton won her scholarship in a competitive contest as the Jilliard Institution offers such fellowships to music students—similar to the fellowship at Fontainebleau where so many are competing artistic studies in France.

Miss Mae Bannatyne, of Washington, D. C., has been the guests of Miss Elizabeth Kempton for several days.

Miss Sadie Goldberg and Mr. and Mrs. George Yeomans have returned to their homes in New York, after a few days' stay at Pine Tree cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Briggs and daughters Ruth and Gladys have returned, after a stay at Lord's Point.

Mrs. W. W. Bentley, Mrs. John Brooks and children, John, Ruth, Warrenton and Barbara, and Mrs. George Doyle and daughter June have returned following a month's stay at the Lewis cottage, Lord's Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Fishbone and son Elliot of New York are spending the month in Yantic as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fishbone.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lane and sons Arthur and Lawrence have returned from a two weeks' stay at Atlantic City, N. J.

Miss Oliver, of Lynn, is spending the week as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Louis Oliver, of Hartford, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hamilton.

Miss Florence Congdon has returned from a six weeks' stay in Providence with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kelly and daughter Sarah Louise are guests this week of Mrs. Kelly's sister, Mrs. R. V. Congdon.

Mrs. George Smith has returned to Meriden after a visit at the Bogne homestead.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Congdon and Raymond Congdon Jr. were recent visitors in Providence.

If it weren't for bachelors there would be no flirts and vice versa.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks higher; General Motors and American Can at record tops.

Bonds easy; Tokio Electric $24,000,000 issue sold.

Foreign exchanges firm; Danish kroner up 40 points.

Cotton barely steady, bearish private crop reports.

Sugar featureless.

Chicago

Wheat strong; unfavorable Canadian northwest news.

Corn higher; sympathy wheat.

Cattle quiet; choice grades scarce.

Hogs steady; shipping outlet narrow.

MARKET WAS BROAD

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—High grade industrials led another broad upward movement in today's market. The advance, with which ranged from 1 to 7 points in many issues, took place in the face of a stiffening of call money rates and a bear attack against the Pan-American issues which broke about 3 points each.

United States Steel common was one of the late leaders, rising 1 3-4 points to 129 1-2 on buying attributed to powerful financial interests. In view of the fact that preliminary estimates point to a reduction of between 100,000 and 300,000 tons in the July unfilled orders to be made public dance was attached to the buying of this issue.

The so-called "Rich Men's Stocks" which have been whirled upward recently on the prospect of capital split-ups and increased dividends, again established new maximum prices for the year. American Can touched 215 7-8; Mack Trucks 187 3-8; Dupont 201; International Telephone 137 1-4; United Drug 133 1-2, and Atlantic Coast Line 182 1-4, most of them closing near the top. Nash Motors, which sold as low as 381 yesterday, rallied above 423 today for a net gain of more than 15 points.

Except for the announcement that Herbert G. Wylie had resigned as president and manager of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport corporation there was no news to account for the weakness of the Pan-American issues, that A stock closing nearly 3 points lower at 67 1-4 and the B stock showing a net loss of 3 3-8 at 67 1-8. In some quarters this selling was regarded as a prelude to the offering of common stock of the Pan-American Western Petroleum, which will retain ownership of the Doheny California properties, and in others to a fear that the dividend policy of the present company will not be liberal under Standard Oil of Indiana control.

Publication of several unusually favorable earnings statements furnished the groundwork for an advance in numerous specialties. Certain-teed Products touched a new high for 1923 at 55 7-8; Simmons company at 48; Ginter company at 48 1-8, Coca Cola at 140 7-8; Public Service of New Jersey at 85 7-8, Columbia Gas and Electric at 74 3-4; Virginia Railway and Power at 123; Douglas Pestin at 23 1-2; New York Shipbuilding at 57, New York Canners at 52 1-2, and South Porto Rican Sugar at 80. The future advance in General Motors which attained a new maximum price at 93 3-8, was in anticipation of a special dividend distribution at the next meeting. While Motors Fisher Body and Hays Wheel were strong.

Steady accumulation of Loew's Inc., which reached a record top at 32 3-4, was in anticipation of an early increase in the annual dividend to $2, current earnings being estimated at the rate of nearly three times that amount.

Heaviness of the equipments was due to the relatively poor semi-annual report of the American Locomotive company. Brown Shoe broke nearly five points on profit taking.

Except for the eight point jump in Atlantic Coast Line and the establishment of new peak prices by the Wabash issues there was little of interest in the rail group.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 per cent., and then advanced to 4 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Except for a further advance in the Danish and Norwegian currencies there were few changes of importance in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled firm around $4.85 3-8 and French francs just below 4.5.

W. H. CARD POULTRY HOUSE IS DEDICATED AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. —Over 500 hundred were present today for the opening of Farmer's week at the Connecticut Agricultural college. Sectional meetings were held in homemaking, beekeeping and poultry, with large attendance at all meetings throughout the day. The W. H. Card Poultry house, erected by the Connecticut Poultry association in honor of the late Judge W. H. Card, of Manchester, was dedicated as a part of the poultrymen's program this afternoon.

Farmers' week will continue through Friday, with meetings, devoted to the various agricultural interests and homemaking being given each day. Connecticut Feed Dealers will hold a two day session beginning tomorrow afternoon. George L. Farley, state club leader in Massachusetts will give an address in Hawley Armory tomorrow night.

An interesting and instructive program that held the attention of the women was given today, the first of the four homemaking programs that will be given between now and Friday. Standards of living in Connecticut farm homes, standards for judging home products at fairs, pointers in nutrition, essentials in keeping children healthy, and a conference hour for young mothers at the college infirmary were the high lights of today's homemaking program.

Among those who lectured and gave demonstrations of home appliances were the following: Mrs. M. E. Dakin, nutrition specialist, at Storrs; Dr. L. C. Dunn, geneticist for the Storrs Experiment station; I. G. Davis, professor of agricultural economics at the state college; Miss Lizbeth Macdonald, extension specialist in home nursing; Miss Glynn of the Singer Sewing Machine company; F. W. Knipe, professor of agricultural engineering at Storrs; Miss Dorothy Buckley, nutrition specialist, and Miss Lucille Brewer, food specialist of the New York State Extension service. At 4:30 this afternoon, an informal tea was held for the women in the College Practice house.

Discussing "Standards of Living" Professor I. G. Davis of the economics department of the college based his talk on the recently conducted economic survey of the town of Lebanon. Exactly $1,402 was the average expenditure in 1924 for the 119 families interviewed. Over this amount contributed 16 per cent as follows: Food 45.6; clothing, 13.8 per cent; furniture and furnishings, 1.8; operating expenses, 14.3; maintenance of health, 3.6; advancement, 4.4; personal, 3.9; insurance, 2.—

That the housewife's working day is approximately 13 hours per day in addition to the time spent at meals and in rest was the statement of Professor Davis. About three quarters of an hour was the average time devoted to rest, no day, he said.

Rickets, their cause, prevention and cure, was the topic discussed by Dr. L. C. Dunn, geneticist of the Storrs Experiment station, in his talk, "Pointers in Nutrition Gained From Recent Experiments." Dr. Dunn based his remarks on experiments conducted on rats and chickens, and his talk was illustrated with examples of properly and improperly fed chickens.

Other features of the homemaking program included the following talks: "Keeping the Kitchen Cool in Summer," Mrs. M. F. Talkin, of the college extension service; demonstrations on how to use the sewing machine attachments, by Miss Glynn, of the Singer Sewing Machine Co.; "Power Machinery for the Farm Home," F. W. Knipe, professor of agricultural engineering; a conference hour for young mothers, with Miss Lizbeth Macdonald and Mrs. M. E. Dodge, of the college extension service in charge;; "Standards for Judging Home Products at Fairs," Miss Lucille Brewer, of the New York State Extension service; "Some Essentials in Keeping Children Healthy," Miss Dorothy Buckley, of the college extension service.

Beekeepers Meet

The first of the two-sessions for Connecticut's beekeepers was well attended today, when a program covering diseases, the significance of locality, and new methods in beekeeping was presented by a group of apiary experts. These included: Dr. Philip Garman, assistant entomologist of the Connecticut Experiment station; E. G. Carr, deputy bee inspector in New Jersey; and L. B. Crandall, professor of agriculture at the state college.

"Treating Brood Diseases of Bees," by Dr. Philip Garman of the Connecticut Experiment station was the first talk on the beekeepers' program. The cause, diagnosis and treatment of European Foul Brood, American Foul Brood, and Sac Brood, was the theme of Dr. Garman's talk, during which he told of several interesting experiments in the treating of diseased combs.

"The Differentiation of Bee Diseases" and "The Significance of Locality in Beekeeping," were the two subjects taken by E. G. Carr, deputy bee inspector of New Jersey. European Four Brood, American Foul Brood and Brood Sac were the three diseases discussed by Mr. Carr.

In determining how many eggs a queen bee would lay in twenty-four hours, Professor L. B. Crandall said that recent experiments showed that the average queen would lay in the vicinity of 1,000 eggs in this time.

Poultry House Dedicated.

Feeding for winter egg production, sanitation, the ethics of advertising, the chemistry of eggs, and the 1925 poultry tour were the subjects emphasized in the all day program for poultrymen, which was given in Hawley Armory. The big event of the day came later, however, when the group met in a body at the college poultry plant for the dedication of the Card Memorial Poultry House, erected by the Connecticut Poultry Association in honor of the late Judge W. H. Card of Manchester, nationally known poultry judge and breeder, and a staunch supporter of Connecticut's poultry industry. This was followed by demonstrations in culling, caponizing, post-mortem examinations, and dry picking.

Poultry authorities from this and other states took part in the program, including the following: William F. Kirkpatrick, professor of poultry husbandry at Storrs; E. Newton Searles of Deerfield, president of the Connecticut Poultry Association; W. H. Allen, poultry specialist from New Jersey; H. S. Schwenk of the chemistry department at Storrs; Dr. John D. Clark of Abington; Roy E. Jones, Connecticut Poultry Specialist; Paul P. Ives, New Haven County Club Leader; Henry T. Covell, superintendent of the Storrs International Egg Laying Contest; Carl O. Dossin assistant poultry specialist and Walton P. Clark, instructor in poultry husbandry at Storrs.

In his talk on "Recent Legislation Affecting Poultrymen," Professor William F. Kirkpatrick, head of the poultry department at Storrs, outlined and discussed laws concerning the protection of poultry from disease, the means of redress in case damage is suffered through the depredations of dogs, an amendment to the Public Acts of 1925, relating to straying geese, and the new act regulating the height of poultry shipping coops.

W. H. Allen, formerly assistant poultry specialist at C. A. C., and now poultry specialist for the state of New Jersey took for his topic "Feeding For Winter Egg Production."

E. Newton Searles, president of the Connecticut Poultry Association made a strong plea for honesty in advertising in his talk, "The Ethics of Advertising, or Reading Between the Lines." All advertisements should be so framed that any reader could easily check up and prove or disprove the statements made, he said.

That the color of the shell has no influence on the quality of the egg was the contention of H. S. Schwenk of the chemistry department at Storrs in his talk, "What is in an Egg as the Chemist Sees It," given before Connecticut poultrymen this morning. He also stated that the color of the yolk of an egg has no influence on the nutritive value, and that there was no basis in fact for the preference in yolk color shown by many consumers of eggs.

Plans for the 1925 auto tour of the Connecticut Poultry Association were outlined by Roy E. Jones, poultry specialist at the state college. Characterizing it as a vacation with a financial return, Mr. Jones said visits would be made at many of the best poultry farms in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

The dedication of the Card Memorial Poultry House took place this afternoon at the college poultry plant.

Paul P. Ives, New Haven County Club Leader, made the dedication address before a large gathering of poultrymen and others interested in 4H Club work.

Speaking of the late Judge Card and his influence on Connecticut poultry industry, Professor William F. Kirkpatrick of the poultry department at Storrs said "Wid" was self made. He enjoyed virtually no educational advantages. At the time of his marriage he was stevedoring at the princely wage of $1.50 a day. The average person beginning life with these handicaps would die, unhonored, unwept, and unsung, but not so with "Wid." He was shrewd enough to recognize his own shortcomings, and rise of the stepping stones of his dead self to higher things.

THREE SUITS AS RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENT

Richard G. Waterous, Jr., of Windham and Hallal A. Chapman of Scotland are defendants in superior court suits brought against them by Angie G. Chapel, Grace Home, and Dan D. Home of Montville as the result of an automobile accident on the Norwich-Willimantic road, last month. It is alleged in the complaint that Angie G. Chapel and Grace Home, both of Montville, each suing for $2,500 damages, were passengers in an automobile, owned and operated by Dan D. Home, also of Montville, who seeks $1,500 damages. On July 12, 1924, while said auto was proceeding in a southeasterly direction on the Willimantic-Norwich road, and about one mile west of Williams Crossing, the defendant, Richard Howard Wilcox of this city, has been disallowed by the executors of the estate, George E. Parsons, of Norwich and Jesse H. Wilcox, of Mystic. Lucius Howard Wilcox, the claimant, conducts a fish business at Osgood's wharf and presented his claim for personal services to the late Captain Lennen, representing in his claim that he assisted the captain about during his ailment, and at his request, and that his services were therefore worth $100 a week. The claimant also alleged other favors.

WOMAN BRINGS SUIT TO RECOVER $1,000 DAMAGES

Damages of $1,000 are sought by Katherine Hotchkiss Morse, of New London, in a suit which she has brought against A. Metcalf Morse, Jr., and the National Bank of Commerce of New London. According to the complaint, on Feb. 2, 1925, it is alleged that A. Mecalf Morse, Jr., wrongfully took certain goods and chattels from the possession of the plaintiff and has ever since wrongfully detained them.

Christopher L. Avery, a judge of the superior court, has issued a temporary injunction enjoining the National Bank of Commerce, officers, servants, agents and employes, under a penalty of $1,000, to refrain from parting with the possession and control of the above goods.

Laputz was arrested about 11 o'clock Tuesday night on a warrant charging theft.

At the home of Jos. Mikolych, near No. 23 Fourth street, the searching party uncovered 20 yards of cloth, four pieces, valuation $4. NORWICH TOWN

The First Congregational Sunday school picnic is to be held Thursday at Ocean Beach. A special trolley car for the school is to leave the Congregational chapel that morning at 9:15 o'clock (daylight saving time). When this car has been filled, adults and all others who care to join, especially those connected with the church, will be expected to take one of the regular cars. Several will go by automobile. Basket lunches will be carried. The committee in charge of the arrangements comprises Frank E. Sterry, Miss Margaret Chapin, Philip B. Whaley and Mrs. Charles Barbet, Jr.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, and Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, exchanged pulpits Sunday morning. At the Norwich Town church, Rev. Mr. Ricketts preached a helpful and inspiring sermon on "Sin and Mercy," after reading the parable of the Prodigal Son. Mention was made of Dr Parker, who gave an address some years ago in London, England, before an audience of 1,700. The service was attended by Rev. Mr. Ricketts and his father. Dr. Parker's definition of sin so gripped his listeners, that at the close of the service, men scarcely spoke to one another.

At the Sunday morning worship, Rev. Mr. Ricketts said: Sin is such a rebellion against God, it is as though sinners struck the Almighty in the face with clenched fists. The mercy of God is great, as in the case of the prodigal son, who said, "I will arise and go to my Father." God is always willing to forgive; but sinners should also be willing to be forgiven. He is more than anxious to forgive the willing ones.

Prior to his sermon at the Greeneville church, Rev. Mr. Bailey conducted a short service at 9:30 o'clock at Norwich State hospital. The service, which lasted one-half hour, was held in the hospital auditorium. Rev. Mr. Bailey spoke to his congregation about Zaccheus. The main thought expressed was that Christ will help people, if they will let Him. Christ helped Zaccheus, because he was willing to let him.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, of Peck's Corner, expect to leave Thursday morning by automobile, for Northfield, Mass., where they will visit at the home of Mr. Yerrington's brother, Henry Yerrington. They will be accompanied on the trip, by Miss M. Jennie Case.

Miss Elizabeth Coffee, a member of the Yerrington household, leaves Norwich today (Wednesday), to visit for some time with relatives in New Jersey.

MILLIONAIRE A-SHOPPING WITH ADOPTED DAUGHTER

Edward A. Browning, Wealthy Realtor, Spent Yesterday Touring Fifth Avenue, New York, Shops With Mary Louise Spas, Selecting Feminine Finery—Tour Resulted in Purchase of Forty Dresses, Twenty Pairs of Hosiery and Ten Pairs of Specially Designed Shoes—Both Appeared to Be Happy in Their New Relationship.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(A. P.)—The wonderland into which Mary Louise Spas, daughter of Bohemian immigrants, stepped yesterday when she was adopted by Edward A. Browning, millionaire realtor, today became a dazzling reality with its main highway Fifth Avenue and its chief diversion an Arabian nights shopping tour.

Whether the transition from her former life into her new one was as startling as had first been supposed, however, did not seem to detract from the keen pleasure she took in her first day in her new role.

Neighbors of the Spas, in talks with reporters, today insisted that the girl was nearer 21 than 16, as announced by Mr. Browning, had worked in the movies, and was engaged to a dentist prior to her adoption. The Spas family, they asserted, far from being in poor circumstances, enjoyed the income from a $60,000 apartment house in addition to the father's salary as the superintendent of another house.

Although it had been announced that Mary was an only child, neighbors also insisted that another daughter, Mildred, is now in Denver, where she has gone for health.

Mr. Browning, however, appeared undisturbed by these developments. Originally he had announced that the winner of his Cinderella race for a companion for his foster child, nine year old Dorothy Sunshine, would have to be an orphan who had never known anything but poverty and misery. He also specified that she must be about 12 years old.

Today Mr. Browning insisted that Mary was just sixteen years old, while she added that she was "just over sixteen."

Happy in their new relationship, Mr. Browning and his adopted daughter spent the day touring rich and sumptuous shops, examining silks and satins offered for their inspection and estimating the quantity of stockings, shoes, dainty frocks and other bits of feminine finery needed.

Today's shopping excursion ended in the purchase of forty dresses, twenty pairs of delicate hosiery, ten pairs of specially designed shoes and dozens of other bits of feminine apparel to complete the costly ensemble. But that is only the start of the wardrobe that the modern Cinderella will have, Mr. Browning said, for it will not be long before she will have 150 of the smartest frocks with a maid to care for them.

POSTAL ZONING SYSTEM COSTLY TO PUBLISHERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(A. P.)—Present second class postal rates and the zoning system were criticized by witnesses appearing today before the special joint committee of congress as dischiminatory and as uneconomical from the government standpoint. Not only do the new rates impose a heavy burden on education, they assert, but profitable mail traffic has been forced to other channels.

Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times and chairman of the postal committee of the Publishers' Association of New York on postal rates, recommended permanent legislation to remedy the present situation. The newspapers ask no privileges, he said, but only that "postal rates be determined upon the masis of facts and statistics correctly ascertained."

Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, of Colorado, member of the committee, questioned Mr. Wiley as to reducing the size of the Sunday supplements. The witness replied that circulation had increased as supplements were enlarged and said that some readers subscribed only for the supplements, while others for the news.

The provision in the new postal laws which classes all books weighing more than eight ounces as merchandise and subjects them to a higher rate was attacked by Horace R. Lamb, counsel for the National Association of Book Publishers.

This new rate, he said, is at the cost of education and enlightenment of the people as it causes the publishers to put an additional charge upon the readers.

Jesse H. Neal, executive secretary of the associated business papers of New York, offered statistics to show that former second class mail had in fact netted the post office department a profit instead of a loss and asked the return, on second class matter, to the 1920 scale.

AMERICAN AVIATORS LEAVE FOR FRONT IN MOROCCO

PARIS, Aug. 5.—(A. P.)—Eleven American aviators who have volunteered for service with the French forces in Morocco against the rebellious Riffsemen left today for the fighting front. Six of them went by air and five by train. The latter will proceed to Marseilles, going thence to North Africa across the Mediterranean by boat. A broken propeller on the machine that will carry Captain W. Graham Bullen of Miami, Florida, and Captain Clausel, a French pilot, forced a postponement of their departure from the Le Bourget airdrome until tomorrow.

The Americans who took the air, were in full field uniform. Their caps were decorated with the Golden Falcon, they wore olive drab tunics, Sam Browne belts, knee-high Moroccan leather boots and the ribbons of their numerous war-time decorations. The contingent eaving by train for Marseilles were attired in civilian clothes.

FIELD SOLDIER KILLED AT WRIGHT FLYING FIELD

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 5.—(A. P.)—Osceola Rexroat, 20, Wilbur Wright field soldier, was killed at the flying field today. As a result of his death, officers at the field said charges probably will be preferred against lieutenant J. R. Adams, a reserve officer from Wheeling, W. Va.

Rexroat was turning the propeller of Lieutenant Adams' plane preparatory to a flight. He asked Lieut. Adams if the switch was off and was told that it was. Giving the propeller a turn, the motor started and the propellor struck Rexroat, crushing his head and breaking both arms and legs.

The fact that the motor started indicated, Wright Field officers said that the switch was on, contrary to the information given by Lieutenant Adams.

A military court will investigate.

PROPOSAL OF MEMORIAL TO WOODROW WILSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Friends of Woodrow Wilson are discussing a proposal to convert into a memorial to him the S street home where he spent his last days in retirement.

Under the plan the property would pass into the keeping of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation. His library and the bed chamber where he died will be preserved in the same condition as when he occupied them.

ANOTHER STATEMENT ON COMMUTATION RATES

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Statements attributed to counsel for the commuters of New Rochelle, N. Y., to the effect that there was a widespread "conspiracy" on the part of the railroads of the United States to get a general raise in commutation rates throughout the country, and that the New Haven railroad's case was merely a precedent for such action, were denied in a statement issued tonight by Benjamin I. Spock, general counsel for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

"So far as I know," the statement said, "the only railroad other than the New Haven which has been after increased commutation rates is the Long Island railroad, which, by independent proceedings upon the details of which we are not advised and have not been consulted, has petitioned for an increased fare. If other railroads around Chicago or other large centers of population are demanding increased commutation fares, I am not aware of it. The New Haven's case has not even been discussed with any other railroad nor is it a part of any joint or concerted action with any other railroad corporation."

Mr. Spock contended that these statements "seemed like an attempt to throw a smoke screen over the real issue in the New Haven's case."

Mr. Spock said that the details in regard to the form of refund certificates to be issued to commuters would be discussed at White Plains, N. Y., Friday morning when the settlement of the question will be made in the supreme court.

FAILED BY HALF-MILE TO SWIM ENGLISH CHANNEL

LONDON, Aug. —(A. P.)—The English channel again today refused passage across its turbulent bosom to another swimmer.

He is Lieutenant-Colonel Bernard C. Freyberg, a gallant soldier in the world war and a noted swimmer. He reached a point at one time during his swim 600 yards from the English shore—the goal he had set out for from Cpe Gris-Nez, France, Tuesday night. Here he was caught in an adverse tide, pushed back into the channel a distance of about a half mile from the shore, and, owing to the cold water and the fact that for four hours he would be unable to make any progress, he gave up.

Freyberg took to the water at Cape Gris-Nez at 8:25 o'clock Tuesday evening and was in the water about 17 hours. He started his swim while Mlle. Sion, the French swimmer was near Dover unsuccessfully trying to negotiate the remaining mile and a quarter lying between her and Dover against a treacherous tide and in extremely cold water. Freyberg not only was trying to cross the channel but to break the record of 14 hours, 33 minutes held by Tiraboeni, the Argentine.

SCOPE OF MAIL ORDER BOOTLEG ESTABLISHMENT

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—An indication of the territory covered by the operations of the alleged mail order bootleg establishment under investigation here by the federal grand jury was given today in the announcement that Ben Ross, of Minneapolis, Minn., was one of the witnesses examined.

Mr. Ross was the only witness of the dozen or more summoned who was identified officially by Assistant U. S. Attorney Manley, in charge of the "John Doe" investigation. He has stated, however, a number of supposed clients of the firm were summoned from mid-western cities.

The dealers are charged with having shipped large quantities of liquors in trunks which were returned to them by express.

MAY SEND PLANES FOR ALL NEW ENGLAND GOVERNORS

STORRS, Aug. 5—(A. P.)—In an attempt to have all of the governors of New England present on Governors' day at the Charter Oak fair in Hartford next month, Governor Trumbull is considering a plan to send airplanes to all of the state capitals to bring the visitors to Hartford, according to announcement made by Senator Rogers at farmers' week meetings here today. The airplanes also would take the governors back to their homes, the senator said.

War Debt Commission Will Convene Today

Preliminary to Negotiations Between the United States And Belgium.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(A. P.)—Preliminary to the war debt negotiations between the United States and Belgium, which are to be initiated here Saturday, the American Debt Commission tomorrow will hold its first session since last spring.

All of the members except Representatives Crisp, democrat, Georgia, who is abroad, are expected to attend and the purpose is to have a general discussion of the whole foreign debt situation.

Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, a member of the commission, and under Secretary Winston, of the treasury, its secretary recently, have returned from Europe and they are expected to lay before the other members considerable first hand information as to financial conditions there.

BELGIAN DEBT COMMISSION ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(A. P.)—Former Premier Tennis, of Belgium, and three other delegates, appointed by the Belgian government to settle the problem of the debt consolidation with the World war foreign debt commission, arrived here on the White Star Liner Olympic tonight and were taken from quarantine to the Battery on the revenue cutter Manhattan.

They declined to be interviewed until they communicated with the debt funding commission at Washington, with whom they will negotiate for a settlement of Belgium's war debt to the United States. They were accompanied by four financial experts and a secretary general to the delegation.

In addition to former Premier Tennis, the other delegates were Baron De Cartier, Belgian ambassador to the United States, Emi Frianqui and Felician Cartier. The experts accompanying the delegation are Messrs. Vincent, Warland, Boet and Baron Terlinden; also Robert Silver Crys, who served at the Belgian embassy at Washington for several years and is the secretary general of the delegation.

The Belgian debt commission issued the following statement:

"As the Belgian delegates leave at once for Washington to get in touch with the American commission, it will be understood that no specific statement is to be expected from them."

The commission will leave for Washington tomorrow.

TREATIES WITH CHINA HAVE BECOME BINDING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(A. P.)—Four years of delay in making effective proposals of the Washington Arms conference for peaceful settlement of the situation in the Far East ended today when ratifications of the two nine-power treaties respecting China were formally deposited at the state department. The pacts thus became binding on the signatory governments, and also on four others which have subsequently adhered to them.

One treaty provides for the upward revision of Chinese customs levies to increase revenues of the Peking government as a means of rendering it more stable, and the other pledges the signatory and adhering governments to a code of principues to govern their action toward China.

The Chinese minister, Dr. Alfred Sze, after the brief ceremony today described the latter treaty in a formal statement as an adaption of the Monroe doctrine to China.

He hailed the ratification of the two treaties as a diplomatic triumph of the Washington government because they were expressions of "American policy."

St. Louis Policemen Battle With Forger

A Policeman Was Wounded, Bystander Shot in the Leg —Forger Was Captured.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 5.—(AP)—A downtown lunch hour throng was thrown into confusion and two policemen, a deputy city marshal and an unidentified check forger were wounded in a running revolver fight here today. The forger, who had just attempted to cash a bogus check at the Mississippi Valley Trust company, was captured.

The pursuit, which was taken up by policemen at each corner and in which many shots were fired, caused great excitement and confusion in the downtown section. At Broadway and Lucas avenue, near the point where the man was captured, an assemblage formed which packed the street so that traffic was stopped for blocks.

The wounded are Patrolman L. W. Falkenberg, Patrolman J. L. Duggan, Deputy City Marshal Rudolph Lange and the unidentified man, who is in a critical condition.

The trouble began when the man presented a check for $387.51, which was found not genuine. He attacked James O'Neil, trust company watchman, who was summoned, and knocked him down and took his revolver. He then ran into the shed.

A traffic policeman started after the man, who returned the policeman's fire.

From the courthouse nearby, Deputy Lange heard the shooting and ran toward the man just as he jumped on the running board of an automobile. The man was brandishing his revolver, and as Lange jumped on the opposite running board of the same machine, the man fired, wounding Lange.

Threatening to shoot the driver of the machine, the man ordered him to continue. Policemen and others took up the chase.

The commandeered machine dashed away, narrowly missing other cars and trucks. At Washington avenue, Patrolman Falkenberg, directing traffic, exchanged shots with the man. Both were wounded and at the next cross street, the man ran into a barber shop, which soon was surrounded by officers who entered.

The man fired, wounding Policeman Duggan, but was quickly overcome. He was taken to the city hospital but refused to talk. None of the policemen was wounded dangerously. Charles Gomache, a bystander, was shot in the leg.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE NOW ENJOYING REAL VACATION

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 5—(A. P.)—Holding himself even more aloof than when he first arrived here, President Coolidge today began the seventh week of his vacation with indications that he may remain in New England for another month.

Of late the President has rarely ventured out of the summer white house grounds. He is receiving only a limited number of callers, has discarded his practice of taking short motor rides for relaxation and is confining his exercise to morning and evening strolls along the rocky shore.

Today Mr. Coolidge remained in the seclusion of White Court, had no visitors and spent most of his time resting, reading the newspapers, going over correspondence and posing for the oil painting by E. C. Tarbell which will hang in the state house at Boston.

Mr. Coolidge's isolation, however, is giving him an opportunity to build himself up physically for the winter grind in Washington and of studying various problems confronting his administration deliberately. At present the anthracite situation is the most threatening cloud on the horizon in his opinion, but apparently he sees no immediate need for action on the part of the government. He is keeping in touch with the situation through the press and reports transmitted by government observers.

It is not believed here that Mr. Coolidge will decide that anything could be gained, in the event that suspension of anthracite operations appears certain, by his returning to Washington before September 1. He intends to pay another visit to his father's home in Plymouth, Vt., and it is not unlikely that he will return here to remain until around Labor Day. No date has been fixed for his departure to Plymouth, although the president is hopeful of getting away before the middle of the month.

50,000 MILES OF ROADS AS UNITED STATES HIGHWAYS

Highways Are to Be So Numbered That Tourists May Know From the Numbers the Territory Through Which They Are Passing and Where They Are Going—Routes Are to Be Posted With Uniform Signs Designating Curves, Railroad Crossings and Other Conditions of the Roads—Highways Will Extend From Canada to the Gulf and From the Atlantic to the Pacific.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Fifty thousand miles of roads, honeycombing the United States from the Canadian border to the Gulf coast and from the Atlantic to the Pacific were selected today by the joint board of interstate highways as "United States highways" to be designated with uniform road markers.

The actual grouping of these roads into main arterial highways was abandoned today by the full committee, and was turned over to a subcommittee, which, after making tentative designations, will submit recommendations to the various states for approval.

Every federal aid highway in the United States is included in the system which provides for no through routes but embraces every state capital and most points of national and sectional interest.

When the routing of the highways is completed, they will be numbered so that tourists traveling on any road may know from its number the territory through which he is passing and where he is going. The routes also will be posted with uniform signs informing the traveler of curves, railroad crossings, and other conditions of the road.

In New England one road runs from Boston to Fort Kent on the Canadian border by way of Portsmouth, Portland, Rockland, Bangor, Lincoln, Houlton. At Houlton another road follows the Canadian border to Perry and along the coast to Ellsworth to Bangor. Another runs from Bangor to the White Mountain national forest by way of Skowhegan. One extends from Brunswick, Me., to the Canadian border by way of Skowhegan and Moose River. One runs from Concord to Portsmouth, Me., and another from Boston to the Canadian border near Clarkeville by way of Concord and the White Mountain national forest. Another road goes from Boston to Providence; from Providence to Cape Cod by way of Barnsdale. Another road runs from Providence to Hartford and still another from Providence to New Haven along Long Island Sound.

One road runs from New York to the Canadian border to Derby Line by way of Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, Plainfield and St. Johnsbury. Another road runs from Boston to Springfield to Pittsfield to Albany, N. Y. One road goes from New York to the Canadian border at Swanton and extends along the border line between New York state and Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont by way of Pittsfield, Burlington and St. Albans. Another road goes from Burlington to St. Johnsbury to Whitie Mountain national forest.

BOY KILLED ATTEMPTING TO BOARD MOVING TRAIN

HARTFORD, Aug. 5.—(AP)—In an attempt to board a moving freight train today 300 feet west of Sigourney street, John Kessil, 15 years old, of 89 Spring street, missed his grasp and was run over, dying within a few minutes. The accident occurred at 4:55 p. m. The train was bound from New Haven to Springfield in charge of Engineer Clarence Armitage and Conductor Edward E. Dowd, both of New Haven. With the engineer in the cab was Fireman Arlo Savage, of New Haven.

John Simonovitch, of 29 Hawthorne street, whose house faces the tracks told Detective Sergeant Gallicchio and Acting Detective Sergeant Hickey, who were investigating the accident, that he witnessed the tragedy. Kessil, he said, was walking east on the tracks when the train passed him. After a number of cars had gone by said Simonovitch, the boy attempted to jump on one of the freight cars but missed his step and fell beneath the wheels.

WALKER TO BE MAYORALTY CANDIDATE OF TAMMANY

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(A. P.)—From a source close to George W. Olvany and the executive committee of Tammany Hall it was learned tonight that State Senator James J. Walker will be designated to head the Tammany mayoralty slate when the executive committee goes into session tomorrow at the "Wigwam."

That the slate already has been written and will be agreed upon practically unanimously by the Tammany executive committee tomorrow afternoon, is deemed to be a certainty in view of a thorough canvass of those upon whose action the result is to be determined.

It also was learned tonight that Surrogate Foley is disinclined to enter the race, both on account of his present state of health and his recently expressed distaste of entering the contest unless he could be assured of the support of a united democracy, rather than a split ticket, with Mayor Hylan as his opponent.

ROCKAWAY REALTORS MUST HAVE LICENSES

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Rockaway's "curb market," where most of the "paper fortunes" have been exchanged in the real estate boom which started several weeks ago when an ordinance promising Rockaway a $1,500,000 boardwalk was passed, was today broken up by police, who ordered all licensed land brokers to find offices and all unlicensed operators to leave.

In the frenzy of the outdoor dickerings, many bad checks have been passed by speculators expecting to cover them by quick exchanges of "paper properties." Bankers estimated that 1,000 of them were being received daily.

BELIEVE SUSPENSION OF COAL MINING LIKELY SEPT. 1.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Anthracite miners indicated today they believe a suspension likely Sept. 1.

Their full scale committee of forty here voted today to the sub-committee in charge of the recent scale negotiations the authority to call out 158,000 diggers if no agreement is reached with the operators by midnight, Aug. 31.

The scale committee further anticipated an emergency by empowering the sub-committee, even at this comparatively early date, to arrange with the mine owners, as the latter may desire, for employment of maintenance men to keep the mines from flooding or caving in during a shutdown.

The stand John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, had taken as head of the sub-committee in breaking off negotiations with the owners yesterday was ratified unanimously. The endorsement was accompanied by a rising vote of "thanks and confidence."

After extending to the sub-committee additional authority "to meet any emergency in accord with their judgment," the main body adjourned, it frankly announced belief that it would not meet again within the life of the working contract which expires in twenty-six days.

It was for this reason, it was learned, that the routine arrangements for a possible suspension were made this far in advance.

"A matter of convenience," as Mr. Lewis described it.

The miners now look for no peace overtures, either state or federal, in the near future, according to a canvass of various leaders.

"We're done now," one negotiator said. "There is nothing on the boards we can see."

It was acknowledged that if the operators asked to reopen negotiations, the miners would meet them. But they would assume, it was added, that "the operators must have had a change of heart."

Philip Murray, international vice-president, said tonight he will be unable to attend the conference to discuss reorganization of the United States bureau of mines called by Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce. F. P. Hannaway, a field representative of the United States Mine Workers, will go as Mr. Murray's alternate.

UPHOLDS BRITISH RETURN TO THE GOLD STANDARD

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Great Britain's return to the gold standard which during recent weeks has drawn a swelling though discordant chorus of adverse criticism from various sources, was staunchly defended today in the house of commons by Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer.

Unquestionably, Mr. Churchill declared, the gold standard affecting everything to a certain degree, and any one could argue from that fact that everything disagreeable which had happened since the gold standard was restored was due to its restoration. But disagreeable things always were happening, he remarked. He then asked that the government's action be judged not by fluctuations occurring over short periods but by its value in the long run.

"If England had not taken the action she did," the chancellor continued, "the British empire would have taken it without us and come on to a gold standard, not of the pound sterling but of the dollar."

NEW HAVEN BUILDING STRIKE STILL DEADLOCKED

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 5—(A. P.)—Master builders and striking hod carriers and building laborers of this city were still deadlocked tonight, following an attempt by officials of the bricklayers union to bring about a settlement. At a meeting of the master builders association it was decided to ignor the demands of the laborers for a wage increase from 65 cents to 75 cents and 85 cents an hour, and to turn down the overtures for a settlement.

An attempt to settle the strike had been made by the bricklayers, masons and plasterers, whose work has been curtailed by the strike of the laborers.

WILLIMANTIC

The police court room was the gathering place for about one hundred and fifty spectators of both sexes Wednesday morning to hear the trial of the cases of Raymond C. Comins and George O. Strong, both of this city, who were arrested late Tuesday night on a number of charges. The arrests were made by supernumerary officer James J. Lee, of the police department, who is also alderman of the third ward. Strong pleaded nolo contendre to charges of breach of the peace and failure to assist an officer in the performance of his duties. On the first count he was fined $10 and costs and on the second, $15, paying a total assessment of $33.15.

When the Comins case was called, Attorney King, representing the accused asked for a continuance to allow him time to investigate some of the charges. Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher, and the principal state witness, Alderman Lee, conferred as to dates and upon the suggestion of the former, Judge Foss fixed the hearing for Saturday morning. It is expected that the case will be disposed of at that time, as Officer Lee will leave on that day for a lengthy trip.

There are several charges against Comins, namely, driving while under the influence of liquor, resisting and threatening an officer, parking on the left side of a traveled highway; parking without lights after dark, aiding and abetting two young women members of his party to evade arrest and give fictitious names and a breach of the peace charge, brought against him by Police Officer Roderick Lariviere, by virtue of a complaint made by a boy named Joseph Keursnell, who resides near the place where the party had stopped their car. It could not be determined Wednesday whether or not all, or just part of these charges would be preferred against Comins. The arrests are the outcome of the efforts of Officer Lee, who trailed Comins during the evening and finally followed him to the upper part of High street, just forty-five feet within the city limits. Following the apprehensions Officers Lee and Lariviere visited the spot and in the bushes to one side of the road found an empty home-brew bottle, and a pint flask containing a small quantity of liquor and some paper drinking cups.

Joseph Bilodeau of Main street was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace in police court Wednesday morning and pleaded guilty. Lieutenant Frank McLean, who made the arrest said that, acting upon a complaint, he went to the rooms occupied by Bilodeau and found a party going on there, with several bottles of liquor on the table. This was about three o'clock Wednesday morning. There was no evidence that liquor was being sold or manufactured. On the charge of intoxication Judge Foss imposed a fine of $5 and costs and a similar assessment for breach of the peace. The total was $18.15.

PEERLESS EIGHT HELD, AFTER CUTTING CAPERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 5—Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover has a 1923 Peerless eight cylinder touring car locked up in his garage, which he is holding as security for the payment of a fine of $25 and costs, amounting to $48.05, imposed this week on Thomas Harrington, of New York City, for reckless driving. Harrington's car cut capers at the Andover underpass, early Monday morning, while he was on his way to Hartford. Stepping on the accelerator instead of the brake upon coming to the dangerous underpass, Harrington became excited. He drove the car up one side of the embankment, back into the road, and succeeded in manipulating th treacherous curves under the underpass, escaping the stone abutments. He then took to the lots, traveling in a circle and then back across the road and the machine plunged eight feet up the bank on the left side, breaking off one front wheel. Harrington hustled off to Hartford but when a wrecker came for the machine the sheriff refused to part with it and later the owner came back and was tried for reckless driving. He had no funds and the machine was held, to allow him time to secure money.

MAKING POULTRY PAY IN THE NEW JERSEY WAY

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 5—The Willimantic Exchange club held its weekly meeting and luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday, with Vice-President Edwin P. Hayes in charge. The address was on the subject of "The Poultry Industry of New Jersey," and was delivered by W. H. Allen of New Brunswick, N. J. Mr. Allen and Elmer Wene, of Vineland, N. J., were guests of Prof. William F. Kirkpatrick of Storrs. The arrangements are now complete for a Ladies' Night party in the Andover town hall next Wednesday evening, starting at 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Wene, the song leader for the Vineland Rotary club, led in the singing of several songs, inspiring much enthusiasm by his novel methods of direction.

Mr. Allen, in his talk, asserted that the poultry industry in New Jersey had reached a point beyond that of a mere gamble and is now a standardized business, carried on in accordance with established regulations. The principal cause of the failure of dealers, he said, is the lack of capital, as capital of about ten dollars per hen is almost necessary to insure success in this industry. New Jersey produces about 8,000,000 eggs annually and the demand and consumption of eggs yearly in the state itself is about 54,000,000. California is the only competitor.

The New Jersey dealers arrange their hatching so that the hens will lay at a time when eggs are scarce and most expensive, in February and March.

The European fowl pest is not so prominent in that state, due to the small amount of fowl transit, and the hens that are shipped are carefully inspected and the cars sterilized in Hoboken. Vineland, he said had depended upon a glass plant for sustenance, but with the recent development of the poultry industry, poultry dealers have swelled the deposits in the Vineland banks to about four million dollars yearly. The building and loan associations are generous in the provisions for financing poultry sales and it has been made known that not one cent was lost from this source.

Mr. Allen, who was formerly a resident of Willimantic urged a similar program for the poultry industry development within a radius of twenty miles of the local community.

RESOLUTION MISUNDERSTOOD CITIZENS' COMMITTEE CLAIMS

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 5—A diversity of opinion has arisen locally, due to the apparent misinterpretation of a clause included in the resolution adopted at the organization meeting of the Citizens' Committee of Willimantic, Monday night, to the effect that members of the committee pledge themselves not to contribute to any fund or nay person or organization not avowedly a charity.

The discussion was opened by leaders of the strikers of the American Thread company, who looked upon the pledge as one aimed directly at halting contributions to their cause. Of the original supporters to the Citizens' committee movement, few, if any, foresaw the interpretation of the above clause as given by the strikers in a large representation of the public. The executive committee explained that the sole thought in mind, as embodied in the resolution, was to ward off the annoyance of solicitors for petty advertising in any other but a recognized medium having a stipulated circulation and date of issue.

When approached on the matter several of the members of the Citizens' committee were amazed at the meaning attached to this clause. Others were found who stated that, regardless of the purpose of the clause, in so much as it might affect the strikers, they could not agree with the principle of a pledge bearing the nature of the interpretation given. The latter felt that the handling of their finances was up to themselves and they would not bind themselves to any pledge, to or not to contribute to any given cause, regardless of its bearing to charity.

The purpose of the executive committee as to petty advertising was, however, generally approved.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Because so many motorists from this section make such frequent trips over the border into Massachusetts, a new regulation of the motor vehicle department of that state is of special interest here. This regulation provides that all motor cars operated in Massachusetts must be equipped with windshield cleaners; or, lacking them, the windshield must be kept wide open in rainy weather.

The penalty for violation of this regulation, effective Aug. 1st, is a fine of $25 for the first offense and a fine of $25 or not more than $50 for a second offense, and not less than $50 or more than $100 for a third offense.

This new regulation is put in force to prevent accidents. Fourteen persons were killed and many more injured in Massachusetts last year because of windshields obscured by rain so that drivers could not see their way clearly. In the cases referred to drivers were operating machines not equipped with windshield cleaners. It is so clearly evident to all car operators that visibility of a driver is lowered by rain on a windshield not equipped with a cleaner that the danger of accidents is greatly increased—for himself and those with him as well as for others.

Massachusetts also has banned the use of Buell whistles or other whistles and horns operated from the exhaust. This rule has been made because of the unreasonable manner in which some drivers use these devices. Use of such signal whistles or horns on cars in Massachusetts will not bring down upon a violator the same penalties that will be imposed upon those who drive cars not equipped with windshield cleaners, if such cars are being operated in rainy or snowy weather without the windshield open.

Scores of drivers from this territory go into Massachusetts every day and the above information is imparted for their benefit, as well as for the driver who may cross the border of the neighboring state only occasionally.

Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock, there was a funeral mass at St. James' church, with Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S. S., as celebrant, for Clement Stebbins, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clophas Beauvais, on Franklin street. On a morning train the body was forwarded to St. Angel, P. Q., where burial will take place today (Thursday). The bearers were Benoni Meunier, Frank Maillhot, J. N. Lavallee, Pierre Boulaine, Arthur Viens and F. X. Lemieux. Martin F. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A wounded fawn was put out of its misery Wednesday forenoon, by Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey. The fawn had been shot and wounded by someone, but had managed to get away. A report of the animal's plight was brought here and Deputy Warden Withey, in company with C. A. Hamilton, went to the tide range south of here. Mr. Withey despatched the animal with a rifle. The carcass was brought to a local market and the matter reported in the usual manner to state officials.

Another area is to be brought within the lighting zones of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, which is gradually extending its lighting service to areas long within the oil lamp domain. This time the territory to be given service is at and about Moosup pond and the territory intervening between that locality and Moosup. Construction work on the lines was begun Wednesday morning. The new lines will bring electric service to a number of farm places.

In view of the fact that a part of Old Killingly pond is in Rhode Island and another part of that body of water is in Connecticut, steps are to be taken by county game officials to set markers on opposite shores to indicate where the boundary line passes across the lake. Such markers are essential for two reasons. One is that an angler may be arrested for fishing in the waters of one state, when he is licensed only to fish in the other. Both Connecticut and Rhode Island now require anglers to possess fishing licenses and game wardens regularly check up fishermen to see that they are complying with the license law. Very few hereabouts have licenses to fish in both Rhode Island and Connecticut. Another reason for putting up the markers is that the state of Connecticut has started to stock Old Killingly with bass. This is going to make better fishing there and will attract more fishermen. Those who angle there want to know if they are in Connecticut water if they hold only Connecticut licenses. There is no way at present for one to tell exactly as to that.

This is one of the big days of the year at East Killingly—the annual Old Home day. Hundreds will flock there today, coming back to the old home town from more or less distant points to meet old friends, renew acquaintances, talk over the good old days and revel in the delights that are provided each year to make the home-coming such a gala occasion. A program of formal exercises will be one of the features of the day with addresses, readings, vocal numbers, etc. King George Jacques will be in charge of feeding the multitude, and he will do that in a manner that has won him distinction in that line.

Officers here watched in vain all through Tuesday evening and into the morning hours of Wednesday, for a man driving a car that was stolen in Providence, Tuesday afternoon. The theft was reported here through the Providence police, with the additional information that the thief was heading the car, when he was last seen in Providence, toward the Connecticut line.

Warden and Mrs. Walter Anderson will leave this (Thursday) morning for a motor trip to Cape Cod, where they are to remain for a vacation period.

Miss Nettie Clark, once a teacher in Killingly's schools, but for a number of years resident in Massachusetts, is here to remain for some time.

Dr. and Mrs. William A. Mills are to leave Friday for a stay of about ten days in the Adirondacks, making the trip in their car.

Charles A. Belair, of Worcester, is spending a few days visiting relatives and friends in Danielson.

Today (Thursday) is a half-holiday in Danielson, many of the stores closing at noon for the day.

In an unreported accident that occurred near Dayville Four Corners, a motorcyclist was hurled from his machine and received an injured ankle when he endeavored to avoid striking a dog.

That business here has not been so greatly depressed during the past year as in many textile sections of New England is indicated by the manner in which the postal receipts have held up—this being regarded as a good barometer of business conditions. There has been practically no difference in receipts this year—the total volume considered—than in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924.

One of the men was in the ditch, dead drunk, another in the car in like condition, and two more were dancing and singing in the road. State police officers were called, and the party were locked up in Willimantic police station for the night. Justice Collins fined Haroid and Hunt $5 and costs on the charge of intoxication. Hunt's fine later being remitted and he being places on probation for 6 months. The other four were found guilty of breach of the peace and fined $2 and costs each. The fine of Fryer was remitted and he was placed on probation for 6 months. The costs in each case ranged from $14 to $16, which in addition to the fines, made it rather a costly frolic for the sextet.

PEPPER AND THE COURT

Something of an advance from the position formerly held by Senator Pepper is seen in his statement that he believes the senate will, at its next session, agree to America's entrance into the world court, with reservations acceptable to the other powers. Reservations for which the senator had been standing would certainly have been objectionable to the other powers, but he now makes the prediction that the slate has been wiped clean, opening the way for a new proposal that would avoid entangling alliances receive the approval of the senate and prove acceptable to other nations. Though the plan may be new, it is the belief of Senator Pepper that it "will carry into effect President Harding's proposal as resubmitted and enlarged by President Coolidge."

Of the nature of the resolution of adherence nothing is known beyond which is intimated in the Pepper statement, and thus judgment as to its merits and faults will have to be held in reserve. But it is certain that the reservations proposed will have to be definite and non-entangling if the senate majority is to be satisfied. The Pennsylvania senator differs from Senator Borah in that he does not think there should be a codification of international law preliminary to our taking membership in the court. Senator Pepper would make adherence to the world court the starting point for the clarification of international practice.

It is a mistake to suppose that until codification takes place there can be no law for the court to administer. The use of the word codify assumes that there is something to be codified, as indeed there is, the great body of international law. It ought to be the business of the court to clear up whatever confusion there may be. As Senator Pepper is evidently in the confidence of the President, he ought to know what the administration attitude on the question is to be. The whole subject will come up for early consideration at the next session of congress.

SCIENCE ON THE OCEAN

A scientific expedition, for which the steamship Arcturus was fitted up as a marine laboratory, has just returned to this country after several months in South Atlantic and Pacific waters. One of the specific purposes was to locate, if possible, the great Sargasso Sea, which has been the subject of legend and literature for a great many years.

The existence of the Sargasso Sea reported to be a great mass of tangled weeds and wreckage, has been one of the mysteries of the Atlantic. Now its disappearance promises to be an equal mystery for Dr. William Beebe reports that the Arcturus was unable to locate it, although the ship crisscrossed the area that is traditionally marked on the maps by this name, but the scientists saw no grass, no derelicts, in fact nothing but moving water. Dr. Beebe does not attempt to solve the mystery of the disappearance of this great mass of jetsam, the ship-trap of legend, other than to suggest that violent storms have dispersed it.

If violent storms has scattered the weeds and wreckage that formed this strange semi-solid zone of calm and stagnation lying just north of the Antilles, it would seem logical to reason that the sea had changed its habits within recent decades. Such storms are surely not wholly of modern development. Yet there is evidence in the findings of the Arcturus party that there have been changes in the sea. For instance the Humboldt current, which has long been mapped as flowing northeasterly past the Pacific coast of South America to the equator, was not located by this expedition. Dr. Beebe states that it has either been interrupted or deflected, perhaps by recent convulsions of the earth.

The Arcturus expedition, however, had numerous positive results. Many strange specimens of sea-life, some of them so curious as to be almost past belief, are reported to have been discovered. Exciting experiences were had and valuable observations were made in connection with volcanoes at the Galapagos Islands. Altogether this expedition was one of the most fruitful adventures of modern science.

AGE PENSIONS

When Winston Churchill, British chancellor, included in his budget report a proposal under which every British wage earner would begin next January to contribute to a national old age pension fund, and employers would be taxed an amount equal to the contribution of their employes, he compelled the conservative party to take official cognizance for the first time of a scheme which has been tried in a small way and investigated in a large way in nearly every leading country. The Churchill plan includes not only a provision for a pension of about $10 a month to all wage earners after they reach the age of sixty-five, but also for a system of life insurance under which the family of a wage earner will, in case of death, receive a pension based upon the size of his family. The assessment feature proposes to organize all British wage earners into one family.

Three American states, Montana, Nevada and Wisconsin, have within the last two years adopted measures of a similar general nature. They are of course, restrictive as to residence requirements and largely experimental, in fixing the field of eligibility to benefits. Alaska has a similar system, and Pennsylvania has adopted an old age assistance measure which is similar in intent. In all of these cases much opposition was encountered.

With the pension system as a substitute for the almshouse making progress among British conservatives, and already in possession of a foothold in the United States, there is special need for giving close attention to it, especially in the states where it is likely to be presented regularly to legislatures. The chief argument against it is that it is paternalistic and tends to undermine initiative and creates a class of dependents whose only real claim on the state is in the fact of their residence. It is, of course, contrary to American ideals.

IMMIGRATION REGULATION

The plan of Frederick A. Wallis, a former commissioner of immigration at Ellis island, for scientific selection abroad of aliens wishing to come to the United States may be viewed as the ideal arrangement. Peasants selling out their little holdings to make the trip across the ocean are forced to gamble on entering within the quota. The steamship company must pay their passage home if they are in the quota excess, but that does not give them back their two-by-four farms on which for centuries their forbears have forced beets and cabbage to grow from stones. The stark tragedy of exclusion at Ellis Island is something that nobody regards as befitting the dignity of a nation that boasts of its humanitarian ideals.

When restrictive immigration was determined upon, it was intimated that the summer scrambles to get in would be eliminated eventually. The secretary of labor has announced a plan to examine candidates for admission to this country on the other side. From a strictly selfish standpoint this country should be anxious that the unfit should be sifted out in Europe. This may be the land of promise, but the mills of the gods on Ellis Island, while they grind slowly, do grind surely. It is all too evident that during the past couple of years undesirables have been admitted under the quota. Moreover, a selection which hinges upon mere numbers is bound to result in the cruelties which have attended attempts to cut down the quantity and raise the quality of those coming to our shores. The efforts of the department of labor to transfer examination to the other side of the water are wholly laudable, but they are also pitifully slow.

THE FORESTRY SERVICE

That active prophet of alarm, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, has issued a warning to the west that friends of the forest service must be ready to meet an attack during the coming session of congress. He bases his fears, it is said, on recommendations of a congressional joint commission, named during the Harding administration, that the forest service be transferred from the agricultural to the interior department. It was charged by Pinchot and others that Secretary of the Interior Fall did not favor conservation in the true sense, that his sympathies were not with those who had spent years in upbuilding the service and that grave dangers would be encountered in making the change. Fall, because of his dealings with oil leases, lost the confidence of the public. What he would have done with the forests nobody knows, but the fight, in that connection, was waged against an individual rather than the office he occupied.

There is some disposition to regard Work, who succeeded Fall, as failing to measure up to all the expectations of the conservationists. Work is a western man and many of those from that part of the country have felt that the public domain might as well be used. Not always has it turned out that that use was for the best interest of the public. If the greater good to the forestry service can come through transfer to the interior department, there is no reason to throw any obstacle in the way, but so far sufficient argument to indicate the necessity for a change has not been presented. The agricultural department deals with all manner of growing things and it might well deal with trees. One thing is certain. The public has been aroused to the need of forest conservation until no matter who directs the work, a policy of spoliation will never be tolerated again.

HIS SINCERE EFFORT

"The Garbles are starting on a trip to Arizona," related the pretty little wife who had been out among 'em that afternoon and had come home primed with news.

The abstracted husband, who was never known to make any comment beyond "uh-huh" and "h'm" appeared for once wide awake.

"Indeed!" said he. "Why?"

"Oh," said the pretty little wife after she had recovered from the surprise, "why, I don't know! I suppose they want to take a trip!"

"Have they any relatives in Arizona?" asked the abstracted husband.

"No—why, I am sure I never heard them mentioned. I guess not."

"Got friends down there?"

"Why, Frederick!" the pretty little wife said somewhat impatiently. "The governor of Arizona and all the aldermen in all the cities may be the Garbles' bosom friends for all of me."

"It is beyond me," the abstracted husband broke in firmly, "how a supposedly intelligent woman can hear so much without learning any facts! I should think the natural move when you learned that the Garbles were going to Arizona would have been some inquiries! People don't pick up and start for a place like Arizona without some reason! Why, somebody in the family may be in a serious condition——"

"Well, Amy Garble ate two large dishes of ice cream at the party and she mentioned that her husband was playing thirty-six ho'es of golf and I saw the Garble girl driving her roadster at a pace warranted to blow off three-quarters of her hair! I guess the family's health is perfectly sound."

"Oh, they are taking their daughter with them!" said the abstracted husband. "Is Anita in love?"

"I don't know," the pretty little wife said, wildly and apologetically.

"More and more I marvel!" said the disapproving husband. "I would think, even had you asked no questions, it would have been impossible for you to come away without having soaked in some impressions of something connected with the subject! Somebody must have said something in some fashion when the remark was made that the Garbles were going away! Is Garble going hunting in Arizona for wildcats or anything?"

"I—I don't know," the pretty little wife admitted.

"I suppose they are going to see the Indian ruins," said the abstracted husband hopefully. "It isn't that I am curious about the Garble affairs; it is merely that I am trying to find out if you have a scrap of intelligence about the situation. Something I say may help you to remember! You don't suppose Garble is writing a book or anything? What road are they going on? Are they going to see the Grand canyon while there? See——"

"I don't know, Frederick!" said the pretty little wife desperately. "I can't tell you who is going to care for their canary while they are gone or whether Mrs. Garble will remember to mark the milk card zero for one month and notify the paper boy to cease delivering! And I haven't the remotest notion what her traveling costumes will be like nor how many lies Mr. Garble will take.

"My goodness! Can't a person make a perfectly innocent remark without calling down a perfect flood of ridiculous questions? What on earth possesses you? When I tell you really important things you don't even hear me and now this mad passion for detail about the Garbles——"

"The Garbles are nothing to me!" the abstracted husband said, greatly injured. "This is what a man gets when he tries to reform and show some interest in his wife's conversation!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Premier Stanley M. Bruce of Australia, who is participating in the elaborate entertainment prepared in honor of the visiting Americal fleet, is the youngest of the prime ministers of any of the British dominions. His rise to fame has been meteoric. Elected to the commonwealth parliament in 1918, after his return from the war, where he won the Military Cross and the Croix de Guerre, he had done nothing of note in parliament and was practically an unknown man. His appointment as Australia's representative at the League of Nations assembly was an unexpected stroke of luck. Mr. Bruce was a striking success in his new post and returned to Australia with a reputation for eloquent sincerity and tactful firmness. In 1921 he was taken into the government as treasurer. Less than two years later, when the election results forced the retirement of the veteran statesman, Mr. Hughes, Bruce, after only four years' parliamentary experience, found himself prime minister.

From Small Beginnings

Newton, the Farmer's Boy, the Great Scientist

The teacher of the Grantham grammar school in England in 1654 regarded little 12-year-old Isaac Newton as lazy, negligent and unwilling to learn, gave him the lowest marks, and ranked him among his most unsatisfactory pupils. The boy's mother took him out of school and tried to make a farmer of him, as his father had been before him. Strange to say, that boy became the most profoundly learned man of his day; master of the most abstruse mathematics; member of parliament; reformer of English coinage; author of great books; president of the royal society; and an intellectual wonder whose thought grasped the immensity of worlds and measured the strength of the universe.

The beginning was a fight. A boy who gained higher marks in school taunted Isaac Newton, who promptly thrashed the bully. Then Isaac set to work to study. Before his mother took him out of school he stood at the head of his class. After he left school he read and studied much. Once again, in Trinity college, Cambridge, he was rated "poor" in certain mathematics. He simply went at it again, and won. To him every failure became a challenge. He won a scholarship, became a fellow, won the degrees of A. B. and M. A., and became a professor.

Newton studied the properties of light and measured the movements of the heavenly bodies. Almost as a diversion he invented the sextant that is used today on every ocean liner. One day he wondered why apples fall to the ground, and then why the moon stays in place. Out of his meditations came his great statement of the law of gravitation, the basis of all modern astronomy. He gained the admiration of the world, and solved problems that seemed beyond solution. He became an expert in chemistry, and, in fact, in all learning. The greatest people were proud to know him. When he died at 85 he was buried in Westminster Abbey with most royal honors. Failure had challenged him into greatness.

Stories That Recall Others

He Saw It So.

A patient teacher was trying to show the small boy how to read with expression.

"Where-are-you-going," read Johnny laboriously, with no accent whatever.

"Try that again," said the teacher. "Read as if you were talking. Notice that mark at the end."

Johnny studied the interrogation mark a moment, and an idea seemed to dawn upon him. Then he read triumphantly:

"Where are you going, little button-hook?"

Delayed Information.

One rainy evening a tourist in central Arkansas stopped at the Smithville garage to inquire about the condition of the road to Punkton, which was not hard surfaced.

"Could I say," drawled the garage man in response to the stranger's question.

"Do you know anybody who might know about it?" asked the tourist.

"There's a fellow that works here that would," answered the native after a brief pause.

"Can I see him?"

"Well," replied the garage man, slowly, "ye'll have to wait a while. He got stuck in the mud on that road this mornin' and he ain't out yit."

THIS WOMAN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Entirely Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when I had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. OSCAR F. BORGELIN, Route No. 5, Forest City, Iowa.

DRINK ENOUGH MILK BUT NOT TOO MUCH

Dr. Caroline Hedger of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Fund, Chicago, said at Farm and Home week at Amherst: "I have no patience with a 'drink more milk' campaign, but am decidedly in favor of a 'drink enough milk' campaign." It is possible to drink too much milk for one's health. One pint of milk per day for adults and one quart for children is enough. More milk is too much, and less is too little. Milk contains in one pint 15 grams of the building food, protein.

A very generous allotment of protein per day is 75 grams. If you have more than this amount in your diet, according to Dr. Hedger, you upset "your chemistry." When you upset "your chemistry" with a high protein diet you are building a very good road toward neuphritis and high blood pressure. These foods richest in protein are meat, cheese, eggs, fish, nuts and milk. Now if you have for breakfast one pint of milk containing 15 grams, 2 slices of graham bread containing 3.4 grams, 2 eggs containing 12 grams of protein, a dish of oatmeal, that's 6 grams more, you'll have in all a total of 36.4 grams of protein or almost 50 per cent. of the total protein requirement of the day, and you have had no meat.

Milk is the most perfect food we have, but, like all good things in this world, we may get too much of it.

The brain of Mrs. Helen H. Gardner, civil service commissioner who died recently in Washington, was removed before the body was cremated and will be sent to Cornell university in accordance with terms of her will.

The Merry Little Breezes Help Danny Meadow Mouse.

Helping others is a joy
In which mingles no alloy.
—Merry Little Breezes.

The Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind came dancing across the Green Meadows to the Smiling Pool. They danced out on the Smiling Pool and made little ripples all over it. They danced this way and that way. They rumpled up the fur of Jerry Muskrat sitting on the Big Rock. They danced through the tops of the rushes and made the latter whisper together. They rocked Grandfather Frog by making little waves roll under the big, green lily-pad on which he sat.

By and by the Merry Little Breezes danced over to the upper end of the Smiling Pool, and there they discovered Danny Meadow Mouse sitting motionless and scared half to death on the end of a piece of board caught in the rushes. They whirled around him and then they saw why he looked scared half to death. They saw a big fish called a pickerel in the water alongside that board. That fish was nearly as long as the board. On the other side they saw the head of Snapper the Snapping Turtle, and then they discovered on the shore, in back of Danny, Longlegs the Heron, standing without motion waiting for something to eat to come within reach.

"Goodness!" exclaimed the Merry Little Breezes, and whirled away over on to the Green Meadows to talk it over.

"How under the sun did Danny Meadow Mouse ever get out there?" exclaimed one.

"I don't know how he got there, but that does not matter at all. The important thing is, how is he going to get back where he belongs?" said another.

"There's an enemy to the left of him, enemy to the right of him, an enemy behind him. I think we really will have to help Danny," cried a third.

"Of course," cried all the Merry Little Breezes together. Then they talked it all over between them, and when they had decided what they would do, they all raced back to the Smiling Pool and got behind Danny Meadow Mouse. Then all together they huffed and puffed and puffed and huffed and blew with all their might against Danny Meadow Mouse and the old board on which he was sitting. At first nothing happened, because the old board was caught in those rushes. But they huffed and they puffed and they puffed and they huffed, and they blew with all their might, and by and by that board began to move a little. So then they huffed harder, puffed harder, and blew harder, and that old board began to move right out from amongst those rushes. It began to move and it left behind, farther and farther behind, Longlegs the Heron standing silently on the shore. And it left behind Snapper the Turtle, who hadn't seen Danny Meadow Mouse, and who wasn't at all interested in an old piece of board. Only the pickerel, the big fish, lying alongside in the water, moved. He swam along beside that board. The Merry Little Breezes saw him swimming along. So they blew harder than ever, and that old board, which really was Danny's raft, began to bob up and down, for in blowing so hard the Merry Little Breezes made waves. Danny began to feel as if he were going up and down inside and he didn't feel comfortable at all.

At First Nothing Happened, Because the Old Board Was Caught in Those Rushes.

But Danny and his raft were moving straight out, straight out toward the middle of the Smiling Pool. And presently that pickerel was no longer alongside. The Merry Little Breezes were blowing Danny away from his enemies. They huffed and they puffed and they puffed and they huffed and they blew and presently Danny and his raft had passed the Big Rock and was drawing nearer to the other side of the Smiling Pool. There were some big green lily-pads there. The piece of board caught in the lily-pads and the Merry Little Breezes could blow it no farther.

DRIVER COULD NOT KEEP SEAT; REASON FOUND UNDER CUSHION

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 5.—In front of the Bradford postoffice Wednesday night about 6:45 o'clock Frank Dumi, 43, a Finlander, residing on the Tom Johnson farm and employed by the Sullivan Granite company, while driving a horse and buggy collided with a Ford touring car, driven by Octavio Pancfera toward the railroad crossing. Spokes were torn from the left front wheel of the buggy and the tire was ripped off. Dumi was accompanied by his brother-in-law, Matthew Mandtson, of New York, who came to visit him Saturday. Sergeant Michael Curtin, of the Westerly police force, was notified and Police Officer George Madison was sent to investigate.

Dumi was reported as found unable to keep his seat and from his appearance this was caused by more than the shock. A search of the buggy by the officer produced a full pint bottle of moonshine whiskey under the cushion of the seat. Dumi was brought to the Westerly police station and locked up to await the action of the Third district court.

ATTRACTIVE APPEARANCE OF STATION NO. 3

Captain P. Joseph Tracy, Driver Tomas Tracy, Thomas Carney and fireman John Nolan, have been putting in considerable effort this summer, making the grounds at Station No. 3, Joseph Perkins road, as attractive as possible, and according to residents of the neighborhood they have succeeded to perfection.

People who have visited the station have commented most favorably on the appearance of the station, which they claim, resembles an attractive dwelling, more than it does a fire station. The men also treat the neighbors to radio concerts each evening and the residents there are glad that the firemen have located in their midst.

SECRETARY O'ROURKE SAYS U. S. WILL SOON PRODUCE OWN RUBBER

The causes for the increasing prices of crude rubber and rubber products was the topic of a most interesting five-minute talk by John J. O'Rourke secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. O'Rourke's talk brought out many interesting facts regarding the rubber industry and told of a plan whereby the United States, which utilizes 80 per cent. of the world supply of crude rubber, will in a few years be able to produce its own rubber. Mr. O'Rourke's talk follows:

The existing high cost of crude rubber affects the manufacturer of baby nipples, hot water bags, rubber boots and overshoes, rubber bands whether for commercial and medicinal use, or for preserving, and automobile tires, inner tubes, and accessories.

The terms used in the production of crude rubber are similar to those used in dairying. A rubber tree is "milked" twice daily, morning and afternoon. A slit is cut in the bark of the tree at the lowest part of which a cup is placed to gather the "milk." As soon as the tree is cut the "milk" begins to flow. It is a clear white substance, most of it being water. It dries quickly on the fingers and resembles glue.

Coolies collect these cups which are sent to a "dairy" and placed in pans. Acid is added to the "milk" in the pans. The effect of this treatment is to coagulate the rubber in a mass. This mass is put through a heavy mangle and thus becomes sheets of rubber. These sheets are hung up to dry and a smoking process completes the production. In this state the crude rubber is shipped to the manufacturer. It takes about five years from the time of planting a tree for it to produce the "milk." About one hundred trees are planted to an acre.

The labor cost of producing crude rubber is small. The work is done by coolies. A plantation employing two hundred coolies pays two hundred and fifty dollars per month for the labor.

The best quality of crude rubber, and the most productive, comes from the Malay Peninsula. The Dutch East Indies and Brazil also produce this commodity. The Brazilian government is making extremely liberal inducements to rubber interests to start plantations in that country. In 1910 Brazil placed restrictive measures on its rubber production. This action gave a tremendous impetus to the Dutch and British rubber plantations. A high grade of crude rubber is produced on Basilan Island in the Philippines where over 100,000 trees are planted. These islands offer American interests double the present area in the Malay Peninsula controlled by the British.

The United States is the largest consumer of crude rubber in the world. Of 27,000 tons shipped from Singapore in one month, 19,000 tons were sent to the United States. Approximately 385,000 tons of crude rubber went into the automotive industry of this country during the past year. England uses a small amount of rubber in a year.

With the growth of the automobile industry, planters realized their opportunity. But they overplanted — the supply was greater than the demand. Small profits followed. The British control about eighty per cent. of the world's rubber plantations, and have restricted their output to increase their profits. The United States consumes about eighty per cent. of all the crude rubber produced throughout the world, three times as much as all other countries combined. Yet we produce none and control very little.

The Stevenson Colonial act of England restricts the production of East Indian plantations to sixty per cent. of capacity. The idea behind this restriction, it is claimed, is to pay England's war debt to the United States Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer in the British government, states—"We do this to save our growing rubber industry from ruin as a result of over-production brought on by the World war." American manufacturers reply—"That cost and sales statistics compiled by indisputable authorities, show that the British rubber growing industry could have with withstood the reorganization through which every other industry had to go after the war."

Congress has been alert to the situation and has appropriated $550,000 for extensive investigation and explorations for the purpose of establishing American-owned plantations. These investigations will be made in Africa, the Philippines, Central and South America, and Mexico.

Already large American interests are negotiating for sufficient lands to establish huge rubber plantations in Liberia. It is expected that a year hence over one million acres will be planted to rubber producing trees in various parts of the world owned and controlled by American interests.

Of every 100 tons of rubber produced throughout the world, six come from Brazil, fourteen come from the Dutch East Indies, and the remaining eighty come from British plantations. When the Stevenson act cut the British production to sixty per cent., British interests bought up the total production of nearly all the Dutch plantations for two years in advance.

The American Rubber association has recently decided to curb the production of automobile tires and rubber goods in general as its answer to the British rubber producers. The United States department of commerce reports that crude rubber production costs seventeen cents per pound. Rubber sold recently in New York, wholesale, at $1.30 per pound.

The existing situation is but another instance of the cupidity of large controlling business interests to secure all the profits that the traffic will bear. But what goes up, must come down, according to the law of gravitation. The reaction has been the real awakening of the American rubber interests to the need of self-preservation. A movement has already commenced, for as stated before, Americans will control about one million acres of rubber plantations in another year. It will take about six years for these plantations to produce. After that the deluge will come for the British producers—they will have killed the goose that laid the golden egg. A cry resounds today throughout the American rubber market, led by Harvey S. Firestone, president of the largest rubber manufacturing concern in the world, and the cry is, "Americans must produce their own rubber." England accepted the control of the rubber production from Brazil in 1915 the United States bids fair to control her own production in 1930.

At the business session, President J. Nelson Weymouth presided and Joseph C. Worth acted as song leader with Johnny Egan at the piano. There were a number of vocal selections by the members present, including two who fell into the net when the campaign against violators of the automobile parking laws opened.

It was voted at the meeting to accept the invitation of the Norwich Golf club to hold the meeting next week at the club.

President Weymouth appointed Joseph C. Worth, Lucius Briggs, William G. Park, Charles A. Saxton and Dr. Hugh E. Campbell, past presidents of the club, as a local committee to take charge of the arrangements for the participation of the Norwich Rotary club in the Fall conclave of the 30th Rotary district, which will be held at the Griswold, Eastern Point, on Sept. 14, 15 and 16. Dr. Campbell, as chairman of the committee, said that this year the conclave would devote more time to recreation than in years past and that an extensive program of sports and social functions had been planned. There will be a three-day golf tournament. A ball will be held on Monday evening and a masquerade ball on Tuesday evening.

Dr. Campbell read a letter from Henry J. LaFontaine, who is now in Baden-Baden, Germany, studying voice culture. Mr. LaFontaine wrote of the beautiful scenery and the many delightful people whom he had met.

There were a number of guests present at the meeting, including Rotarian Charles Ross, of St. Louis, Mo., who is touring the east this summer. Mr. Ross, a former Putnam boy, returns to his native hearth after an absence of 16 years.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

CANCEL LIVESTOCK PARADE OWING TO RAIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 5—Inclement weather made it necessary to cancel the annual livestock parade which was to have been held this noon. This is usually one of the features of Farmer's Week at Storrs, and its cancellation caused much disappointment.

The rain had no bad effect on the attendance at the various lectures, however, and throughout the day sectional meetings were held in homemaking, beekeeping, dairy and livestock, and as an added attraction this year, the program offered by the feed dealers of the state in the sixth annual conference at Storrs.

"The Rural Progress That Is Real," was the subject of the address given by Charles M. Gardner of Westfield Mass., a former Master in the Massachusetts State Grange. Deploring the cry for special legislation for farmers and for class privileges, Mr. Gardner said that it was not artificial props of this kind that agriculture needed, but rather a general understanding on the part of the urban population that farmers and farming should be recognized as one of the vital factors in the welfare and prosperity of the nation.

Tracing the progress made in rural communities during recent years, Mr. Gardner illustrated his point by saying that a gathering such as he was then addressing, some 500 Connecticut farmers and their families from all parts of the state, would have been impossible twenty-five years ago, when at that time horse drawn carriages were the usual means of travel for the farmer. The invention and development of the automobile changed all that, he said, making it possible for farmers of Connecticut and even other states, to visit Storrs for the week with comparatively little or no inconvenience.

How the farmer's isolated position of thirty and forty years ago has changed so that now he is in as close touch with the affairs of the world as the city man was interestingly discussed by Mr. Gardner. In this, he traced the changes that had taken place in transportation, communication, educational facilities and religious work in which he mentioned the federation of churches taking place in many country districts.

The great potential buying power of the farmer was emphasized by Mr. Gardner, who said the manufacturers and business men should wake up to the opportunity that awaits them in this field.

FINES AND SENTENCES FOR THEFT OF CLOTH

Six men and women were presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Wednesday morning on charges of theft of cloth from the United States Finishing company's Greeneville plant. Their arrests came about Tuesday as the result of the activities of Captain John P. Nowell, of the Watts Detective agency, who unearthed some 275 yards of alleged stolen cloth in a series of searches.

William Laputz and his wife, Annie Laputz, of 33 Fourth street, were presented before the court, charged with theft of 110 yards of cloth from the Finishing company's plant. Following the presentation of evidence by the state, the cases against the couple were continued until next Tuesday. Bonds were set at $500 for Mrs. Laputz and at $100 for Laputz.

Laputz claimed he had nothing to do with the cloth. He had boarders at one time but has none at the present time. Mrs. Laptitz said she bought the cloth during the past ten years from peddlers. As there seemed to be some discrepancy in her testimony the court took a recess from noon until 1:45 o'clock when the case was resumed. When court reconvened the witness testified as to where she had bought the various pieces of the cloth and one piece of cloth which she claimed she bought from the Porteous & Mitchell store was marked for identification.

Found guilty on a charge of receiving stolen goods, Joseph Butzka, 10 Third street, one of those arrested in connection with the cloth thefts, was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to jail for 30 days. His wife, Annie Butzka, was also found guilty, fined $25 and costs and given 30 days in jail. Both appealed to the court of common pleas and bonds of $200 in each case were furnished.

The theft cases against Joseph Mikolyeh and his wife, Mary Mikolyeh, of 33 Fourth street, were continued until Aug. 12th. They were also arrested in connection with the theft of cloth from the Finishing company's plant.

There were eight more violators of the local traffic ordinances before the court. All were fined and paid the customary $5. They were Elsie W. Johnson, Greenwich; Abe Krieger, John Craney, Edward McCourt, Newton, Mass.; Charles S. Johnson, 2d., Montville; Frank Morais, New Jersey; Daniel Shea and Roy S. Wilson, the latter of the U. S. submarine base at the Navy Yard.

Five young men were in court on breach of the peace charges in loitering about the West Side bridges and using vile language. Two were discharged and the other three were fined $10, suspended.

DRIVER COULD NOT KEEP SEAT; REASON FOUND UNDER CUSHION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 5.—In front of the Bradford postoffice Wednesday night about 6:45 o'clock Frank Dumi, 43, a Finlander, residing on the Tom Johnson farm and employed by the Sullivan Granite company, while driving a horse and buggy collided with a Ford touring car, driven by Octavio Panciera toward the railroad crossing. Spokes were torn from the left front wheel of the buggy and the tire was ripped off. Dumi was accompanied by his brother-in-law, Matthew Mandtson, of New York, who came to visit him Saturday. Sergeant Michael Curtin, of the Westerly police force, was notified and Police Officer George Madison was sent to investigate.

Dumi was reported as found unable to keep his seat and from his appearance this was caused by more than the shock. A search of the buggy by the officer produced a full pint bottle of moonshine whiskey under the cushion of the seat. Dumi was brought to the Westerly police station and locked up to await the action of the Third district court.

ATTRACTIVE APPEARANCE OF STATION NO. 3

Captain P. Joseph Tracy, Driver Thomas Tracy, Thomas Carney and fireman John Nolan, have been putting in considerable effort this summer, making the grounds at Station No. 3, Joseph Perkins road, as attractive as possible, and according to residents of the neighborhood they have succeeded to perfection.

People who have visited the station have commented most favorably on the appearance of the station, which they claim, resembles an attractive dwelling, more than it does a fire station. The men also treat the neighbors to radio concerts each evening and the residents there are glad that the firemen have located in their midst.

SECRETARY O'ROURKE SAYS U. S. WILL SOON PRODUCE OWN RUBBER

The causes for the increasing prices of crude rubber and rubber products was the topic of a most interesting five-minute talk by John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. O'Rourke's talk brought out many interesting facts regarding the rubber industry and told of a plan whereby the United States, which utilizes 44 per cent. of the world supply of crude rubber, will in a few years be able to produce its own rubber. Mr. O'Rourke's talk follows:

The existing high cost of crude rubber affects the manufacturer of baby nipples, hot water bags, rubber boots and overshoes, rubber bands whether for commercial and medicinal use, or for preserving, and automobile tires, inner tubes, and accessories.

The terms used in the production of crude rubber are similar to those used in dairying. A rubber tree is "milked" twice daily, morning and afternoon. A slit is cut in the bark of the tree at the lowest part of which a cup is placed to gather the "milk." As soon as the tree is cut the "milk" begins to flow. It is a clear white substance, most of it being water. It dries quickly on the fingers and resembles glue.

Coolies collect these cups which are sent to a "dairy" and placed in pans. Acid is added to the "milk" in the pans. The effect of this treatment is to coagulate the rubber in a mass. This mass is put through a heavy mangle and thus becomes sheets of rubber. These sheets are hung up to dry and a smoking process completes the production. In this state the crude rubber is shipped to the manufacturer. It takes about five years from the time of planting a tree for it to produce the "milk." About one hundred trees are planted to an acre.

The labor cost of producing crude rubber is small. The work is done by coolies. A plantation employing two hundred coolies pays two hundred and fifty dollars per month for the labor.

The best quality of crude rubber, and the most productive, comes from the Malay Peninsula. The Dutch East Indies and Brazil also produce this commodity. The Brazilian government is making extremely liberal inducements to rubber interests to start plantations in that country. In 1910 Brazil placed restrictive measures on its rubber production. This action gave a tremendous impetus to the Dutch and British rubber plantations. A high grade of crude rubber is produced on Basilan Island in the Philippines where over 100,000 trees are planted. These islands offer American interests double the present area in the Malay Peninsula controlled by the British.

The United States is the largest consumer of crude rubber in the world. Of 27,000 tons shipped from Singapore in one month, 19,000 tons were sent to the United States. Approximately 385,000 tons of crude rubber went into the automotive industry of this country during the past year. England uses a small amount of rubber in a year.

With the growth of the automobile industry, planters realized their opportunity. But they overplanted — the supply was greater than the demand. Small profits followed. The British control about eighty per cent. of the world's rubber plantations, and have restricted their output to increase their profits. The United States consumes about eighty per cent. of all the crude rubber produced throughout the world, three times as much as all other countries combined. Yet we produce none and control very little.

The Stevenson Colonial act of England restricts the production of East Indian plantations to sixty per cent. of capacity. The idea behind this restriction, it is claimed, is to pay England's war debt to the United States. Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer in the British government, states—"We do this to save our growing rubber industry from ruin as a result of over-production brought on by the World war." American manufacturers reply—"That cost and sales statistics compiled by indisputable authorities, show that the British rubber growing industry could have well withstood the reorganization through which every other industry had to go after the war."

Congress has been alert to the situation and has appropriated $350,000 for extensive investigation and explorations for the purpose of establishing American-owned plantations. These investigations will be made in Africa, the Philippines, Central and South America, and Mexico.

Already large American interests are negotiating for sufficient lands to establish huge rubber plantations in Liberia. It is expected that a year hence over one million acres will be planted to rubber producing trees in various parts of the world owned and controlled by American interests.

Of every 100 tons of rubber produced throughout the world, six come from Brazil, fourteen come from the Dutch East Indies, and the remaining eighty come from British plantations. When the Stevenson act cut the British production to sixty per cent., British interests bought up the total production of nearly all the Dutch plantations for two years in advance.

The American Rubber association has recently decided to curb the production of automobile tires and rubber goods in general as its answer to the British rubber producers. The United States department of commerce reports that crude rubber production costs seventeen cents per pound. Rubber sold recently in New York wholesale, at $1.30 per pound.

The existing situation is but another instance of the cupidity of large controlling business interests to secure all the profits that the traffic will bear. But what goes up, must come down, according to the law of gravitation, the reaction has been the real awakening of the American rubber interests to the need of self-preservation. A movement has already commenced, for as stated before, Americans will control about one million acres of rubber plantations in another year. It will take about six years for these plantations to produce. After that the deluge will come for the British producers—they will have killed the goose that laid the golden egg. A cry resounds today throughout the American rubber market, led by Harvey S. Firestone, president of the largest tire manufacturing concern in the world, and the cry is, "Americans must produce their own rubber." England secured the control of the rubber production from Brazil in 1915. The United States bids fair to control her own production in 1930.

At the business session, President J. Nelson Weymouth presided and Joseph C. Worth acted as song leader with Johnny Egan at the piano. There were a number of vocal selections by the members present, including two who fell into the net when the campaign against violators of the automobile parking laws opened.

It was voted at the meeting to accept the invitation of the Norwich Golf club to hold the meeting next week at the club.

President Weymouth appointed Joseph C. Worth, Lucius Briggs, William G. Park, Charles A. Saxton and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, past presidents of the club, as a local committee to take charge of the arrangements for the participation of the Norwich Rotary club in the Fall conclave of the 30th Rotary district, which will be held at the Griswold, Eastern Point, on Sept. 14, 15 and 16. Dr. Campbell, as chairman of the committee, said that this year the conclave would devote more time to recreation than in years past and that an extensive program of sports and social functions had been planned. There will be a three-day golf tournament. A ball will be held on Monday evening and a masquerade ball on Tuesday evening.

Dr. Campbell read a letter from Henry J. LaFontaine, who is now in Baden-Baden, Germany, studying voice culture. Mr. LaFontaine wrote of the beautiful scenery and the many delightful people whom he had met.

There were a number of guests present at the meeting, including Rotarian Charles Ross, of St. Louis, Mo., who is touring the east this summer. Mr. Ross, a former Putnam boy, returns to his native hearth after an absence of 16 years.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

CANCEL LIVESTOCK PARADE OWING TO RAIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 5—Inclement weather made it necessary to cancel the annual livestock parade which was to have been held this noon. This is usually one of the features of Farmers' Week at Storrs, and its cancellation caused much disappointment.

The rain had no bad effect on the attendance at the various lectures, however, and throughout the day sectional meetings were held in homemaking, beekeeping, dairy and livestock, and as an added attraction this year, the program offered by the feed dealers of the state in the sixth annual conference at Storrs.

"The Rural Progress That Is Real," was the subject of the address given by Charles M. Gardner of Westfield Mass., a former Master in the Massachusetts State Grange. Deploring the cry for special legislation for farmers and for class priveleges, Mr. Gardner said that it was not artificial props of this kind that agriculture needed but rather a general understanding on the part of the urban population that farmers and farming should be recognized as one of the vital factors in the welfare and prosperity of the nation.

Tracing the progress made in rural communities during recent years, Mr. Gardner illustrated his point by saying that a gathering such as he, was then addressing, some 500 Connecticut farmers and their families from all parts of the state, would have been impossible twenty-five years ago, when at that time horse drawn carriages were the usual means of travel for the farmer. The invention and development of the automobile changed all that, he said, making it possible for farmers of Connecticut, and even other states, to visit Storrs for the week with comparatively little or no inconvenience.

How the farmer's isolated position of thirty and forty years ago has changed so that now he is in as close touch with the affairs of the world as the city man was interestingly discussed by Mr. Gardner. In this, he traced the changes that had taken place in transportation, communication, educational facilities and religious work in which he mentioned the federation of churches taking place in many country districts.

The great potential buying power of the farmer was emphasized by Mr. Gardner, who said the manufacturers and business men should wake up to the opportunity that awaits them in this field.

FINES AND SENTENCES FOR THEFT OF CLOTH

Six men and women were presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Wednesday morning on charges of theft of cloth from the United States Fluishing company's Greeneville plant. Their arrests came about Tuesday as the result of the activities of Captain John F. Nowell, of the Watts Detective agency, who unearthed some 275 yards of alleged stolen cloth in a series of searches.

William Laputz and his wife, Annie Laputz, of 33 Fourth street, were presented before the court, charged with theft of 110 yards of cloth from the Finishing company's plant. Following the presentation of evidence by the state, the cases against the couple were continued until next Tuesday. Bonds were set at $500 for Mrs. Laputz and at $100 for Laputz.

Laputz claimed he had nothing to do with the cloth. He had boarders at one time but has none at the present time. Mrs. Laputz said she bought the cloth during the past ten years from peddlers. As there seemed to be some discrepancy in her testimony the court took a recess from noon until 1:45 o'clock when the case was resumed. When court reconvened the witness testified as to where she had bought the various pieces of the cloth and one piece of cloth which she claimed she bought from the Porteous & Mitchell store was marked for identification.

Found guilty on a charge of receiving stolen goods, Joseph Butzka, 10 Third street, one of those arrested in connection with the cloth thefts, was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to jail for 30 days. His wife, Annie Butzka, was also found guilty, fined $25 and costs and given 30 days in jail. Both appealed to the court of common pleas and bonds of $200 in each case were furnished.

The theft cases against Joseph Mikolyeh and his wife, Mary Mikolyeh, of 23 Fourth street, were continued until Aug. 12th. They were also arrested in connection with the theft of cloth from the Finishing company's plant.

There were eight more violators of the local traffic ordinances before the court. All were fined and paid the customary $5. They were Elsie W. Johnson, Greenwich; Abe Krieger, John Craney, Edward McCourt, Newton, Mass.; Charles S. Johnson, 2d., Montville; Frank Morale, New Jersey; Daniel Shea and Roy S. Wilson, the latter of the U. S. submarine base at the Navy Yard.

Five young men were in court on breach of the peace charges in loitering about the West Side bridges and using vile language. Two were discharged and the other three were fined $10, suspended.

Car Backed Down Grade.

Rev. (Miss) Lydia Hartig, the Congregational pastor at Goshen, met with a mishap while returning from the recent Community Sunday school picnic at Norwich. In driving her car up York's Hill, a very steep grade, she went to shift from high gear into second speed, making a mistake and shifting into reverse. The car went back down the hill and into the ditch and tipped over. In the car were several children but all escaped uninjured and the damage to the car was slight.

KEARNS SAYS HE WILL MAKE PEACE WITH N. Y. COMMISSION FOR DEMPSEY

CHICAGO, Aug. 5—(A. P.)—Jack Dempsey will fight again; he will fight under the management of Jack Kearns and he will fight Harry Wills. These three points were emphatically emphasized by Kearns shortly after his arrival here today from the Pacific coast.

"There have been many misunderstandings between Dempsey and myself," said Kearns, "but all of these have been over business matters such as apartment houses, and not over our business of fighting. You can say Jack Dempsey will fight again, where or when I cannot say, but I will leave here for New York after the Walker-Wells fight Friday night and expect to immediately iron out all difficulties with the New York Boxing Commission over both the Dempsey-Wills matter and the Walker-Shade matter."

"After I do fix things up in New York, I will then announce the terms under which promoters may bid for the Dempsey-Wills bout. About all I can say now is that any promoter in the United States, Australia, Canada Europe or Mexico that can post a suitable forfeit and guarantee that the fight can take place as scheduled, will be eligible to bid and the best bid will be accepted," said Kearns.

"What would be your idea of a suitable forfeit?" Kearns was asked.

"From a half million dollars up," he replied. "The Wills-Dempsey fight should draw a two million dollar crowd. The Carpentier-Dempsey bout drew $1,600,000."

"Don't you think this size forfeit would bar every place but New York?" Kearns was asked.

"By no means," he answered, "Toledo didn't know what money was until we put the Willard fight on there. Tex Rickard thought I was crazy when I told him that the Carpentier-Dempsey bout would pull a million and a half house. A town don't need to be a big fight town for such a bout as the Wills-Dempsey fight. The bout will make the town and most any place would draw a $2,000,000 crowd."

When questioned about a proposed Greb-Dempsey or Tunney-Dempsey bout at Michigan City under the promotion of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Kearns said:

"I know nothing about a bout at Michigan city. It is silly right now for Fitzsimmons to talk of a Greb-Dempsey bout, for I have a middleweight in Mickey Walker that can lick Greb. Walker was in no shape when they fought last and I have $50,000 to say that Walker can lick Shade, Tunney and Greb all right in a row. When I feel this way, doesn't it sound silly to put Jack Dempsey in the same class? And don't mistake me, Walker does not want to fight Dempsey. Dempsey is not looking for set-ups. It was always a question in my mind as to whether Dempsey and Wills would ever meet, but now that the newspapers and the New York boxing commission have made so much out of the matter, we want the thing straightened out as soon as possible and we want to fight Wills as soon as possible."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 5—(A. P.)—Jack Dempsey today sent a long telegram to Tex Rickard, New York boxing promoter definitely eliminating New York as a site for the Dempsey-Wills fight, but holding open a prospect of an engagement with Rickard, "or any responsible promoter" anywhere else in the country, including Boyle's Thirty Acres in New Jersey.

Dempsey characterizing the action of the New York Boxing Commission in barring any fighters who would meet him before he signed articles or posted a forfeit for the Dempsey-Wills fight as a "Weber and Fields" stand, and he added: "The New York Commission is now welcome to keep holding the empty bag."

Following is Dempsey's telegram to Rickard:

"Have not heard from you for few days, but the Associated Press has just shown me a statement made by you. I have in my mind my promise to fight Harry Wills for you and which promise I give in person to the New York commission.

"The latter has not seen fit to even acknowledge receipt of my wires or letters, in which I stepped far down to be courteous and respectful.

"The commission's Weber and Fields action yesterday leaves them holding an empty bag.

"My impression was that it placed all promoters under the ban including yourself. Then I announced that I was open to fight for any responsible promoter who could secure Mullins' signature to a contract.

"Floyd Fitzsimmons made an offer which met with my expectations and strongest financial support from Chicago, given me, induced me to say that I would fight Wills if Mullins signature could be obtained.

"I have not definitely closed with Fitzsimmons and if you or any promoter acceptable to me or the public gets Mullins signature my signature is ready immediately.

"New York as a zone for my next fight has been closed but the New York commission, Boyle's Thirty Acres will suit me.

"Promoter expecting match must show me Mullins' signature then mine is ready, also essential forfeit. The New York commission is now welcome to keep holding the empty bag.

"JACK DEMPSEY,
"World Heavyweight Champion."

Lake St. Mingtis Lose

Owing to the absence of several of their star players the Lake street Midgets failed to show the strength of which they are capable, and bowed to the Elizabeth street Midgets by a score of 21-7 Wednesday. For three innings the score favored Lake street, 6-5, but in the fourth Smith of Lake street, who had been hurling a neat game, lost control of the wet ball and allowed 9 runs. Throughout the remainder of the game he was bothered by the falling rain. After a consultation Umpire Sabin and Stockwell called the game after Lake street had batted in the seventh. Zeoler of the winners hit a homer with one on in the first. Santos and Kay delivered the goods as pinch hitters by hitting doubles in succession. A return engagement will be played next week at Lake street. The score:

PALACE-SAINTS GAME RAIN; E. C. P. TONIGHT

If it rains many more nights during the next few weeks the Norwich Twilight league will be finishing their schedule in the armory some time during the winter. Last night's game between the Palace and the Saints makes four games to be played off in the future. It sure must be hard for the fans to sit in the kitchen on rainy nights and think of what a good game the weather is cheating them of, but every dark cloud has a silver lining and tonight the fans will have an opportunity to take a peek at it when the Nuggets will make a strong bid to pull the E. C. P. out of the pennant race. Mgr. George Madden has tried hard all season to put on a winning team and tonight as a final stab will have the entire Ashland team of Jewett City to represent his colors against the Power Co. These boys last Saturday defeated the Taftville A. A., who really are the Centrals present leaders of the league and should give the Power Co., a hard run tonight even if they don't succeed in defeating them. This game tonight will be a real head liner attraction and without a doubt the Duwell field will be packed to the gates. The E. C. P. boys will have to fight desperately during the remainder of the season to even have a chance of catching the Centrals who hold a one game lead over them and can't very well afford to lose tonight even against this strong aggregation that Madden has gotten together.

For the Nuggets either Leo Jarvis, Lloyd Jarvis or Lemieux of the J. B. Martin team will do the twirling with "Bill" Liberty behind the bat. The remainder of the lineup will include J. Jarvis, Guillett, Benjamin, Rail, Cyr and "West" Calkins of the Colts team of Hartford.

Either Simcox, Dickson or Parisi will start for the E. C. P., with Sheffolott the Bulkeley star catching. Chick Stanley at first, Joe Barry at second, Bill Ringland at short, Whitney at third, and Jack Clabby, Eddie McKay and the Hull boys in the outfield.

The E. C. P. team will tomorrow night play another hard game against the East Ends and will have to show some class to remain close to the Centrals, Next Tuesday they play their hardest game of the season against the league leading Centrals.

DAVIES TAKES LEAD IN PUBLIC LINKS GOLF

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Aug. 5—(A. P.)—Nelson Davies of Cleveland, champion of the Florida west coast, forged to the front in the qualification rounds of the national public links championship at the Salisbury Country club today, adding a 74 to his par 73 figures of yesterday.

A heavy rain spoiled many a youngster's aspirations but Davies splashed on and on, driving beautifully and putting with exceptional touch. Only once did the Clevelander take three putts, this on the long eighth, and on the fifth he dropped a thirty-four trap for a birdie two.

Ray MacAuliffe of Buffalo and Walter Murray of St. Louis, among the leaders of yesterday, placed second and third respectively with 148 and 149 but Eli Ross of Cleveland, who was two under par in his first round, bowed to inclement weather and took an 82. C. R. Blackburn of Toronto clubbed through the downpour to a perfect 73, placing him fourth in the qualifying standing with 154, a stroke ahead of the first New York players, J. P. Sabre and Albert F. Brodyck. Dick Walsh of New York, 1923 champion, survived with 155.

The New York team played exceptionally good golf to gain the Warren G. Harding trophy in the inter-city competition. Richard A. Walsh, Joseph Ford, William E Serrick and Sabre made up the quartet which compiled the low mark of 616, an average of 77 strokes. Only one did they go out of the seventies, Walsh taking 80 on Tuesday.

WRIGHTSTONE'S ERROR GIVES CUBS VICTORY OVER PHILLIES

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Wrightstone's muff of an easy fly off Grimm's bat in the ninth inning for what should have been the third out let two runs score, giving Chicago a 7 to 6 victory over Philadelphia in the first game of the series. The visitors had taken an early lead by bunching their hits. Jimmy Ring pitched great ball for the visitors until the seventh when he began to weaken and was driven off the mound in the eighth. DEMPSEY BELIEVES KEARNS HAS BEEN MISQUOTED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4—(AP)—When shown dispatches from Chicago quoting Jack Kearns as maintaining that he was still empowered to make fight engagements for Jack Dempsey, the latter said he believes Kearns had been wrongly quoted.

The champion explained that before Kearns left for the east they had had an understanding with their attorneys present in which it was decided that thereafter Dempsey would handle all his own business, including his fighting engagements.

The champion added he had the best legal advice to the effect that Kearns' managerial contract with him was invalid, but that that made no difference. He said his word still stood good and that if he made any contract to fight within the life of the document held by Kearns, the latter would "get his cut."

CHRISTY MATHEWSON IS IN VERY GOOD HEALTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Far from being in critical condition as some reports have had it, Christy Mathewson—the beloved "Big Six" of other baseball days, now a magnate president of the Boston Braves—is in good health and keen spirits, taking as lively an interest as ever in the game which is closest to his heart.

This authoritative information came to the Associated Press today from Saranac Lake, the Adirondack mountain resort where Mathewson makes his home and spends a good share of his time.

In Matty's own words, he is "Feeling Fine." He is rapidly regaining the strength which was a little undermined last spring when he assumed too heavy a burden in trying to mould the fortunes of the Boston Club for the 1925 campaign. But his physicians, while gratified by the progress he is making in rebuilding his health once more, do not feel he will be able to leave Saranac for same time, probably several months.

For this period, Matty must forego the worries of a baseball club owner, much as his desires may be to get back to his desk. As he had been doing for some time, he must continue to take things easily, though maintaining the customary interests and associations which mark his life with his family at Saranc. He also kept on a careful diet.

In response, Matty is described as looking as ruddy and healthy as ever, though as yet he cannot put too great a tax upon his strength.

His interest in baseball never lags. It is part of his life. He follows both major league races very closely studying with particular attention the progress of his own club, the Braves, and the fortunes of the team with which he earned his greatest fame the Giants.

Offhand, "Big Six" is familiar with the batting and pitching averages of most of the current stars. In his analysis of the twirling, it is said he does not share the view that the so-called lively ball is a handicap to good mound work. He feels that the pitchers of today by proper application, have just as good a chance to "Put Something" on the ball and make good as they did a generation ago.

WORCESTER BEATS BEARS THROUGH HORAN'S WILDNESS

WORCESTER, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Worcester defeated Bridgeport today 7 to 3, taking advantage of Horan's wildness and hitting Caffey in his early innings. Worts halted Bridgeport in the fourth when he replaced Woock. Manager Wilhelm of Bridgeport was sent from the bench for protesting a decision by Umpire Breslin. Score:

QUEEN VOLO EQUALS RECORD MADE BY ETHELINDA LAST WEEK

AURORA, Ills., Aug. 5.—(A. P.)—Queen Volo, a bay mare by Binvolo-Queen Mc., owned and driven by Tommy Murphy of Syracuse, N. Y., equalled the world's record of 1.36 established a week ago by Ethelinda, from the Walter Cox stable, this afternoon to win the six furlong dash for 2.18 trotters at the Grand Circuit meeting. The Murphy mare also won the mile and one-eighth race in the same class, stepping the distance in 2.22 to beat Guy Watts, a bay gelding by Guy Axworthy, driven by A. McDonald.

The feature races of the day, both in the 2.06 trotting class, were won by Estrelinda, bay mare by Peter the Great-Ethel Volo, driven by Walter Cox. She was under the wire a length ahead of Hollyrood Frisco, driven by W. Crosier in the first event, a seven furlong dash, stepping the distance in 1.48. She took the other race, at a mile and an eighth, from Voltaze, driven by Henry Thomas in 2.23 2-5.

The $25,000 American Derby, with eleven starters, will be the feature event on tomorrow's programme. It will be raced in three heats of one mile each. The derby is worth $15,000 to the winner, the remaining $10,000 going to the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth horses.

BIG LEAGUE UMPS HAVE TROUBLE WITH CARDINALS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5—(A. P.)—Despite a shift in umpires, the St. Louis Cardinals today continued to have disputes with the arbiters. Clarence Mueller, Cardinal right fielder, was ordered from the field in the second inning of the game with Boston when he protested noisily to Umpire McCormick who had called him out at second.

Al Sothoron, pitcher, received notice today from President Heydler of the National League, that he had been fined $50 for using unkind words in protesting to Umpire Sweeney yesterday against his decision on a catch by Meusel of the Giants. Stuart and Reinhart were warned by Heydler to be more careful of their language in the future.

Umpire Sweeney ruled that Meusel had made a fair catch of a drive by Hafey. Meusel admitted before leaving St. Louis last night that the ball had hit the screen before he caught it and Sweeney's decision, therefore, was incorrect.

Manager Rogers Hornsby was on the bench today for the second day of his three-day suspension for arguing with an umpire last Monday.

East Side Beats Thamesville 15-6.

Yesterday afternoon the East Sides took the Thamesville team into camp. The batte ground was the N. F. A. Campus. The distempered weather man spattered the players and spasmodic showers during the seven full frames.

In spite of the lowering clouds and slippery field all the boys gave a good exhibition of ball considering. McGlone opening wildness coupled with D'Atri's hit sent the home team off to a good start in their bilf of the first. The fray was a bit one-sided until the fourth inning when Thamesville decided to assist herself. The vanquished chalked up a loss because of inability to connect with the spheroid during the initial three innings.

McGlone and D'Atri, rival pitchers, hurling under the handicap of a slippery ball, gave an A1 account of themselves.

Fells, midget backstop of the victors, furnished the best exhibition of all round ball of the afternoon. His sure handling of the ball and nabbing runners at plate was the acme of skill. The score:

Bottomley, Cardinal first baseman, hit his 18th home run with none on in the fifth. Sachems vs. Moosup

Sunday afternoon the Sachem's will journey to Moosup, and try to administer the first defeat of the season to the fast going Moosup team. Moosup in eight starts, has come out victorious in as many, and they have played some pretty fast teams, but the Sachems are going prepared, and claim they will bring the bacon, or scalp of the Moosup team back to Norwich. The Sachems will leave Norwich by auto at 12:30 Sunday and will probably use the following men: Tombari, in back of the bat, Coutura, or J. Lamphere, for the twirling with Leo Hamil at first, C. Barber, will cover second with H. Lamphere on third, and T. Finnegan will take care of short, with R. McBurney in left field, J. McBurney in center, and Jab Burns in right, and Ed. FEED DEALERS OPEN 6TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 5—Connecticut's Feed Dealers opened their sixth annual conference this afternoon with an attractive educational program stressing the reduction of fed costs, ethics in business, and co-operation among competitors. With these subjects being presented by men of wide experience and ability, the meetings attracted a large number of livestock, dairy and poultrymen, all of whom took an active part in the discussions that followed the various speakers.

Clifford M. Blatchly, treasurer of the Meech Stoddard Co., of Middletown, who served as chairman this afternoon, said the grain dealers welcomed the opportunity offered them by the college to have their conference while Farmer's Week was in session. A common meeting of this kind would make for a much better understanding between the farmer and the grain dealer, he said, and for that reason it was especially desirable.

Philip R. Park, president of the Park and Pollard Feed Co. of Buffalo held the attention of his audience with the subject, "Reducing Feed Costs." That feeders of livestock were on a "Protein Jag" was the contention of Mr. Park, who said that it was an idol commonly worshipped by those who have an occasion to use feeding stuffs. Protein, in addition to being the most expensive nutrient to purchase, also put an additional strain on the health of the animal to which it was fed, if given in excessive amounts, he said. Lime and iodine were highly recommended by Mr. Park as essential ingredients of all livestock rations, and he said that were these fed in more liberal amounts there would be much less trouble from disease. Flax meal was advocated by Mr. Park for the reason that it was high in both iodine and lime.

"How Competitors Can Co-operate" by Walter E. Crittenden of the Crittenden-Benham Co., of New Haven, and "Ethics in Business" by George H. Cooper, real estate broker of Pittsfield, Mass., followed Mr. Park's talk.

Fruit storage and its related problems, the dedication of the new "Horticultural Storage," and a general discussion of the fruit man's problems, led by several Connecticut fruit growers, were the features of an all day program arranged for Connecticut pomologists.

"The Need of Ventilation, In Storage" was the subject of a talk by L. M. Marble of Rockgirt Orchards, Canton, Pa. He stressed ventilation and the storing of fruit in open packages. That fruit kept in common storage, or that without artificial refrigeration, was of better flavor than cold storage fruit, was the contention of Mr. Marble.

In discussing "Storage Construction," R. D. Anthony, professor of experiental pomology at the Pennsylvania State College, described both the above and below-ground types of storage buildings. He advocated dirt floors, adequate ventilation, with ventilator doors open both day and night at all times, unless the temperature fell below thirty-one degrees.

Philo T. Bliss, Connecticut's newly appointed Commissioner of Agriculture held the attention of the pomologists with his description of "Present Laws Which Affect the Packing and Marketing of Fruit." A round table discussion of home fruit storage, with several successful Connecticut pomologists leading, proved of especial interest to those present from the fruit program. Those leading in this discussion were H. E. Buell, F. W. Browning, F. H. Beers and A. B. Smith.

Close to 150 Connecticut fruit men were present for the discussions today, and many expressed their intentions of constructing new storage plants on their home farms.

Beekeepers Close Sessions

Connecticut's Beekeepers closed their two day session with talks on merchandizing and a historical survey on the honey plants and honey bees. Dr. George Weiland, lecturer in paleobotany at Yale university gave an interesting illustrated lecture, entitled, "Honey Plants and Honey Bees One Hundred Million Years Ago."

E. P. Blanchard, assistant sales manager of the Bullard Machine Tool works of Bridgeport, talked on "Principles of Merchandizing For New England." Stating that the demand for honey was greater than the supply, Mr. Blanchard said the beekeepers were not faced with the merchandizing problems faced by the manufacturers. He advocated that the beekeepers standardize their products, however, and through trademarks or similar devices bring their products before the public more. That the cost of production should also be carefully ascertained, he said.

It was not until 8:30 Tuesday evening that the bus left Westerly, although due in New York an hour and a-half previous to that time. CLASSES IN VIOLIN STUDY FOR HIGH SCHOOL THIS YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

An innovation in the curriculum of Westerly High school will be the introduction of a course in the study of the violin, as decided at a meeting of the Westerly school committee this week. Violin classes for the pupils were recommended by Supt. W. H. Bacon in his last annual report, with the enthusiastic approval of Robert Valentine, instructor of music in the schools. It has been decided to to select two classes of not over 15 pupils each from classes not lower than the 5th grade who show musical ability and they will be taught two sessions a week by a special instructor. There will be no individual instruction, but the pupils will get their training as a class. Violins will be obtained by the schools for the pupils. Although this course in violin instruction will be new to Westerly, it is not an innovation in the state, for at least three schools have adopted the system in Rhode Island. The idea is common in the west.

CLASSES IN VIOLIN STUDY FOR HIGH SCHOOL THIS YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

An innovation in the curriculum of Westerly High school will be the introduction of a course in the study of the violin, as decided at a meeting of the Westerly school committee this week. Violin classes for the pupils were recommended by Supt. W. H. Bacon in his last annual report, with the enthusiastic approval of Robert Valentine, instructor of music in the schools. It has been decided to to select two classes of not over 15 pupils each from classes not lower than the 5th grade who show musical ability and they will be taught two sessions a week by a special instructor. There will be no individual instruction, but the pupils will get their training as a class. Violins will be obtained by the schools for the pupils. Although this course in violin instruction will be new to Westerly, it is not an innovation in the state, for at least three schools have adopted the system in Rhode Island. The idea is common in the west.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

The obsequies for late President Taylor were held in Norwich seventy-five years ago and the city was shrouded in mourning. There was more or less excitement over the arrest of a young man from Worcester for trying to pass some counterfeit money in the city. Other than these two events there was little of interest locally but there was considerable discussion of the appointment of the new warden at the State Prison and the resignation of Gurdon Trumbull from the office of commissioner of school funds.

Extracts from the files of the Norwich Courier for 1850 follow:

Tuesday, July 30, 1850—

The obsequies of our late president, Zachary Taylor, took place in this city on last Saturday afternoon. The day was delightful and nothing occurred to interrupt the ceremonies. The number of citizens present from the country round, as well as from Norwich was large; and the air of mourning and gloom imparted to the city by the general suspension of business, the shrouding of stores and buildings, both public and private, in funeral black was deeply impressive. Tolling of bells and booming of cannon announced the forming and progress of the procession and the wailing music of the Providence Brigade band and Norwich Cornet band gave appropriate expression to the prevailing sentiment of sorrow. The procession was led by a detachment of U. S. troops from Fort Trumbull, under command of Major Taylor, who was with General Taylor in Mexico.

It has been announced that Gurdon Trumbull has resigned the office of commissioner of school funds and that John C. Palmer of East Haddam has been appointed by the governor to fill the office. A young man by the name of Joseph Miller was arrested in this city Friday evening on a charge of having counterfeit money in his possession and with intent to pass it. The bills were of large denominations on the Indiana State Bank. He was taken to Worcester Saturday morning and held under bonds of $5,000 for the criminal court. He was arrested as he got off the train at the depot here for the Worcester police where he had passed several of the bills.

Thursday, August 1—

The head waiter of the steamboat Knickerbocker, Henry Manly, a Cuban, was arrested in New York on Sunday on suspicion of being the man who robbed the captain's office on the boat on the evening of the 11th while she was on the passage between Norwich and New York, of $522.22 in bank bills and gold coin. A large sum of money was found on the prisoner's person.

A few days ago the Courier asked who was Leonard B. Welles, the newly appointed warden of the State Prison. Several have responded telling what they knew of the appointee and it is far from complimentary.

The house of representatives of Maine have passed a resolution by a vote of 74 to 45 to remove the seat of government from Augusta to Portland, provided the latter city will furnish suitable buildings for the accommodation of the legislature.

A Boston druggist has been arrested for manslaughter because by mistake he substituted a poison in a prescription instead of the medicine ordered. The mistake resulted in the death of a Mr. Hall an assistant assessor of Boston.

Saturday, August 3, 1850—

Gurdon Trumbull states that the reason he resigned from the office of commissioner of school funds is because of a substantial decrease in his salary.

The young man arrested here for the Worcester police on a counterfeiting charge was indicted on a murder charge in Mississippi some time ago but was acquitted by the court. He has now been indicted on four counts and is held under bonds of $8,000—$2,000 on each count.

The steamer America, when about 60 miles above Buffalo, exploded her steam pipe on the 31st. Between 20 and 30 passengers were badly scalded and a considerable number killed.

The commencement exercises of Dartmouth college took place on the 24th of July with 46 graduates. Dr. Sprague delivered an able address.

Early on Wednesday morning as the steamboat Connecticut was passing up the Connecticut river a young man from New York who was being taken to the insane retreat at Hartford jumped overboard and was drowned.

The duke flies off the handle and some great action scenes follow.

Breed Theatre.

A gust of girlish soprano, floating out through the window of a Brooklyn drawing room to smite the ears of a famous music composer, was the luckiest thing in the life of Doris Kenyon, film and stage star, who is co-featured by First National with Milton Sills in "I Want My Man," the current attraction at the Breed theatre.

"I was singing in the choir of a Bushwick Methodist church while studying for a career as a pianist," said Miss Kenyon. "I was doing a finger exercise on the keyboard when some urge led me to air my lungs. I sent my voice as high as I could.

"Victor Herbert happened to be coming to visit my father. He heard me sing for the first time. As he was a warm friend of my family, he knew I was studying piano. But he didn't know I had any ability in voice—and no more did I.

"As soon as he came in he turned to me and asked if I should like to go on the stage. I had never dreamed of it, but before my first surprise was ended he had offered me a role in his operetta 'Princess Pat,' which he was just starting in New York. It was my high note that attracted his attention, and it is responsible for my turning from music to drama."

"I Want My Man" is an adaptation from Struthers Burt's sensational novel of society high life. "The Interpreter's House." May Allison heads the supporting cast.

"Love's Whirlpool," which closes its engagement at the Breed theatre tonight, was adapted for the screen by Elliott Clawson and Bruce Mitchell from Martha Lord's novel, "The Inner Sight." The supporting cast includes Robert Agnew Mathew Betz, Edward Martindel, Margaret Livingston, Madge Bellamy, Clarence Geldert and Joe Mills.

NEW LONDON NEIGHBORS OBJECT TO WOMAN'S NON-STOP MUSIC RACKET

(Special to the Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 5—Mrs. Mary Divona, residing in Belles street, was in the police court today, on the representation of her neighbors that she is a general nuisance and that she disturbs the quiet and the peace of the neighborhood in which she makes her home. The neighbors, five women signed a written declaration that Mrs. Divona makes use of a graphaphone day and night—that she keeps the talking and singing machine in service at times until the small hours after midnight. The complaint left no doubt as to what the women neighbors would testify to for every one of the complainants signed her name and today appeared in court to say on the witness stand what they had represented in her written statement. The signers of the letter to the prosecutors are Mary Minnia, Josephine Sawsky, Agnes Yanilla, Mary Carino and Gilda Cavlaneta. As if the graphaphone was not reason enough to complain, the letter alleged that Mrs. Divona uttered language that was unfit for human ears to listen to. Particularly was it such as should not be uttered so that children might hear what was said. The women gathered about Prosecutor Hollandersky and hurled complaints at him so rapidly that he was inclined to flee, but he held his ground and finally asked the court to continue the case six months and to delegate Probation Officer Mansfield to be a peacemaker among the warring women. The court put the case over till the 5th of next December, cautioning the accused as to her behavior during the interval between now and December.

Charles Lawski, a young man of 20 was charged with a breach of the peace in offensive conduct, noise and behavior. He was fined $10 and sent to jail for five days, a period that will keep him out of mischief until Sunday provided he pays his fine and the costs of his arrest and trial. Lawski was at Ocean Beach where he drank something beside the water in which he bathed. He was using the vilest of language when arrested. He is now at liberty on a bond imposed to insure his appearance in the superior court at the September term for an assault upon Prohibition Enforcement Agent Harry Avery in a Montville store, when he was arrested on a liquor transportation charge. Lawski struck Avery from behind and injured him considerably. He is the operator of a pool room on Bradley street, a business in which he is understood to have been established by his mother, that he might be earning something. For a youth of 20 he has a bad record and appears to be adding to it as the years roll by.

A couple of Uncle Sam's service men were taken into custody at the beach by Patrolman Murphy last evening. One of them was drunk and the other had enough down to give him an idea that he could avert the arrest of his companion. The former was presented for intoxication and was allowed to settle upon payment of the costs of his arrest and trial. The latter gave a bond of $50 when he was arrested conditioned upon his appearance in court today. He failed to keep the agreement he made, so his bond was called and declared forfeited to the city.

A case against John Govas, in which Samuel Fern is the complainant and in which an assault is alleged, was continued to Saturday as Judge Prince had partially heard the case and he is to be absent from the city the rest of the week.

It is represented today that to preserve order at Ocean beach at times a larger number of police than is now on duty there must be provided. Last evening rebellious characters were there and the officers had their hands full in subduing them when they became boisterous. The arrangement proposed is for the officers on duty to call headquarters of the police for more men when needed. Saturday and Sunday are the big days at the beach, so that the coming week-end may bring the change suggested.

With the police exercising the utmost vigilance through last night and early this morning, in their efforts to put an end to the burglarizing of stores on Bank street and that vicinity, of which there have been many the past two weeks, but one break was reported at the police station this morning. The place entered was the comfort station, owned by the city and conducted by Mrs. Stella Webber, at Williams Memorial park. Entrance to the place was gained by forcing a window and the plunder obtained comprised wearing apparel of the estimated value of $30.

Another instance of intent to pilfer was revealed, when Barney Kosakow, 40 Franklin street, discovered a man lurking in the darkness in the rear of his home, about 11:30 o'clock. Kosakow reported his observation to the police and Acting Lieutenant Frank Howard and Sergeant Patrick Murphy speeded to the Franklin street residence, but they were too late, for a search of the premises failed to reveal the suspicious person. Neither did a search of the neighborhood reveal any person who could be suspected of being on a mission of thievery.

Throughout the night, not only on Bank street and in that vicinity, but in every section of the city patrolmen maintained a close watch on stores and gave close scrutiny to all youths who were about the streets at a late hour, the young man being ordered to their homes wherever found loitering.

The New London merchants, principally businessmen of State street, who adopted a Saturday night closing rule several months ago will probably cause their places of business to be kept open on Saturday nights at an early date, although they desire to continue closing at 6 o'clock; but because of the chain stores deciding not to close and two of these stores being legitimate competitors of the other stores, the opening of all State street places of business seems destined to result within a fortnight or so. A meeting of a committee representing the merchants and women, who have become interested in the Saturday night store closing, took place last night, but because of the small attendance the meeting adjourned to a later date.

About a year ago merchants decided to suspend business Saturday evenings at 6 o'clock. At that time the Woolworth store management refused to close until 9 o'clock. With the opening of another chain store, the Kresge company last week and the opening of a second store this week, and with the management of these stores declaring that the stores would remain open Saturday nights until 9 o'clock the other merchants feel that they will be compelled to keep their stores open, of business seems destined to result, stores.

Henry Holt Smith and Lucy C. Smith have sold a building lot on Gardner avenue to James H. Blackman, St. Petersburg, Fla.

John Krejewski, 13, of Montville, complained to the police this forenoon that yesterday, while assisting his father in the delivery of farm produce to residents on Winthrop street, a dog, the owner of which is not known to the youth, attacked the boy when near the corner of Mill and Winthrop streets and sank its teeth in the youngster's leg. The wound inflicted by the dog was of such a nature that the boy was forced to seek the services of a physician. The complaint was turned over to Dog Warden John Sweezy for investigation.

James Robinson, of Goshen street, while walking across Shaw's cove bridge this afternoon discovered a section of that part of the structure used by pedestrians to be in dangerous condition, a part of the planking having fallen into the water. The defective structure was reported to the highway department.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Chappell have returned to their home, Federal street, having spent several days in New York.

A meeting of the school committee of the Pleasant Valley school district, Groton, has been called for Friday evening next for the purpose of acting on a petition, which requests that the committee dispense with the service of the present schoolmaster, Willard Eccleston. The petition charges Mr. Eccleston with negligence and incompetency. The circulation of the petition, it is understood, is the outgrowth of a row between two families that occurred two years ago and when the aggrieved parties took their troubles to the schoolmaster, they were settled, but not satisfactorily to one of the parties, who now, it is stated, seeks to oust Mr. Eccleston. Mr. Eccleston has been an instructor at the Pleasant Valley school two years, but his services have not been retained for the coming year. The meeting Friday night bids fair to be a heated one as there are residents of the Pleasant Valley section who declare that the schoolmaster is entirely competent to perform the duties he has been engaged for and that the petition to oust him is simply a movement to endeavor to satisfy the aggrieved resident whose trouble the schoolmaster attempted to adjust amicably, but which resulted in enmity for Mr. Eccleston, being inspired.

John E. and Bendekte Nelson have sold a house and lot on Ocean avenue to Samuel Shapiro.

Dr. Ralph Hewitt, formerly of New London, now located in New York, has concluded a visit with his sister Miss May B. Hewitt, 240 Huntington street.

Nicholas Haddad, proprietor of a clothing store, 129 Main street, was arrested this evening by Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey, charged with breach of the peace and assault. He furnished a bond of $200 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Haddad was taken into custody upon complaint of a woman, a foreigner, who lodged complaint, through her counsel, with Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, who ordered Haddad's arrest. Haddad declares that he has had no altercation with the woman and claims to be at a loss to explain the accusations made against him.

George Fletcher, of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Perry; Patrick Scanlon, 72 Crystal avenue; Astaham Halpren, United States Coast Guard; John Hargis, a member of the crew of the schooner Frank Lynch; James Lunn, United States Coast Guard, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

MILL WORKER AT LYME IS FATALLY INJURED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 5.—John Foley, 26, employed as laborer in a mill at Lyme, was fatally injured late this afternoon when he sustained internal injuries at his place of employment, dying at Lawrence hospital shortly after 6 o'clock, and about an hour after he was admitted to the institution for treatment. Foley's home is in Naugatuck and his mother was notified this evening of her son's death and is on her way here to claim the body.

Foley, it is understood, became caught in a piece of machinery and before the power could be shut off his body was hurled against the side of the building, inflicting injuries which caused his death.

PASSED STANDING TROLLEY— ORDERED TO NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 5.—Clarence Bennett, 22 Lenox street, will be given a hearing in the Norwich city court Thursday morning charged with violation of the automobile law in passing a motionless trolley car that was receiving and discharging passengers in Norwich Sunday last. Captain George Linton, of the Norwich police department, this afternoon informed the New London authorities that a warrant had been issued for Bennett's arrest and requested the local authorities to cause him to present himself in court. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray notified Bennett to go to Norwich tomorrow and defend the charge and the accused stated that he would do so. Bennett will be the second New Londoner to face a court trial in Norwich this week for violation of the automobile laws. The other defendant was Charles Schuman, of Franklin street, whose case was continued Monday until the 12th inst.

VOLUNTOWN

Martha Ida Wetherhead Kinne, 82, died at the Hutchins homestead, Main street, Danielson, Sunday, July 26th. Her girlhood days were spent in Killingly, but from about 1860 to 1922, she lived in Voluntown, and centerville, R. I.

The Windham County Transcript says:

She came to her nieces at the Hutchins' homestead in November, 1923, to spend the remander of her days. She was a daughter of George Wetherhead, who at the time she lived in Killingly and before, owned the Attawaugan mill and the mill village and she was a sister of the late Mrs. Ellen M. Hutchins, wife of Dr. Samuel Hutchins.

Not only was her father a large mill owner, but an older sister, Sarah, was then the wife of Nelson Whittemore, who owned the Whittemore mill.

Mrs. Kinne had been confined to her room and bed since last December. She was a devout Christian and was a member of the Voluntown Methodist church and continued her membership there after coming to Danielson three years ago. She attended both the Congregational and the Methodist churches here as long as she was able to attend. For about 50 years she was a tireless church worker in Voluntown.

She took a keen interest in the affairs of government and in politics. She voted for the first time in the town election and national election last fall and enjoyed and appreciated the privilege of the franchise.

She leaves her husband, Clarke Kinne of Centerville, R. I., five nieces, Mrs. E. A. Sabin of Harrison, N. Y., Miss Annie M. Hutchins, Mrs. Mary T. Taynter, Mrs. Ella H. Back and Miss Amelia B. Hutchins of Danielson and eleven grand-nephews and grandsons: Ida A. Newton, Walter F. Oatley, Mrs. Fannie Huntley, Mrs. Mabel Pierce and Eleanor A. Oatley of Providence; William F. Oatley, Inglewood, Cal.; Frank J. Oatley, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Alice T. Lienbach, Reading, Pa.; Harold H. Taynter and Harry E. Back, Jr., of Danielson and Samuel H. Back of Boston.

Mrs. Kinne was a half sister of Mrs. Whittemore and Mrs. Hutchins mentioned above, their mother having died young, and Mr. Weatherhead having married for a second wife Lucinda Work, of Eastford, who was the mother of Mrs. Kinne. Mrs. Kinne was born Dec. 7th, 1842, in Attawaugan.

The funeral was held at the Hutchins homestead at 1 o'clock Tuesday. Rev. Roger C. Stimson of the Methodist church officiated. The bearers were members of the family and S. S. Slone, Sidney Perry and O. P. Bartlett of Danielson and John F. Gardner of Griswold. At the funeral besides local people there were delegations from Sterling Hill, Ekonk, Voluntown and Griswold. Burial was in North Killingly cemetery, Putnam Heights.

IT'S AN ILL WIND

That doesn't blow some good. Had a chance yesterday and took it to get what they tell me is one of the greatest acts that has ever come out of the west

THE SEVEN NATIVE SONS

Just before they open on the big time. Like Dempsey they want to tune up a bit and after August 30th you'll pay what they're worth if you want to see them. A real novelty. An Indian jazz band and clever entertainers. The first time in the East and the last times in the popular priced houses.

EDDIE CANTOR, STAR OF KID BOOTS

is one of the greatest artists on the stage. He ought to know an artist when he sees one. He thinks enough of to write a special line of chatter for him and let Mr. Tobias enjoy the benefit of his name. We'll take a chance on Cantor's judgment as Chas. Tobias will be on the bill today. Also

HARRY (SHUFFLER) LEVAN AND ALGER

The sensation of the burlesque world this season. If they can't make you forget your troubles your case is hopeless. In addition is on the bill in the opening spot. Ted does stuff on the wire that most of us couldn't do on the ground. Then as a grand and glorious finish comes in a little hokum that will please everybody. You ought to enjoy this bill. We ought to do a big business—especially tonight as it is and we are giving away a lot of presents that everybody will be glad to get. Better start a little earlier tonight.

TED SHAW & COMPANY

SAUERE AND SANDER

A real treat on the screen

REX, THE KING OF WILD HORSES

One of the best treats of the season. Don't let the weather bother you. It's always cool at the Palace. The large Typhoon Suction Fans take care of that and by the way, the Palace is the only theatre in town and one of the few in Eastern Connecticut that has this system.

Sincerely Yours

STUDEBAKER Standard Six Duplex-Phaeton

A Year Ahead of Its Time

The One-Profit Duplex—more up-to-date than the newest "yearly models"

THE Duplex Body, introduced by Studebaker in September, 1924, is a revolutionary new-type open car—with advantages open cars have never possessed before.

Within its steel-framed upper structure are concealed roller side enclosures which the driver may lower in 30 seconds without leaving his seat—giving instant protection from rain, snow, cold or wind. With equal ease the enclosures roll up out of sight.

So obvious are the advantages of the Duplex that Studebaker has become the outstanding leader in the open-car field among cars selling above $1000.

Triumph of Studebaker Engineering

Other manufacturers will undoubtedly have to follow in Studebaker's footsteps. For any open car today without this unique advantage is obsolete.

But at the time this advertisement is written, Studebaker—and Studebaker alone—offers you this double convenience.

Another important engineering advantage pioneered by Studebaker is the use of genuine, full-size balloon tires, with steering mechanism, fenders and body lines especially designed for them.

Other manufacturers are gradually following Studebaker's lead—but remember, Studebaker developed this important feature 11 months ago.

On the Studebaker Standard Six Duplex-Phaeton illustrated above, you'll find an automatic spark control, safety lighting control on the steering wheel, 8-day clock, gasoline gauge on the dash, improved one-piece windshield, special coincidental lock of ignition and steering gear, foot controlled cowl ventilator, completely machined crankshaft, oil drain valve which a girl can operate without soiling her hands, and waterproof ignition—all Studebaker features.

These are a few of the points which show that Studebaker cars are more up-to-date than the "new models" now being announced in dizzy succession.

And any automobile expert will tell you that new models of necessity are engineering experiments. Only after months of use in the hands of owners can all mechanical flaws be eliminated. Engineers are human—and it takes time to eliminate mistakes.

Thus, when you buy a Studebaker, you not only get a motor car that is completely up to date, but you also eliminate all guesswork and gamble. Your new car has been tested and proved satisfactory in the hands of thousands of owners.

Come in today—and see the One-Profit Duplex which has made all other open cars obsolete. It is called a "one-profit" car because all vital units are built entirely by Studebaker—thus eliminating the extra profits and overhead of outside parts makers which many other manufacturers must pay and include in the purchase price to you. This explains the fine quality and the low price.

POETRY

THREE SCORE AND TEN.

Age is not all unkind; that ebbing tide,
So sadly sung for what it bears away,
Has ebbed the shallows where we launched our pride,
But sounder banks on surer seas abide,
Fraught with our hopes today.

Age is not all unkind; the shrinking wave
Has bared a reef, where the last wreck has lain,
While winds of moon's upraising round it rave,
Some gems of grace life's innocent days gave,
And evening finds again.

Age is not all unkind; the laboring wings
For all their troublous beat, have stirred a calm,
That in the shadow of departing things,
As through life's droning griefs there something sings
Of peace and recompense.

—Thomas Thornely.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

If wisdom's light is only disenchantment,
As say the cynics of a certain school,
And sages grow more sad in their advancement,
Then folly is the wisdom of a fool.

Since fools know happiness through lack of knowledge,
And see things fair because they shut their eyes,
Then any one can look who's been to college,
That wisdom is the folly of the wise.

—Caroline Duer.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What makes you look so worried?"
"I just lost $5,000 in a crap game."
"Five thousand!"
"Yes, and the hard part of it is, $15 was cash."—Lafayette Lyre.

Mother (at fashionable resort)—Elsie, look at your dress, it's a sight! And that's the third dress I've put on you today.

Elsie—That's nothing, mother! Look at Mrs. Dé Styles over there, she's had on four.—Boston Transcript.

In his announcement on a Sunday morning the vicar regretted that money was not coming in fast enough—but he was no pessimist.

"We have tried" he said, "to raise the necessary money in the usual manner. We have used honesty. Now we are going to see what a bazaar can do."—Honey Comb Bricks.

Bill (discussing baseball prospects)—"Big Benham will be our best man in a few weeks of surprise."

Bertha—"What an original proposal! I accept. But, dear."—Texas Ranger.

Mr. Tod (the dog fancier)—But surely, madam, the animal is not a thoroughbred?

Mrs. Van de Puyster—Well, Mr. Todd, little Hiotto's heredity may not be all it might have been, but his environment has been so good that I'm sure he will turn out all right in the end.—Harvard Lampoon.

Investigation by the bureau of labor of Porto Rico is said to have disclosed the fact that 50 cents a day is the average received by the 40,000 women and children employed in industry in the island.

Miss Victoria Kent an English girl, has become the first woman lawyer in Spain. Her first important case took place a few weeks ago, when she acted as defending counsel on a charge of homicide.

A German inventor has found a method for wireless communication between moving automobiles. The invention enables a person in one car to talk over a wireless telephone to a person in another.

Queen Mary reservoir is the name officially bestowed upon the great artificial lake just completed as a part of the London waterworks system. The reservoir is one of the largest artificial bodies of water in the world. It took 11 years to build and cost $10,000,000.

Three-quarters of a million pounds of dynamite have been used in the construction of the world's largest rock filled dam, now nearing completion at Burgin, Ky. Approximately 4,000,000 of rock was blasted. This is one of the largest explosive jobs in connection with a hydro-electric project ever undertaken in the United States. One of the features in connection with it was the blasting of great quantities of rock fro mthe cliffs along the Dix river. Two large blasts were made for this purpose by explosives engineers, one of them containing 83,000 pounds of explosives. This placed approximately 150,000 tons of rock into the dam. When this project is completed, 26,000-horse power will be developed and the current will be carried over a 110-mile transmission line to supply many communities in Kentucky. The crest of the dam will be 275 feet above the bottom of the gorge, will be 1,020 feet long and 20 feet wide and will be used as a roadway.

ALL IS NOT ROSY FOR THE CRIMINAL

There is a feeling that criminals are having it more and more their own way in the world. Frequent comment appears on the prevalence of crime in all civilized countries, but particularly in the United States, which boasts of being one of the most progressive countries in the world. Moreover, the increase in wrong-doing is attributed to the fact that convictions are getting rarer and rarer, and that punishment gets lighter and lighter. Now comes the suggestion that convicts should be paid for their labor while serving out their sentences, and the effect of this is feared by many as a direct incentive to the commission of crime. At the recent international police conference in New York the principle of paying prisoners was approved, and it is one favored by high authorities in this country.

If it is being made more comfortable for criminals after capture, there is this to be said about the matter—it is being made distinctly less comfortable for them before capture. That is to say, they are aware that their chances of escape are being steadily diminished. It is true that many of the inventions of modern science are as helpful to the criminal as they are to the authorities responsible for his suppression. The motor car, for instance has been a most fruitful source of crime and has contributed perhaps more than anything else to the perpetration of daring robberies and the escape of the miscreants. Yet what a boon to the police have been the telephone, wireless telegraphy, telephotography, etc.

An extension of these services is now in contemplation, and has, in fact, already given practical demonstration of its effectiveness, in the establishment of an international finger-print bureau in Washington, where some 8,000,000 finger prints will be registered, which will be placed at the disposition of other nations. A criminal indentification system, on international lines, is about to be set up, and the transmission of essential information by means of long-distance photography and telephonic communication is being provided for. The way of the wicked is thus to be made harder.—Hamilton Spectator.

Appearance of the Death Watch Beetle

The appearance of the death-watch beetle in the timbering of one of the towers of Lincoln cathedral in England is causing the dean much trouble, but he is equally disappointed with what he calls the stinginess of English people in sending funds to assist in combatting the work of the beetle, and in the restoration of the cathedral. The generosity of Americans, the dean says, is in great contrast, American money, he points out, has enabled nearly half the work to be done, and by the end of the year he expects to have enough American dollars to pay for the reparation of the central tower and two transepts.

Jazz music broke the heart of Banda Marci, king of gypsy fiddlers who was recently buried at Budapest with 10,000 admirers and friends standing beside his grave. Count Stefan Tisza and many other famous Hungarians were the intimate friends of the man who was supposed to play Magyar folk songs with more feeling than any other musicians of his time. At the request of Marci, the bands played only folk songs of his native land as his body was taken to the cemetery. He abhorred conventional funeral music as much as the new syncopated music. When syncopation became the rage in Hungary and fox trots were heard everywhere, Banda Marci laid aside his violin.

It is not always wise to tell all one knows, but it is well to know all that one tells.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

NEW YORK Aug. 5.—(A P)—Extensive profit taking and bear selling, apparently based on the theory that the so-called technical position of the market had been weakened by the recent brisk advance, checked the upward movement of prices in today's stock markets, but not until after more than a score issues had mounted to new high levels for the year. Closing quotations disclosed considerable irregularities.

Trade news was mixed in character. Bullish factors included the publication of encouraging weekly trade reviews, the announcement that freight carloadings had again crossed the million mark in the week ended July 25 and a further stiffening in certain commodity prices. Additional gasoline price cuts, another tightening in call money rates and reports that certain commission houses were urging liquidation of stocks in an apparent effort to reduce their loans were offsetting influences.

Spectacular price movements took place in a few public utilities motors and specialities. Nash Motors was run up nearly ten points to 433, as against a low of 381 a few days ago. Montana Power scored nearly 7 points to a record top at 83 3-4 on reports that it would mean a much higher price for Montana stock. American Brake Shoe jumped nearly 9 points to a new peak at 121 1-4.

Special buying continued in the merchandising issues. National Cloak and Suit responded to reports of high current earnings by jumping over 8 points to 74. Ginter Company attained a new peak price at 49 1-2 and then reacted to 45, where it was off about two points on the day. Mallinson touched a new high on the current movement at 30. Simmons Company attained another new peak at 48 3-4. National Dairy Products closed 3 points higher at 59 1-2, the year's best price.

Several strong spots also cropped out among the automobile issues. Mack Trucks closed 3 3-4 higher at 187. Stromberg Carburetor was run up over three points and Gardner Motors 3 3-4 while Dodge preferred, American Bosch Magneto and Stewart-Warner Speedometer closed a point or so higher.

Most of the Standard Industrials lost ground. American Can and Baldwin each showed net losses of about 1 1-2 points at 214 1-4 and 110 7-8, respectively, although the former touched a record price at 216 3-4. United States Steel common closed fractionally lower at 120 1-4, after fluctuating within a range of a little more than 1 point.

Another wave of selling orders swept over the oil shares on the announcement that gasoline prices had been cut two cents a gallon in the New England States. Net losses of 1 to nearly 2 points were recorded by Houston Oil, Independent Oil and Gas and Pacific Petroleums in most of the other issues being held to fractions.

Among the issues which broke through their previous high levels during the session were General Motors, Hayes Wheel, General Baking, Coca Cola, Frank G. Shattuck, Public Service of New Jersey, General Railway Signal, Du Pont, Loews, Inc., and New York Dock, R. S. Shulte and Tidswater Oil established new low prices for the year.

Strength of the so-called Walters Roads feautred the railroad group. Atlantic Coast Line was run up to a new top at 187 1-2, after selling as low as 180, and Louisville and Nashville showed a net gain of nearly 2 points at 117 1-2 after having crossed 119 Wabash preferred A touched a new top at 71 3-4. Revival of activity in New York Central was based on speculative expectations of an increase in the dividend.

Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent. and then advanced to 4 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange moved within rather and irregular limits, with most of the European quotations showing slight recessions. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 but French francs ruled several points lower around 4.70 1-2.

HONORARY RECOGNITION FOR THREE IN AGRICULTURE AT STORRS

STORRS, Aug. 5—Announcement of the award of Honorary Recognition in Agriculture of Edward W. Hazen of Haddam, Clifford E. Hough of Hartford, and Samuel Scoville Rogers of Cornwall, was made here tonight. President Charles Lewis Beach of the Connecticut Agricultural College made the presentation address, delivering the certificate to Mr. Scoville at the opening of the evening meeting. Mr. Hough is out of the state at present, and Mr. Hazen was unable to be present because of illness, but their certificates will be delivered to them later. In his address President Beach said in part:

At Farmer's Week, 1924, the Connecticut Agricultural college instituted the custom of giving "Honorary Recognition" to leaders in agriculture and rural life. The purpose of this award is to bring to the attention of the public the significance of the life-work and achievements of men and women who have helped materially to improve the status of agriculture and rural conditions.

The plan was borrowed from Wisconsin, where seventeen years ago the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin instituted an "Honorary Recognition" policy as a tribute to outstanding rural leadership. Several other colleges have taken up the movement. It amounts, in a way, to an agricultural hall of fame. Men and women who by example and intelligent devotion to rural interests have helped make farming more prosperous and farm life more satisfactory are entitled to some form of recognition.

The purpose of this award is not to single out "best" farmers. In fact, many men who have contributed most effectively to agriculture have not been farmers. Neither is it primarily to confer distinction upon an individual, but rather to present to the people of Connecticut, urban as well as rural, an idea of the dignity, the importance and permanence of Connecticut farming.

Selection is made by a special committee of the college faculty and is approved by the board of trustees. In 1924 Honorary Recognition certificates were conferred upon: C. J. Abell, of Lebanon; E. H. Jenkins, of New Haven, and Elijah Rogers, of Southington.

Selections for honorary recognition in 1925 are: Edward W. Hazen, Haddam; Clifford E. Hough, Hartford, and Samuel Rogers Scoville, of Cornwall.

Edward W. Hazen.

Edward W. Hazen, of Haddam, was born in Middletown, Feb. 13, 1860. The family moved to Haddam the same year and Mr. Hazen was educated in the town schools and Wilbraham academy.

At eighteen, he became a public school teacher in Haddam, and taught here and elsewhere in Connecticut for seven years, spending each summer at work on the home farm.

From 1873 to 1915 he was engaged in business, resigning in the latter year to devote his time to welfare work with the young people of Middlesex county and of Connecticut. He has long been identified with Y. M. C. A. work, locally, nationally and internationally, and established at Chester the state Y. M. C. A. camp, named Camp Hazen in his honor.

He has been identified with the Middlesex county farm bureau since its organization, taking an active part in the promotion of Boys and Girl's club work in the county.

He was one of the founders of the Eastern States Agricultural and Industrial league, is chairman of the executive committee, and is also chairman of the executive committee of the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange.

He conducts a practical dairy and fruit farm of 450 acres at Haddam producing certified milk from a herd of one hundred Guernseys and Holsteins.

Throughout his life Mr. Hazen has been interested in rural Connecticut, and has supported with time, thought and money every worthy movement for making rural life more satisfying in Connecticut and New England. He is one of the state's more public spirited citizens whose greatest service that to the youth of the state, cannot be evaluated.

Clifford E. Hough.

Clifford E. Hough, of Hartford, was born in Southington, Feb. 9, 1877. He was educated in the schools of Southington, Hamden and New Haven.

From 1895 to 1908 he was a salesman for the Dillon and Douglas butter and egg commission house. In 1909 he engaged in farming at Washington, Connecticut, and continued until he became manager of the Connecticut Milk Producers' association in 1921.

Mr. Hough was the first selectman in the town of Washington, in 1913-1914. He was one of the organizers of the Washington Fair and secretary from 1912 to 1921. He served as a member of the Litchfield county draft board in 1917-1918.

As a member of the house of representatives in 1915, Mr. Hough led the movement to accept the federal Smith-Lever bill, and to appropriate money to the counties for the support of the farm bureaus. The present extension service and the farm bureaus are largely a result of his efforts in this behalf. He became the first president of the Litchfield county farm bureau in 1915. In 1919 he was a senator from the 31st district.

Mr. Hough made his greatest contribution to agriculture through his success in establishing co-operative milk marketing in the state. From 1914 to 1916 he was a director in the Dairyman's league, representing western Connecticut, and in 1921 he became manager of the Connecticut Milk Producers' association. The present Connecticut plan, evolved and directed by Mr. Hough, has attracted national attention.

Samuel Rogers Scoville.

Samuel Rogers Scoville was born in Cornwall, in March, 1866, on the farm owned and operated by members of his family since 1760. He was educated in the local schools, Stamford High school and Andover academy. Upon the death of his father, Mr. Scoville at the age of twenty-one, took over the operation of the home farm.

As a farmer he has achieved notable success in dairying, having bred and developed one of the highest producing and most practically managed grade herds in the state. He has consistently kept in touch with advances in agriculture and has been among the first to adopt new methods, once they were proved practical. Through all the trials of a difficult period in agriculture he has retained an undaunted enthusiasm tempered by sound judgment.

Mr. Scoville has been active in the promotion of the welfare of the farmers in his region. He was one of the most courageous battlers for co-operation in the marketing of milk throughout the early days of doubt, hesitation and frequent defeat. He was among the first to give active support to the Litchfield county farm bureau and has been its vice-president for many years. He has been for a long time an active member of the Grange.

Mr. Scoville typifies the finest in New England life as a citizen of his town and a neighbor in his local community. For many years an efficient selectman of the town of Cornwall, a representative in the general assembly in 1925, relied upon by the young men of his community as a friend and counsellor in every time of need, for a generation the most dependable member of the church choir, with an unquenchable spirit of fun which makes him the life of every social gathering, he is a real leader who gives without stint to all about him, and thus reaps the best of life for himself. It is in men of this sort that centers the glory of our rural towns, and the finest spirit of rural life.

CHILD HEALTH WORK RECORDS ARE BROKEN

All previous records were broken in the month of June when 873 children attended the well child conferences which are conducted by local communities and the state department of health, says a statement issued by the Connecticut State Department of Health.

So the good work goes on. Mothers who have once learned of the advantages of bringing their children to the monthly conferences, are eager to tell others about it. Not satisfied to merely hear about it the new mothers must come closer and satisfy their curiosity bringing a child or two to be on the safe side should it prove to be all right. So it was that all the little ones, 873 of them, trooped in, some on foot, some by farm truck, some by the trusty Ford. Faces of the mothers were set for that place "over there," perhaps three miles away, where somebody took interest enough to look over their babies and run-about and explain just the things to do to make and keep them strong and healthy.

Last year summer conferences were opened in places so remote that access would be difficult in the cold winter months. The response to these conferences was so gratifying and the demand for more time so insistent that they have become permanent well child conferences. With the limited personnel available from the state department of health, it has not been possible to hold such conferences monthly, so those in the outlying districts alternate with each other and some are even held every third month.

This makes it possible for mothers in 40 towns to learn how to keep their children healthy. Either local or state physicians are always in attendance, and they can quickly detect any deviation from the normal as they make the thorough physical examination. Or, they can bring comfort to the mother by assuring her that her child is progressing "healthfully."

Out of the total number who attended the conferences in June, 172 were referred to their family physicians as having some defects which by being corrected would improve their health. Health is made very real to the mothers who attend these conferences. They are shown the right way to attain health for their little one through rest and sleep and right food.

Thus has a health highway been established in Connecticut, for the benefit of its pre-school children. There are now 40 well child conferences, for the most part in outlying sections inaccessible to congested centers. From such centers the health message spreads, and a splendid start has been made toward the future of the child as a health asset to the state.

CAMP HINES HAS OPENED AT NIANTIC

Camp Hines at Niantic has opened under the direction of Camp Director Fred Innes, with 70 men from the northern part of the state. The disabled veterans pitched 24 tents in two squad strees and six other tents at the head of the streets for the staff of the camp.

Twelve of the men are from New Britain. Other towns are represented as follows: East Hartford three, Torrington two, Bristol two, Southington one, Manchester two, West Hartford one, and East Woodstock one. There is also one disabled veteran from Newark, N. J., who formerly lived in East Hartford. The men represent a wide variety of experiences in France, Italy and Poland.

Dancing in the Veterans' building, erected in 1923, closed the first evening's entertainment. Each man has received four blankets and other supplies are expected from Hartford.

Had Weenie Roast

On Tuesday evening the members of the Maennerchor Turner Section of Taftville enjoyed a weenie roast on Mish's Island. After the roast games were played, and singing around a large campfire was enjoyed. A rowboat race between the boys and girls was held, resulting in the girls being the winners. An event that was not looked forward to was the capsizing of a canoe with Pat Donohue as the victim. The party broke up at a late hour giving three cheers for the committee in charge.

It takes two to make a bargain, but only one of them gets it.

WILL DEPORT THEODORE KUNDIG TO SWITERLAND

Theodore Kundig, a native of Switzerland, who made his home in Norwich and New London for a number of months, and who has been serving one year in the New London County Jail in this city, was taken from the jail, Sunday by Federal officers and escorted to Ellis Islan, New York, from where he will be deported to his native land. Kundig was serving time on a charge of statutory rape and had completed six months of his sentence. His home is in Zurich, Switzerland.

While in this country Kundig made many friends, especially through his ability in swimming. He is a swimmer of considerable ability and made a record swim from Ocean Beach to Fishers Island. Kundig also holds a Carnegie medal, presented to him for exceptional bravery in Switzerland, when single handed he saved two people, a woman and a man from being swept over a falls, the rescue being made at the peril of his own life.

Kundig was arraigned in the superior court in Norwich last January. He denied the charges lodged against him and at first entered a plea of not guilty. He stated later that owing to lack of funds with which to engage counsel, he changed his plea to guilty in hopes of receiving a minimum sentence. It is said that the girl who brought charges against the youth, had retracted the statement which landed Kundig in jail.

Before his arraignment in federal court to face deportation, Kundig stated that if he were deported he planned to return to his home in Zurich where his family lives. He may enter art school to continue studies for which he showed great aptitude during his college days in Switzerland.

OVER 250 BOYS AT FORT TERRY

For the first time in the conduct of Citizens' Military Training camps, an anti-aircraft camp has been opened, and the historic army post at Fort Terry was chosen as the place. The boys who come from every nook and corner of New England began to arrive early last week, though the camp did not open officially until August 1st. By that date, they were coming to the island on every regular boat and special boats were run direct to the fort in order to complete the roster as far as possible that day.

The camp is under the command of Lt. Colonel J. R. Musgrace, of Fort Wright; Major Robert C. Eddy, the well known Rotarian of New London, is the executive officer, and in charge of plans and training. The camp chaplain and publicity officer is Captain Wallace L. Gallup, chaplain, who in civilian life is professor at Connecticut college. Capt. Guy G. Allen of Groton is in camp as a reserve officer, and from Hartford and vicinity there are present as instructors and assistants Major Allen D. Stoddard, Capt. N. P. Henson, Capt. W. E. Judaiz, Lt. V. S. Morehouse, Lieut. Lester Randall and Lieut. D. W. Sandberg, all officers of the 534rd Anti-Aircraft Reserve regiment; this outfit in case of emergency would be the first to be called to defend the coast in this vicinity from hostile planes.

CAMP TIPPECAN LOG HOUSE IS NAMED

Friday night at Camp Tippecan proved so rainy that all scouts assembled in the new log house completed this summer and a large fire was built in the old fire place.

Scout Executive F. A. Benton lighted the fire and christened the structure, "Tippecan Long House."

The boys rose and repeated the scout oath.

Assistant Scout Master Robert Schmidt led the campers in three cheers for putting over the construction of the Long House. A comfortable evening was spent before the bright fire.

Rev. F. C. Williams read a mystery story by Washington Irving and Mr. Lester read an Indian story by McLaughlan.

Three scouts carved an excellent totem pole, engraved to Dennis Lewis, which has been painted alongside the Long House and presents a real Indian touch to the camp.

END BUNION PAIN FOREVER

No Need to Suffer Another Day Those Agonizing Torturing Pains

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflamed, swollen toe joints and get them down to normal and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning and people who suffer from such enlargements would be wise to reduce them before they reach a more or less chronic stage.

Ask Lee and Osgood or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

R. I. CAVALRY ENCAMPS FOR NIGHT AT OCCUM FLATS

Occum Flats took on a war time aspect Wednesday afternoon when members of the First Squadron, Rhode Island Cavalry, of Providence, R. I., pitched their tents there for the night. Scenes familiar to many who served during the war were soon enacted, the pup tents springing up in rows while the mess tents were pitched in the center of the camp and the work of preparing food for over 150 men began.

The First Squadron numbering 14 squadron officers, three regular army officers as instructors and 140 men and horses, is one of the largest cavalry outfits to pitch camp in this section. The squadron is commanded by Major Samuel A. Hall and the regular army officers are Captain George S. Andrews, professor of tactics, West Point; Captain Arthur Thayer and Captain Donald R. Dunkle.

Captain Andrews, who is a Connecticut man, having been born in Naugatuck, recently received notice to report to West Point on August 25th, as professor in tactics and the members of his squadron, although sorry to lose a popular officer, are pleased at his promotion.

Every member of the squadron has enjoyed fine health while away on the 15-day field training trip and if the mess served at Occum Flats Wednesday night is what they get regularly, there is little doubt but what they will return to their homes in better condition than when they left on July 25th.

The squadron left Providence on July 25th and made Quonoset, R. I., that day, remaining in camp there until August 2nd, when the call "forward march" was again heard and the horses and men were given more road exercise. The next stop was at Tiogue reservoir and then at Panaganset reservoir. The cavalry squadron crossed over into Connecticut on Tuesday and stopped over night in Moosup.

Wednesday morning the trip was started which brought them to Occum Flats, only dirt roads being used by the mounted men in their riding each day. During the march each day maneuvers are carried out under as near fighting conditions as possible.

Early this (Thursday) morning the men will break camp and start for Gardner Lake to strike camp again at the lakeshore, on the property of A. Chester Brown. The three motor trucks and four teams traveling with the squadron will pass through Norwich enroute to the lake, while the mounted men will pass around Norwich to avoid hard travel for the horses. Friday morning the squadron will go to Niantic and on Saturday will begin the return trip to Providence, completing the fifteen day field training for 1925.

Hundreds of Norwich people went to Occum Wednesday night to see the camp and were struck with the orderly way in which the camp was conducted. Numbers of the men obtaining leave for the evening came into the city and enjoyed the shows at the theatres or went to Hill Top Casino where a dance was in progress.

The squadron thus far in its trip has had two rainy nights, the first being on Friday of last week and the second last night, when a drizzling rain fell at intervals throughout the night.

WOMAN SUES DOG OWNER FOR $5,000

Annie Weiner of Hartford, now of Ocean Beach, New London, seeks damages of $5,000 in a civil action instituted against Harry Brightman, also of Hartford, but now of Ocean Beach, according to papers filed Wednesday with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court in this city.

The complaint alleges that the defendant is the owner of a police dog, known to the defendant to be vicious, mischievous, prone to attack and injure mankind and that on July 21, Brightman suffered the animal to be at large. On that day, according to the papers, the plaintiff was in her yard when the dog entered her premises and attacked her by jumping at her and forcing her against a wall. The plaintiff claims that as a result she sustained bodily injury and permanent nervous trouble and that she has expended a huge sum for medicine and for medical and nursing treatment.

Several weeks ago, quite a session was held in the New London police court following complaint made against Brightman's dog. At the time the plaintiff in the present action was a witness.

Picnic at Drawbridge

Children from the East Side playground numbering about 100, in charge of Miss Vicar Walz, enjoyed a picnic at Poquetanuck drawbridge Monday. Swimming and various other sports were enjoyed during the day and basket 'luncheons were enjoyed. Much credit is due to Miss Walz for the efficient manner in which the children were transported to and from the grove.

A spinster is sometimes a woman who wouldn't marry if she could and couldn't if she would.

NORWICH TOWN

The general chairman, Lewis Aldrich, and his several committees, are well satisfied with the success at the lawn social, Tuesday evening, on Huntington Green, held under the auspices of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Everything was disposed of early in the evening. The net proceeds amounted to about $80.

Frederick G. Ross, local manager at the American Express office, with Mrs. Ross and their two children, left Tuesday morning for Niantic, where they will occupy one of the Stone House cottages for the remainder of August. Mr. and Mrs. Ross were accompanied by Mrs. William S. Case, of West Town street, who will be their guest for an indefinite period.

The Congregational Young People's C. E. society held an open-air service Sunday evening in the rear of the chapel. John L. Browning was leader. The topic was God's Friendliness as Expressed in Nature. Matthew 6:26-30; Psalms 145:16. During the service, Miss Elizabeth Avery and Miss Louise Avery were appointed delegates to the Christian Endeavor convention to be held at Storrs, Aug. 10th to the 17th. Stephen, Acts 6:8-15; 7: 54-60, is the topic assigned to the Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer, Thursday evening, in the chapel.

Rev. James B. Aldrich spoke at the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning, from Matthew 19-16, And, behold, one came and said unto Him, Good Master, what good things shall I do, that I may have eternal life? Mrs. William H. Whiteman was in charge of the Young People's C. E. service in the evening, when the topic was "God's Friendliness as Expressed in Nature" with scripture references in Matthew and Psalms.

Norwich Town relatives have received post cards from Old Orchard Beach, Maine, from Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sterry, of Otrobando avenue, who are members of a party of the Norwich people, who left Sunday by automobile for a week's camping trip to Maine.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street, were automobile guests of friends Sunday afternoon and evening, to several nearby Connecticut shore resorts, covering a distance of about 70 miles.

At the rear of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Dean's property, at 14 Town street, Monday evening, "The Idle Hour" circle, comprising several nearby neighbors, held the fifth in a series of frankfurter roasts, with rolls, doughnuts and soda.

In addition to the frankfurters and rolls the picnickers had toasted marshmallows and coffee. There were sixteen present.

The Young People's C. E. society of the First Methodist Episcopal church, held a business meeting Friday evening to discuss matters of interest to the church and society.

WARRINER REPLIES TO THE MINE WORKERS' PRESIDENT

Chairman of Anthracite Operators' Conference Asserts That He Remains Hopeful of Settlement of Differences Between the Miners and Mine Owners—Declares That Every Consideration Demands That An Agreement Be Reached to Avoid a Suspension of Production—Denies Statement That the Operators' Committee is under Instructions to Refuse Concessions.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6—(AP)—Samuel D. Warinner, chairman of the anthracite operators conference, in a reply made public tonight to the last communication of President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, said that "in spite of the terms of his letter and the breaking off of negotiations, he was hopeful that means will be found to compose the difference between them and avoid a suspension of production." "Every consideration demands that this be done," Mr. Lewis added.

Mr. Warriner wrote that Mr. Lewis' statement that the operators negotiating committee is under instructions to refuse concessions is untrue and said that "the operators committee is no more bound by instructions than your committee is bound by the demands adopted by the Scranton convention."

"There is one really important matter to which I must refer," Mr. Warriner wrote, "and that is your statement that you possess knowledge of the anthracite operators' well-known policy of keeping close to an arbitrator. This is advanced as your reason for refusing arbitration. If it means anything, it is an allegation that the operators have corrupted or would corrupt arbitrators and that all arbitrators are subject to corruption. I cannot believe that you seriously make such an accusation. It condemns itself."

The letter from Mr. Lewis stating the miners' position and giving its reasons for discontinuing negotiations was sent to Mr. Warriner the day negotiations were halted at Atlantic City. Since then the miners' scale committee has ratified the action of its sub-committee in discontinuing the conference. The operators met here yesterday and exchanged views on the situation as presented after the break. It is understood that Mr. Warriner's reply to Mr. Lewis was outlined at this meeting.

Mr. Warriner's letter is as fowns:

"My dear Mr. Lewis: Your letter of August 4 was, I understand, read by you to the operators, negotiating committee, and it would seem might better have been addressed to Major Inglis, the chairman. I again assure you this committee has full power.

It is, of course, untrue that the operators' negotiating committee is under instruction to continue to refuse any concessions regardless of the logic or merit of any of the mine workers' wage demands. The operator's committee is no more bound by instructions than your committee is bound by the demands adopted by the Scranton convention.

"You have now taken the grave responsibility of abruptly terminating the negotiations because of opposition to your demands as adopted by the Scranton convention. In short, you take the position that 'negotiation' means instant agreement with your demands.

"It is true, as you say, that Major Inglis and I have made statements to the effect that production costs should be reduced. You are quite mistaken in your statements that we 'desire to reduce wages in order to increase profit margins.' We desire to reduce production costs—which are excessive—in order to conform prices to market requirements, to make our product more attractive to the consumer and so maintain production and keep labor employed.

"You state that the operators have vetoed 'every constructive suggestion' that the mine workers have made. You instance your suggestions in regard to freight rates, officials' salaries, etc., as examples to your constructive suggestions. Our representatives insisted upon what is the obvious fact—that we have nothing to do with freight rates and that officers' salaries, legal expenses, etc., not charged to the expenses, etc., are not charged to the labor cost of producing anthracite.

"There is one really important matter to which I must refer, and that is your statement that you possess knowledge of 'the anthracite operators' well-known policy of keeping close to an arbitrator.' This is alleged as your reason for refusing arbitration. If it means anything it is an allegation that the operators have corrupted or would corrupt arbitrators and that all arbitrators are subject to corruption. I cannot believe you seriously make such an accusation. It condemns itself.

"On this false premise you attack not merely a suggestion applying to this case, you attack a principal that is universally approved by right thinking men as the best means yet devised to arrive at justice between contending parties. The only alternative is industrial strife with its attendant waste and loss to teh employes no less than to he industry.

"In spite of the terms of your letter and the breaking off of negotiations, I am hopeful that means will be found to compose the differences between us and avoid a suspension of production. Every consideration demands that this be done."

FORD AWARDED SEVEN OCEAN GOING TUGS AT $42,500 EACH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The shipping board authorized the sale to Henry Ford today of seven ocean-going tugs for $42,500 each.

An offer from the Detroit manufacturer for the tugs, which it is understood he intends to use in scrapping the 500 vessel recently awarded him by the board, was received today. It was for $300,000 cash. This was rejected by the board which instructed the fleet corporation to negotiate with Mr. Ford on the higher basis. It is expected the sale will be concluded on this basis. The tugs have been idle for some time and with their sale the board will have only three left in its possession.

GOSSIP CONCERNING FOSTER DAUGHTER OF MILLIONAIRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(A. P.)—Tears for a little while today replaced the smile that won Mary Louise Spas her adoption by Edward W. Browning, millionaire real estate operator.

The tears were occasioned by persistent declarations that she is quite a bit older than she admits and by the announcement of Bird S. Coler, commissioner of public welfare, that an inquiry into her status is under way. Mr. Coler was particularly interested in reports that Browning made gifts of money to Mary's parents, while his wife was a divorced person who came into the picture.

The assertion that Mary is 21 instead of 16 as she maintains, was made more definite when it was announced that school records on file at the board of education revealed that Mary was brought to the United States in 1910 at the age of six.

"I don't believe the records, if they say Mary is 21," said Mr. Browning, while Mary added, "I was one year old when I came here. I don't believe any records exist which made me six years old."

Mr. Browning, incensed at the 'gossip' concerning Mary and by Mr. Coler's announcement, defended his foster daughter and the adoption vigorously.

"I would rather starve to death than go through what I am going through now. With all these lies," Mary said with tears in her eyes.

Both Mr. Browning and Mary admitted that a "souvenir," had been given her parents in the form of two checks for $500 each to be expended for the cure of Mary's sister, Mildred, who is now in a sanitarium in Denver, Colo., suffering from tuberculosis.

It seems that her sister enjoys a large income from his $60 to $80 apartment house was false. Mary said, asserting that the place is heavily mortgaged and that on more than one occasion the family went without food.

Today Mr. Browning revealed that he had arranged with Lloyds for an increase policy of $100,000 to be paid to Mary in two years when she will be in a position to his reckoning. Mr. Browning said he had received hundreds of letters congratulating him on his action in adopting her as a companion for his other foster daughter, Dorothy Sunshine, nine years old.

TWO WOMEN TO ATTEMPT SWIM THE ENGLISH CHANNEL TODAY

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A combined attack upon the turbulent waters of the English channel will be made tomorrow night when woman champions from North and South America, Gertrude Ederle of New York and Lillian Harrison of Buenos Aires, start stroking from Cape Gris-Nez for the English shore at Dover. The two swimmers will enter the water at 10:30 o'clock.

Today Miss Ederle, who has been training in the channel waters for longer than a month, took a final workout accompanied by Miss Janner, member of the English swimming team at the 1924 Olympic games in Paris, and those who watched the two women slipping through the water off Gris-Nez were amazed at the American girl's speed and stamina.

Miss Harrison's fourth attempt to swim the channel has added interest to Miss Ederle's swim.

Russell Scott Has Escaped the Gallows

Verdict of Insanity Returned by Jury After Deliberating Three Hours and Forty Minutes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Russell Scott today won his last fight to escape the gallows, when a jury in the court of Superior Judge Joseph B. David found him insane.

He will be committed at once to a state hospital.

The jury reached its verdict after deliberating three hours and forty minutes. Its fist ballot was reported to have been seven to five for insanity and thereafter the vote gradually swung to the insanity verdict.

Scott immediately was committed to the Chester Asylum for the insane.

The jury took seven ballots.

When the verdict was read Scott's mouth twitched nervously and he shifted his position in the chair.

Mrs. Catherine Scott, the young wife of the prisoner, leaned forward in an attitude of prayer after the verdict was read. Scott's mother, at his side, wept and embraced Scott's wife while Thomas Scott, his aged and crippled father, received the verdict without show of emotion.

Scott, while going to the asylum as insane, still faces death on the gallows should he ever be found to have regained his sanity.

URGE RETURN TO POSTAL RATES IN FORCE IN 1919

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(A. P.)—A return to the postal rates obtaining July 1, 1919, with a minimum charge on each piece, was urged today before the special joint sub-committee of congress, by Arthur J. Baldwin, president of the National Publishers Association. He characterized the new rates as a "tax on advertising," and asserted it was absurd to use the post-office department's fact finding report as a basis for computing rates.

He contended that club and association magazines, entered as second class matter, should be required to pay the same rates as other periodicals. Mr. Baldwin declared under the present practice obscene matter enjoyed a cheaper rate than such class matter.

Charges that the postoffice dept. is violating at least the spirit of the law by granting privileges of mailing at re-entry points to big periodicals, were made by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, a member of the committee, the practice nullified the zoning system, he asserted.

Elisha Hanson, counsel for the American Newspapers Association, submitted a report listing services, the cost of which, he said, "cannot under any proper theory of accounting be equitably assessed against the paying senders of the mail."

The services and assessments mentioned were: rural free delivery, $87,000,000; star routes, $42,500,000; 2nd class mail, $6,372,000; favored publications, $15,000,000; free mail for blind, $25,000,000; foreign mails, $7,000,000; special services, $22,000,000.

Senator Walker to be Tammany Candidate

Selected by Executive Committee to Run Against Mayor Hylan in Coming Primaries in New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(A. P.)—The Democratic opposition to Mayor Hylan as candidate for re-election became an open revolt today when the executive committee of Tammany Hall and the Democratic county committee of the Bronx chose State Senator James J. Walker to fight the mayor in the primaries.

At the same time John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, said that it was "reasonably certain" that he, Maurice E. Connolly, of Queens, and David S. Rendt, of Richmond, will name Mr. Hylan for mayor on Monday.

Borough leaders of the Republican party also met today but adjourned until Monday, when they will name their city and count tickets.

CABINET OFFICERS TO VISIT SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 6—(A. P.)—Attorney General Sargent will confer here tomorrow with President Coolidge. The conference will be in line with the executive's plan to have cabinet officers come to Swampscott from time to time during the summer to discuss departmental matters, and it was said today Mr. Sargent's visit was without significance and that there was no particular situation which the president desired to discuss with him.

It is likely, however, that with a tie-up of anthracite mines on September 1 threatened, Mr. Coolidge will take advantage of the opportunity to go over that situation with the attorney general with the view of receiving advice as to what government action if any, should be taken.

Thus far there has been no indication that the president will take a hand in the anthracite wage controversy and it is understood that he has not yet determined on a policy to be pursued.

Mr. Coolidge late today had as a visitor Representative W. E. Hull of Illinois, a member of the American delegation to the pan-American conference on highways which will be held in the fall in Buenos Aires. 44 INDICTMENTS FOR THE "RUM TRUST," CHELSEA, MASS

Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley and 43 Others Are Charged With Conspiracy to Violate the Prohibition Law—One Police Inspector, Two Police Sergeants and Several Patrolmen Are Among the Men Indicted by Federal Grand Jury.

BOSTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley, of Chelsea, and 43 others were indicted by the federal grand jury today on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. The object of the conspiracy, the indictments state, was "to encourage the illegal sale, manufacture, transportation and importing of intoxicating liquor."

The indictments resulted from grand jury investigation of an alleged "rum trust" in Chelsea.

The mayor's brother, Thomas Quigley, a police inspector, Police Lieutenant John M. Bartley and Police Sergeants Walter A. Barden and Edward W. Isbister, as well as several patrolmen, are among others indicted. Included in the list are eight members of the Chelsea "bootleggers union" so-called. All but three are residents of Chelsea, the exceptions being August Santini, New York, Edwina Forschner, Medford, and Michael Kinsley, Everett.

The grand jury investigation was prompted by complaints of citizens and by statements made by Daniel J. Murphy, of Chelsea, who made charges against Mayor Quigley and others when arraigned before the United States commissioner in connection with a liquor case. U. S. Attorney Harold P. Williams, appointed Elihu D. Stone as assistant with the investigation. It was said today that Stone had received several threats while the work was in progress.

Witnesses called before the grand jury said that sea-going vessels have been docked at Chelsea and immediate liquor cargoes under police protection while liquor was carried through the streets under police guard. It was charged that the police raided independent dealers and turned over the spoil to the "ring."

Plants for manufacturing liquor were protected, witnesses said, and barrooms and night clubs were encouraged, in order to create a market for liquor. It was said that weekly payments were made to several "bagmen" who spent their time collecting money for the officials granting protection to liquor dealers.

The manufacturers, transporters wholesalers, retailers, importers, bootleggers and alleged protective agents were thoroughly organized in separate groups under the general machine Prices, wholesale and retail, quantity and quality of the liquors were fixed by the ring.

COURT DECISION ON THE CONN. COMPENSATION ACT

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Workmen who go from Connecticut to any other state in the country on a job; and workmen who come to Connecticut from any place in the United States; are financially protected in case of injury as are their kin if fatal accidents occur, under a definite interpretation of the jurisdictional and extra-territorial features of the Connecticut workmen's compensation act made by the supreme court of Connecticut in a decision written by Chief Justice Wheeler and filed in superior court here. The clarification of jurisdictional powers, heretofore confused, is made in the case of the claim filed by Genoeffa Pettiti, Bridgeport, against the Employers Liability Assurance corporation, Hartford, for the death of her husband who died as the result of a fall down a flight of stairs in a parochial school building erected in Webster, Mass., by the T. J. Pardy company, Bridgeport.

To clear existing doubt and establish a definite rule for all future cases, the supreme court was moved to overrule a contradictory opinion handed down in 1918. Such procedure is not usual.

EXPLORERS HAD FIGHT WITH HERD OF WALRUS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A fight with a herd of walrus was described by Commander MacMillan of the MacMillan Arctic expedition in a message received tonight by the National Geographic society.

The message, dated today and relayed by A. A. Collins of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, related that "in a walrus hunt yesterday, three members of the Peary crew, in Bowdoin boat, were attacked by an infuriated herd of at least 100 walrus." The kyack of one of the Eskimos aiding in the hunt was capsized, but he was rescued.

The explorer also reported:

"Weather still unsettled, with visibility poor and a heavily overcast sky. Thermometer plus 48.

"Engine trouble in one plane and we are putting in a new one.

"Endurance test today. NA-2 and NA-3 plan to fly across Smith Sound and on to the center of Ellesmere Land today to select a site for first relay station."

NAVY DESIRES AIR BASE AT FAR ROCKAWAY, L. I.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Robinson announced today that the navy department would make application at once to the mayor and the commissioners of the sinking fund of New York city for cession or a long time lease of all or a part of the property now occupied by the navy as an air base at Far Rockaway, Long Island.

"This action is imperative," Mr. Robinson said, "because of the refusal of the sinking fund commission of the city of New York to cede this site to the navy, the use of which was granted as a war-time emergency measure. Unless the city of New York reverses this decision and gives to the navy the use of this site at Far Rockaway for an extended period of years, a vital link in the defense plans is smashed."

NEGOTIATIONS ON BELGIAN DEBT TO BEGIN MONDAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The refunding of Belgium's $480,000,000,000 war debt to the United States will be taken up formally Monday by the American and Belgian debt commissions.

Almost simultaneously with the fixing today of the date for these negotiations, information reached American government officials that France purposed to send a debt commission here next month. It is also expected to resume negotiations in the near future.

Agreements with these three countries would see the funding of approximately ten billions of dollars of the total unfunded foreign debt of slightly more than twelve billions of dollars, a result which would be highly gratifying to American government officials.

Preliminary to the meeting with the Belgian commission, which arrived here tonight, the American commission held its first formal meeting today since last December. It had before it a rather comprehensive statement regarding Belgium's ability to pay, but pending submission of detailed statements by the Belgian commission, the Americans kept an open mind on this subject.

While the negotiations probably will proceed for several days before either side is prepared to discuss terms, it seems fairly certain now that Belgium is going to be given a more liberal basis for settlement than that agreed to by Great Britain several years ago.

Capacity to pay will be the yard stick by which the agreements with the debtor nations will be measured, and admittedly financial conditions in the several countries vary. Members of congress also recognized, at the time the British settlement was approved, that the United States probably would not make as good terms with any of the other nations.

PARADES OF STRIKERS STOPPED BY POLICE CHIEF

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 6—Orders issued Thursday by Chief of Police Allan McArthur forbid the former operatives of the American Thread Company from holding parades on the public streets of the city. The action was taken in the best interests of maintaining law and order and was brought about at this time by another clash between paraders and state police on lower Main street Monday night, during a parade. The officer was manhandled by some of the paraders. While the strikers were holding a mass meeting in the Strand Theatre building, Thursday morning, Chief McArthur called there and met Miss Amy L. Hooker, president of the Willimantic Textile Council, who is in charge here, and explained that future parades were forbidden. The edict made known, it was subjected to considerable criticism during the meeting and the strikers' committee was authorized to confer further with Chief McArthur. Those in conference at police headquarters were Miss Amy L. Hooker, Mrs. Loretta Oatley, Miss Teevens, James Casey, John Lutton and James E. Curran. The committee entered a protest against the ruling and claimed that most of the blame for the trouble between paraders and state officers should be shouldered by the latter. The strikers stated that the officers stationed in lower village were discriminating between them, giving preference to the so-called, strike-breakers now employed at the plant. They charged that many in their ranks had been insulted, but that the law did not follow its regular course in these cases. Charges of shameful conduct on the part of some of the new employees at the plant, residing in lower village, were made also.

Chief McArthur stated that the recent introduction of evening parades had made the situation acute and that the trouble Monday brought the matter to a head. Complaints had been numerous against the practice of parading and as the peace and tranquility of the community was endangered, the edict against parades was deemed necessary. It was agreed that the strikers could continue peaceful picketing near the mills, on condition that traffic on the sidewalk or the street be not interfered with. In the morning the strikers and picketers can walk in pairs to their meeting place, but afternoon or evening parades must be omitted. According to Section 19 of the city charter, the power of granting the privilege to parade is vested in the common council. The Section reads in part: "The common council has the power to regulate all parades and processions, public assemblies and music on the public streets." This power, however, has practically decayed from disuse. As far as known it has never been resorted to by the city fathers in local history.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 6—Two men who gave their names respectively as John Johnson and Prince Albert Lester, both of Montville, Conn., were arrested by two state police officers late Thursday afternoon, on the South Windham road, near Ladd's station. Johnson was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. Prince Albert Lester belied his name and was found in a drunken stupor. The men occupied a Ford touring car. They were taken to police headquarters to be locked up awaiting trial Friday morning. When the men heard the charge preferred against them they were both ready to swear that they had not had a drink in ten years, but the officers felt the conviction of undeniable evidence and the iron bars clanged solidly into place.

MYSTIC

The anual picnic of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held on Wednesday at the old Packer homestead, now owned by Mrs. Carl Cutler, a granddaughter. The house has been put in a first class condition and while improvements have been added care has been taken not to change the original design. The old wide oak board floors upstairs are polished and shining and the rooms are furnished in genuine antiques and many rare heirlooms are in the furnishings down stairs.

Three tables were set on the lawn and held sandwiches, boiled ham and corned beef, salads, pickles, relishes, cake, pie and coffee. Before sitting down all joined in singing the doxology. After the lunch it began to rain, so everything was carried into the house. At 2.30 the regent, Mrs. Alida Hill introduced Miss Mary C. Holmes, who gave a talk for three quarters of an hour on Near East relief work that she has helped carry on in that section of devastation. Miss Holmes painted the starvation and suffering of the children in such a manner that every one present was deeply moved. To hear it from one on the field is far different from merely reading about conditions. The way the children are taught to do for themselves and assist is marvelous.

After the talk Percy Such of New York played the 'cello, accompanied by Miss Edith Dudley, who was with Miss Holmes. The society was invited to the home of Mrs. Richard Mansfield, New London, today (Friday), when Miss Holmes and Mrs. Mansfield will give a talk. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

It is understood here that the route to be designated between Providence and Hartford as a United Stated highway is the route that runs through Danielson and Willimantic and that it was selected because it is the most direct route between the Rhode Island and the Connecticut capitals. This means that this stretch of 75 miles of highway will be equipped with markers to be supplied by the federal government, as will be done through the nation in marking 50,000 miles of United States highway.

Lowering weather did not seriously decrease the attendance, Thursday, at East Killingly's Old Home day. Of the many that went up into the beautiful highlands of the town there was a heavy percentage from Danielson. Cool weather made the day extra enjoyable. All the reunion features of other years were re-enacted and the program was carried out as arranged.

Approximately 6,000 fingerling trout were released Thursday by members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club. These fish went to six brooks—Fall, Blackwell's, Mashentuck, Baker, Mashamoquet and Brickyard. It is anticipated that the club will receive as many as 4,000 more cans of trout during the present releasing season. The brooks are in such prime condition to receive trout just now that better results are looked for from this year's re-stocking activities than ever before.

Registrars of the town of Killingly are meeting in the different districts today (Friday) to perfect the caucus rolls for use the coming fall. Of interest is the fact that many voters never have had their names entered on the caucus lists, so are ineligible to participate in any republican or democratic caucus. Various reasons are offered to explain this. One is that numbers have no interest in naming candidates for office. Another is that some voters do not care to be identified with any party organization, preferring to retain their status as independent voters.

Bids for the construction of the stretch of 5,971 feet of re-inforced concrete highway between Morin avenue and the bridge at Elmville were as follows: J. Arborio, New Haven, $35,748; J. A. Generoux, Southbridge, Mass. $39,815.40; C. A. Haggerty, Webster, Mass., $40,121.75; Lane Construction company, Meriden, $43,986.50; Immick company, Meriden, $45,176.25; A. Mascetti, Torrington, $46,850.75; Waterbury Concrete Construction company, $51,143.25. The concrete is to be 8-inch surfacing.

Killingly boys who have been at Camp Woodstock during the season, now closed, have had a delightful time. They have been greatly benefited by the outdoor life and the well balanced program of sports, recreations, instruction and general training mentors. The camp is made possible through the joint activities of the Y organizations in Windham, Tolland and Hartford counties.

Mrs. Sarah Moran, 78, died early Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Cook. She had been in feeble health for a long time. Mrs. Morin, a native of England, had lived in Brooklyn and in Danielson for many years. She was the widow of Patrick Moran, who died 13 years ago. She leaves four sons, Patrick, Edward John and James and two daughters, Mrs. Mary Cook of Danielson and Mrs. Byron Martin of New Bedford.

What amounts a county outing for men, women and children is the plan of those who are arranging for the Windham county legislative outing, to be held at Rocky Point next Thursday. It is intended to be the greatest get-together in years of Windham county folks and the more that go, the greater will be the pleasure of the committee and all the legislators. It will be a booster day for Windham county, an opportunity for a splendid outing and a chance for all to meet, as a body the members of the legislature from Windham county towns and senatorial districts.

Associated with Senator Urgele LaFrance, of the town of Plainfield, in arranging for the big affair are Representative Charles D. Salisbury, Representative Napoleon J. Fournier and Former Representative W. Franklin Sheldon. Mr. Sheldon said Thursday that arrangements have been made for banners and varrious other emblems that will be used on the day and may be preserved as souvenirs.

The entire county is being invited—that is the point that is being stressed. The party is to meet at Moosup next Thursday afternoon at one o'cock, standard time and proceed from there to Rockyt Point. "If you miss being there, you miss having a grand time," say the promoters of the project.

St. Joseph's parish, Dayville, Rev. TWO GIFTED MISSION PRIESTS ORDAINED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 6—Two missionaries of the Order of LaSallette, who have served at St. James' parish in Danielson recently, observed the silver anniversary of their ordination. They are Rev. Henry Galvin, M. S., and Rev. Auguste Chapignac, M. S. Their brothers religious from far and near assembled to congratulate the jubilarians and wish them many more fruitful years for the greater glory of God.

Father Galvin was born in a little village almost within the shadow of the Mountain of LaSallette, in France—Saint Laurent Beaumont. At the age of twelve he entered the Apostolic school of LaSallette and eventually, in 1892, came to Hartford to continue his novitiate and, later, his philosophical and theological studies. July 7, 1900, at Hartford, he was ordained to the priesthood by the late Bishop Tierney. Since then he had done valuable work in Danielson, Stanstead, P. Q., Fitchburg and Holyoke. For the past ten years he has been the zealous pastor of the church of Our Lady of Sorrows, in Hartford. He has just witnessed a crowning achievement of his pastoral labors in the construction and dedication of a beautiful parish church.

Father Chapignac's services at St. James' parish in Danielson is more recent than that of Father Galvin—having closed about three years ago. Father Chapignac is a native of Tournon, France. He entered the Apostolic school of LaSallette at the age of eleven, making his preparatory studies and novitiate there. Father Chapignac came Hartford October 1. He was ordained July 7, 1900, by Bishop Tierney. For three years shortly after his ordination, he was professor of Latin and Greek at LaSallette college, Hartford. In 1907 he was called to Rome to be confessor and interpreter for the American students in the Roman college of the order. For thirteen years he remained in the Eternal city, returning to the United States in 1920. He was assigned to St. James', at Danielson for a period and then returned to his professorship at LaSallette college, where he is at present located.

PUTNAM

Putnam's apportionment of the Fresh Air children, that are sent to the country every summer from New York, will reach here Monday, August 17, for a two weeks' stay.

The following committee has been selected: Putnam,—Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, chairman; Thompson, Mrs. Frank Decker; Woodstock, Miss Leila Holt; Pomfret, Miss Katherine Noyes; secretary-Treasurer, Miss Gertrude Perry, Putnam.

The committee will give any desired information concerning the plans of the Fresh Air Fund. They are asking all who are willing to take care of a child for two weeks to communicate with the committee member from their town. Or if that is not practical, all who can are being asked to give $4.00 for a week's board for a child or $8.00 for the two weeks.

The country itself is a novelty to the children, the relief from the heat of their city homes is a treat, and much is being done for them in providing an abundance of good food; what they need most is sunshine and fresh air and an opportunity to run and play free from the confinements of their narrow streets.

S. Kaminsky with his family has moved into the house on Pleasant and Fremont streets which he recently purchased from Louis A. Wolfe.

Picture postcards have been received from George P. Miner, who is on the trip with other Knights Templar to the Pacific coast. He is one of the delegation that left New Haven July 22, and they will return on the same Pullmans in which they started, although they have not occupied them all of the time. From Vancouver to Seattle, where the Triennial Conclave was held, they travelled by steamer but their train was waiting for them at Seattle. They will be home about August 22.

Ensign W. J. F. Rafferty of the U. S. S. Utah, stationed at Boston, is spending a week with his parents here. He has almost recovered from the injury to his foot sustained eight months ago and which has kept him from active duty during that time. For a greater part of it he was compelled to use crutches in walking. He still walks with a limp but will soon be able to resume regular duty as an officer of one of the navy's finest cruisers.

J. F. Lucey and family, who have occupied the Harrison home at Pomfret for the past three years, have moved to New Milford, Conn.

Carpenters, painters and decorators have been at work for the past three months remodeling and enlarging the residence of the late Mrs. Jerome Douty, Grove and Ring streets. It is the property of Mrs. Harry H. Houghton and Dr. and Mrs. Houghton will occupy it as soon as the renovations are completed.

Mrs. John J. Whitehead, who has been spending several weeks in Pomfret, will leave Monday on a visit to Asheville, N. C. She expects to return to Pomfret in September.

James F. Donohue is making repairs and improvements on the large tenement building on Providence street which he recently purchased.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thayer, of Fremont street and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Fisher of Apponaug, R. I., started Thursday morning by automobile for West Point. Allen Thayer, son of Mr. Chas. Thayer, is a cadet at Uncle Sam's big military academy on the Hudson. This will be the first one in more than thirteen months that he has seen his parents as the cadetse are not allowed to leave the Academy during their first year's training. Mr. Fisher was formerly assistant superintendent of the Putnam Manufacturing Company. They have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thayer for the past week and the trip to West Point was made in their car. They went by way of Hartford and through Union and Tolland counties and over the High ridge at Poughkeepsie, planning on reaching their destination shortly after noon.

Chautauqua is in Putnam for its annual seven day engagement. The program this summer has been an exceptionally fine one and has attracted large audiences both afternoon and evening. Although rain has fallen nearly every day, it has not prevented any of the performances from being given.

The cotton spinning plant of Pawdreil and Alexander is closed for two weeks. It is owned by the Paco Manufacturing Co. of Danielson and the mill there is closed for a like period. The firm makes an annual practice of closing for the first two weeks in August.

Pierre H. Myers is to move into the house on Grove street, now occupied by Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Hodgkin, who will vacate it as soon as their new home is in readiness.

PAY OWNER A QUARTER. PICK BERRIES ALL DAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 6—On a road that runs alongside a farm within a mile of the city limits, from fifty to one hundred automobiles have been parked nearly every day for the past three weeks. Their occupants are blueberry pickers and they come mostly from Providence, although Putnam furnishes a fair proportion. The owner of the farm makes a charge of "twenty-five cents a load" which entitles the payer to spend the entire day, if he or she wishes, in picking berries. The crop is said to be the largest for many years and the berries are unusually large and sound. The owner of the place is well satisfied with the "quarters" and the berry-pickers have been more than satisfied.

SIDEWALK REPAIR LIMIT IS SET AT SEPTEMBER

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 6—At the August meeting of the City Council, the City Clerk was authorized to call to the attention of the citizens who have as yet neglected to act, that if their sidewalks are not in proper condition by September the city will have the work done and the bill will be sent to the property owner. This written message will be of the nature of a notification which has been sent previously, but which has not been generally acted upon.

A motion was passed by the council authorizing the carrying out of the recommendation of the street lighting committee that four lights be placed on the new bridge to be constructed.

The recommendation that fire alarm boxes be placed at the lower end of South Main street, where there is a distance of approximately one-half mile to the nearest box and on Woodstock avenue, were laid on the table.

According to the police report there were eleven arrests during July for the following causes: Drunkenness, 6; assault, 1; breach of the peace, 1; violation of the motor laws, 1; accident, 1. In entering of the cases, 1 was committed to jail; 4 were fined, 1 on the rate of the profession of other cases were continued; 2 defendants were bound over; 1 was given a suspended sentence and 1 was sent to Norwich State Hospital. Fines and costs to the amount of $41.12 were paid.

The following applied for building permits and the applications were referred to the highway committee with power to act: Wilfred Maher for a gasoline station; Joseph Muir for a bungalow and Henry Lamoureux for a two room building on Church street.

A representative of the Elmer Automobile Company appeared before the council in regard to the purchase of a Ford automobile for the use of the police department. The matter was laid on the table.

A LANDLUBBER ABOARD THE "BOWDOIN"

"There is no place on board a small schooner bound for the Arctic for a landlubber," writes Maynard Owen Williams, a representative of the National Geographic Society, from the "Bowdoin", flagship of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition. "With Liberty Engines on the deck, steel barrels of gasoline lashed to the rail and boxes of gasoline and oil making a false floor which brings a man's head at the exact height of a swinging boom, a landsman must get over being a landlubber at the first possible moment.

"The minute we got outside Monhegan, Commander MacMillan said, 'Williams take the wheel. Keep her on 120 degrees,' and immediately turned and left the 'Bowdoin' to me. Both he and Mate Robinson do all they can to explain everything but don't talk technical language in order to appear imposing. I found out for instance that a 'sheet' is not a sail, as I thought but a rope which serves to hold a boom down toward the point where it can bat a man on the ear.

"Our watch is midnight to six and noon to six. Dick (Salmon) interrupted my dreams (if any) with a large hand in the small of my back and one of the first annoyances was that there are little pantalettes inside a suit of oilskins and sticky rubber boots don't slide into the trousers as easily as a landsman would like. I did everything but put my hand on the galley stove. Playing stork and tugging at reluctant garments that have become fast friends is not easy in a rough sea even if that sea is what a seaman calls 'moderate'.

"When I went on deck we were in a fairly thick fog. Under the red and green lights the pretty curve of rews reached up to the prow above which the jib was furled into a spiraly mass with the rope meandering along its back like the Potomac in its most undecided mood. In the sea there were phosphorescent flashes and the black water purled into a creamy mass under her prow.

"We eat very well. Pickles and hard-tack on deck seem to appeal to the seasick ones, who, on the table below, would have to face fish chowder, a huge tray of lobsters and many other things including mince pie for which one is ill prepared when his world is adrift and won't settle down.

"A passenger on a big steamer thinks he has his sea legs when he can walk down a twenty-foot promenade deck without becoming a Laplander. But the landlubber in oilskins has a different task. The rail on the 'Bowdoin' is just the height of the decoration of my golf stockings. There are halyards and sheets, dory tackle and all sorts of other lines which coil their serpentines around where one least expects them. The flukes on the anchors are as eager to grab a foot as they are to seize on a footing or a holding or whatever it is they grab in the bed of the sea. To add to the confusion there are all the casks and cases of gasoline and the three huge cases of Liberty motors. A landlubber must get over lubbering soon or else become a liability or a corpse.

"Aft we have a layaret which is a storage space behind the captain's cabin. This room is shared with the mate.

"From Captain MacMillan's room one enters the engine room with its 60-horsepower Fairbanks-Morse semi-Diesel oil engine and its various generators for electric light and radio equipment.

"The hold has become a radio room and its fore quarters are occupied by a dark room and an electric ice box. Spoiled meat has not only cost every other Arctic explorer dear but has deprived the men of something fresh. Our bushel of cucumbers are crisp as the phrase they gave birth to.

"The pantry, galley and forecastle are all together though some lady visitors did install some cretonne curtains which have gone the way of all beauty. A cretonne curtain is no support to a man who rolls out of a top bunk in a hurry, I know.

"So this is our little boat. She's a beauty and every seaman envies us our place in her. The crew is wonderfully fine. All in all it's a place for a man even if he starts as a landlubber. He may never return a first class seaman but if he can't learn to hold her helm steady when a huge sail with a forty-foot baseball bat tied to it is trying to Babe Ruth a few heads he is better off the boat than on it.

"There is no question of the ability of Commander MacMillan. Seamen and explorers testify to that. But the safety of the whole ship may depend at times on whether a landlubber can steer, raise or lower sail or pick a tiny light out of a deep fog on a horizonless sea. This is no training cruise for midshipmen. By force of circumstance the man of the sea, who knows its moods, must trust to landlubbers at times. All hands will be on deck when the need arises and MacMillan and Robinson are able men. But sooner or later the landlubber has to face it. So perhaps it is not as surprising as it seems to me that with fair weather and a smooth sea, our captain left out the A. B. C. theory and handed the wheel to a landlubber on his first water with a 'Take the wheel! Keep her on 120 degrees.'"

FRANCE AND THE DEBT

Negotiations are more to the mind of Joseph Caillaux, the French finance minister, just now than a trip to America to sign the terms of a settlement of the French war debt. He has several propositions to offer and he would like to find out in advance whether they will be entertained by the America debt-funding commission. It should not be difficult for him to learn what general lines of settlement will be acceptable in America. They can be found in the terms under which the British war debt is being paid, and if he feels that there are modifications to be made in the case of France he can refer to the announced policy of the American commission.

America is not to be a grinding creditor, but French "capacity to pay" will be taken into consideration.

If it is the suggestion of a moratorium that he wishes to advance the answer to that is evident. America wants to be as fair as possible, but is convinced that annual payments however small, should begin at once. France has already delayed settlement for six years. The cost of this has been heavy, for each year interest at five per cent. has been compounded. With the passing of each year the impatience of the American taxpayer who is paying the carrying charges on this debt has grown. A definite policy has been agreed upon under which France is asked to pay if she can and as much as she can.

To French ears these sound like harsh words. France has found that she can get along no further without a settlement with America. If the franc is to be saved, if the French financial structure is not to go the way of Germany's, help must come from America. This help will come only through a debt settlement. These also sound like harsh words in French ears, but France must now settle her American account in order to regain her liberty in foreign policy, as premier Painleve put it.

America has not been a harsh creditor and there is no indication now of a change in attitude. If Caillaux is willing to lay his cards on the table the matter can be adjusted.

COURT CONGESTION

For each 100 cases started in federal courts in 1914 the average now has risen to 263. The disposal of business is also larger in volume, but not enough to make judicial congestion a diminishing rather than a growing problem. Yet the number of judges is about one-third more than in 1914. Considered from almost any angle, the fact stands out that there has been an enormous growth in litigation, and while some courts succeed in keeping their dockets from becoming unduly congested, many are not able to do so. Nor is the fault generally in procrastination among judges. It is simply that the available machinery, as it is now used, is overtaxed.

That practically all the increase in cases is due to proceedings brought under prohibition regulations is believed by persons both for and against the barring of liquor. In some courts evidence along that line is strong. The accumulation had become so great in the federal court at New York city recently that to reduce the docket to a more nearly old-time normal size, a bargain scale of fines with the understanding that prison sentences would not be added to minor cases, was decided upon. Bootleggers, who were willing to acknowledge guilt and take advantage of such lenity, responded so readily that the court disposed of 425 cases at one session, and altogether more than 1,000 appeared for hearing.

The blame for the growth of legal proceedings cannot be placed on federal prohibition alone. The habit of public regulation has spread so amazingly in many directions that more court appeals have been a logical outcome. Then another factor has included in court congestion—an increasing practice on the part of many lawyers to utilize technicalities to prolong ligitation.

The approach to a solution must, if it is to be effective, be from many sides. A simplification of legal procedure, a better division of work among courts, in different jurisdictions, perhaps shorter court vacations—these, among other proposals, have commended themselves to many. That is on the assumption that ligitation will not speedily become less prevalent. The latter trend, if it could be established by bringing about a decrease in law violations, would, of course, be most commendable. In civil suits that effort is being made through the establishment of business arbitration. But the criminal aspects of life do not lend themselves to such a plan.

TWO YEARS OF COOLIDGE

Two years ago Calvin Coolidge became president by his right to succeed the fallen leader of the nation. Since then he has demonstrated his right to succeed himself and assume the leadership of the republican party. At the same time he has won the country and congress over to a drastic program of federal economy and tax reduction plan. Under his touch the nation has rapidly recovered from its wartime spree of public extravagence.

In two years he has made a political party out of the republican organization changing it from a befuddled and harrassed political mass to a disciplined and fighting force. The party house-cleaning at Cleveland in June, 1924, was a Coolidge house-cleaning. When a republican hangs up his hat in the party household now, he can feel at home. The republican party has become a political party instead of a political post office address.

The Calvin Coolidge of today is a more positive Coolidge than the man who came down to the White House two years ago from Plymouth. On March 4, he was freed from any further obligation to the pledges and policies of his predecessor. As President in his own right he is able to press farther and harder towards the realization of his own policies and of those carried on from his predecessor.

He gave his party what it needed above all else—leadership. He is giving the nation an economy program that it wanted and needed and which has strengthened the President's hands with every passing day. His conservatism fits the present mood of America. This quiet, undramatic, well-nigh colorless New Englander has won to a popularity that baffles the professional "explainers" and confounds and mystifies his critics. He may be silent, but the "Broadways" and the "Main Streets" alike understand him.

THE LEOPARD'S SPOTS

Senator Copeland of New York proposes that the democratic party shall reorganize into a "constructive party," abandon "its present field of opposition," and labor "particularly to prevent further centralization of power in Washington."

Similar proposals have been made many times, but the trouble is that they do not go very far. The principal reason is that the democratic party in congress is largely under the leadership of men whose strong point is bitter and picturesque criticism and and not fervent loyalty to some constructive policy. In the senate itself, the pompous Heflin carries more influence that the wise and experienced Underwood. Two exceedingly vocal Arkansans, Joseph Taylor Robinson and T. H. Carraway, can eclipse Copeland, and the Honorable Pat Harrison can, will and does not bury constructive policies under a foam of words.

To change its course, the national democratic party must change its representation in Washington. How to accomplish this without a lot of high grade political funerals is difficult to say for it is hard to detach the incumbents from their vigorous hold on political life.

INCREASING MOTOR-CAR SAFETY

Figures just made public by the federal department of commerce regarding motor-car fatalities indicate that some progress is being made toward what might be called safety per car.

In fifty-seven American cities, totalling a population of almost 27,000,000, the fatalities from motor-cars in 1913 were 4,857; in 1924, they were 4,992; up to July 18 this year they were 2,511. At the present pace the fatality will be approximately 4,750 for 1925. The apparent decrease for this year would be far from striking if only the number of fatalities were taken into consideration, but it is to be remembered that the number of automobiles in use in the United States is increasing constantly. Herein lies the pleasing indication that there has been a considerable advance in the direction of safety per car. The rate of fatalities numbered by the total number of cars in use is going down sharply.

It must be conceeded, therefore, that the campaign for automobile safety is bearing fruit. The forces allied in efforts to increase safety should be encouraged to put forth still greater efforts to follow up the marked reduction of fatalities per car by a marked reduction in the total number of fatalities.

This undoubtedly will come about when those cities which are most indifferent in the matter are stirred out of their sloth, as they will be and try to rise higher in the scale of "safety cities." In 1924 the fatalities per 100,000 of population were 15.9 for all fifty-seven of the cities tabulated. Many cities depart enormously from the average. Philadelphia, for example, had a motor-car fatality rate for last year of only 13.5 per 100,000 of population, but Camden just across the river from Philadelphia, had a rate in fatalities of 28.5 per 100,000 of population.

The methods for obtaining safety are improving and the use of these methods one may now confidently hope, soon will become universal.

GRATEFUL GUESTS

"Lo!" said the blase and handsome young man of 18 who had been surveying with great dislike the scene of youth and jollity from the sunroom door. "Wuyu happen to be dragged into the party?"

"Lo," echoed the pale and interesting ditto, proffering a cigarette case. "Awful things they have up the dressing room—domestic make! Take one of these! I have them shipped over from Lunnon. Why, the mater blew in just as I was heading out and said I'd gotta come because I had accepted. Seemed to think it made a difference, and it doesn't pay to quarrel with a lady. I'm going to dig out right after supper unless the eats ain't any account and then I'll vanish beforehand. Going down to dance at the Pink Cat—don't wanta dance here!"

"Lots of girls plastered against the wall," said the blase and handsome young man, peering into the room where the party was in progress.

"Not enough men," the pale and interesting one explained. "Ten of 'em are playing poker upstairs and have locked the door so they won't be interrupted. Awful nerve for people to try and give a party at home—no pep to it and now do they expect folks to stick it out?"

"Pretty good jazz band," admitted the first young man. "Still, only five pieces. No use economizing if you're doing a thing. I won't shake a hoof unless there's a real orchestra to carry me along. Cleone's mother wanted to introduce me to a lot of strange dames but I melted out when she had her head turned the other way. Awful mistake to get hung up with a flock of duds. First time that happened to me I had to dance with six of 'em, one right after the other and, man, it was a bitter experience!"

The other young man shuddered and nodded sympathically. "I know" he said. "Best thing to do when the invitation comes in is to decline firmly right off the bat!"

"It's safer," advised the first young man, "to decline and then come anyhow if you want to than to accept and then stay away. Causes less trouble, if any. They can't say anything, can they, if you appear? I must always do that, and, anyhow, they oughta be thankful to get us! What would their parties be if we didn't come, I'd like to be told?"

"And what do they do for us? Expect us to prance about with a lot of dumb Doras.

"Cleone is nice enough, but I'm not crazy about her, and blessed if she's going to edge in on any of my affairs just because my name is on her invitation list!"

"I guess I've done by bit by coming," the pale and interesting young man announced indignantly. "Lots rather be down at the Pink Cat. Orchestra isn't any bigger than this one but somehow it's different. Different atmosphere. Rather neat girl over there the one in silver and white."

"Too fat," pronounced his friend after a critical survey. "She must weigh at least a hundred. I expect she eats. No interest in keeping herself attractive! That is Classy Quips over there, daughter of the cutlery king—wanta to meeter?"

"H'm," temporized the interesting young man. "Up to date and all that—but I guess I know plenty now. Always bothering me ringing up and asking me places. Gives me a headache thinking up excuses in a hurry."

"Write out twenty and keep a typewritten list next the phone," said his friend. "My word, they're bringing in the eats and do I see chicken salad again?"

"Oh," moaned the other, "let's get out quick. Nope, dangerous to say goodby—girl's mothers always ask why and hope you haven't been taken ill! Slide out this way. C'mon, we'll lope down to the Pink Cat—this is a particularly petrified party!"

"Boy, you're right," agreed his friend. "Why, nobody seems to do anything to liven it up! C'mon!"—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Great Astronomer.

No one would have thought Johann Kepler had any opportunity to become great. His mother had been wild and violent, and in her old age was put in prison and threatened with torture for being a witch. His father, a wandering soldier and tavern keeper, had deserted her years before. Their son Johann, had been attacked by smallpox and left weak eyed and sickly.

Too sick to work in the fields, the boy began to study. He won his way to the University of Tubingen, and studied for the ministry. Needing money, he accepted a position as teacher of astronomy, though he had slight interest in the subject. The necessity of money was his opportunity.

He practiced astrology, the so-caleid reading of the stars, and at first believed in it. Soon by his careful observation he saw that the stars move according to certain laws. He learned that the planets move about the sun in ellipses, and he learned their rate of movement and their distances from one another and from the sun. Then he announced the great laws, known as "Kepler's Laws," the foundations of all modern astronomy.

Religious persecution drove him to Prague, in Bohemia; he lost his children and then his wife; great people failed to pay him, but he continued to study. He used the newly invented logarithms and eagerly followed the courses of the stars.

Best of all, when he learned that his 70-year-old mother had been put in prison he gave up all his work and toiled without rest until he had brought about her freedom. That devotion to his mother is much a part of his greatness as is his study of the harmony of the stars and his establishment of the great laws of motion.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Nelson T. Johnson, who has been chosen to succeed John A. McMurray as chief of the Bureau of Eastern Affairs in the State Department at Washington, is one of the youngest men ever appointed to such a responsible post in the federal service. Born in Washington less than thirty years ago, Mr. Nelson attended private schools in the capital and then went abroad to complete his studies. Having decided upon a career in the diplomatic service, he spent several years in Paris and in Switzerland, perfecting himself in foreign languages, literature and politics. After finishing his education he went to Peking and has remained in the Far East almost continually since. He is said to be one of the most accomplished scholars of the languages and institutions of China and the neighboring countries now in the service of the state department.

Stories That Recall Others

Three Good Reasons.

A doctor who had taken up as his specialty the treatment of skin diseases was asked by a friend how he happened to select that particular branch of medicine.

"There were three perfectly good reasons," replied the physician. "My patients never get me out of bed at night; they never die, and they never get well."

If He Lived.

Two Irishmen were engaged in a dispute in a cemetery one day.

"Well," said one, "I don't like this cemetery at all, at all."

"Well," said the other, "I think it is a fine cemetery."

"No," said No. 1, "I don't like it at all, at all, and I'll never be buried in it as long as I live."

"What an unreasonable ould fool ye are, to be sure," said the other, losing his temper. "Why, man alive, it is a fine cemetery and if my life is spared, sure I'll be buried in it."

New Zealand eats more raisins per capita, than any other country, according to a statement issued by a raisin growers' organization at Fresno, Cal. Residents of New Zealand average 4.46 pounds of raisins and 1.20 pounds of currants every year. England eats 1.35 pounds of raisins and 2.77 pounds of currants to each person annually. England's large consumption of currants is attributed to their wide use in sweet breads, cakes and puddings. In the United States the per capita consumption of raisins is 2.96 pounds and that of currants only .34 of a pound.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

NEW ALASKAN NAMES ADOPTED

The decisions announced by the United States Geographic Board after its last meeting of the summer include the adoption for use on all Government maps the last ten names bestowed by Dr. Robert F. Griggs, leader of the National Georgraphic society's Alaskan Expeditions on natural feature explored and surveyed in the Katmai National Monument Region.

These names which have already appeared on the maps published by the National Geographic Society but which now are to appear for the first time on Government maps of Alaska are:

Lake Grosvenor, Lake Brooks, Lake Coville, Fulton's Falls, Mount LaGorce, Hagelbarger's Pass, Bay of Islands, Martin Creek, Brooks Falls, Mt. Martin.

Lake Grosvenor and Lake Coville, named for Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, the reader of the National Geographic Society and for Dr. Frederick V. Coville, chairman of the Society's research committee respectively, lie to the northeast of the Katmai Monument.

Lake Grosvenor is 28 miles long and has been described by surveyors as the most beautiful body of water in this part of the Alaska peninsula. It is shut in on all sides by high, forest-clad mountains, but may be reached by an easy portage of a mile and a half from the Bay of Islands or by ascending Savonoski River, which flows into Iliuk Arm.

Lake Coville is also surrounded by mountains which rise to 3,000 feet. It is connected with Lake Grosvenor by a short, swift stream.

Mount LaGorce, named in honor of John Oliver LaGorce, vice president of the National Geographic society, is an imposing peak rising to a height of 3,315 feet just within the limits of the Katmai National Monument, and overlooking Iliuk Arm to the south, Bay of Islands to the north and Lake Grosvenor to the east.

Bay of Islands is an arm of Naknek Lake lying to the north of the Katmai National Monument. It is a beautiful body of water studded with more than 100 forest-clad granite islets.

Lake Brooks lies to the south of Naknek Lake and is separated from the latter by a high mountain. It drains into Naknek by a short, swift river which tumbles over a ledge about seven feet high forming Brooks Falls. It was at this fall that members of one of The Society's expeditions observed the salmon leaping upstream over the ledge at the rate of 1,200 an hour. It was estimated that a million fish were breeding above the falls. Both the lake and the falls are named in honor of the late Dr. Alfred H. Brooks, Chief Alaskan Geologist of the U. S. Geological Survey, and a pioneer in Alaska exploration.

Fulton Falls, which occur on a tributary of Katmai River, have been so named in recognition of the work of Bentley B. Fulton, entomologist of the Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oregon, Mr. Fulton, formerly a student under Dr. Robert F. Griggs, leader of the Katmai expeditions, did especially valuable work during the season of 1918.

Hagelbargers Pass was found by Paul R. Hagelbarger, who was a member of the 1917, 1918 and 1919 expeditions. In 1919 Dr. Griggs detailed him to try to find a feasible route from Geographic Harbor (the natural haven for future visitors) to the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes. He and one companion not only found the pass which now bears his name (at an elevation of 1,000 feet), but with William H. Heming surveyed all of the peninsula lying between Geographic Harbor and Kinak Bay. It is hoped that some day an automobile highway will go over this pass, opening up the natural marvels of this region to the outside world.

Martin Creek and Mount Martin (a conspicuous volcano near the southwest corner of the Monument) were named by Dr. Griggs in honor of George C. Martin, who led the National Geographic Society's first expedition to the Katmai Region shortly after the cataclysmic eruption of Katmai Volcano in June, 1912.

He was using those big green lily pads as a sort of bridge.

Ashore at Last

This saying is both true and terse. Though things be bad, they might be worse.

—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Not all the huffing and all the puffing and all the blowing in the world by the Merry Little Breezes could get Danny Meadow Mouse and his raft, which you know was a piece of old board, any nearer to the shore. There were too many big green lily-pads in the way. So at last the Merry Little Breezes had to give up huffing and puffing and blowing.

"We are so sorry," cried the Merry Little Breezes to Danny Meadow Mouse. "We thought we could blow you way to shore. We didn't remember about these big green lily-pads We are so sorry."

"Never mind," cried Danny. "It really doesn't matter at all, and I am ever and ever so much obliged to you for blowing me over here. It was ever so good of you. And now I'll show you why you needn't worry because you couldn't blow me way to the shore."

Danny ran along to the end of the old board and jumped to the nearest big green lily-pad and away he went, run, jump, jump, run, from one big green lily-pad to another big green lily-pad. He was using those big green lily-pads as sort of a bridge.

At last he reached a big green lily-pad which did not have another one near enough for him to jump to Danny simply plunged in and swam. When he reached the next big green lily-pad he climbed out on it, and once more began running and jumping. And so at last Danny made one final jump, and there he was safe on shore.

The Merry Little Breezes had followed him all the way, and now they gathered around him to tell him how glad they were that at last he was on shore again safe and sound.

"Now," cried one of the Merry Little Breezes, "we hope you will go right straight home, Danny Meadow Mouse, and never again be so foolish."

Danny looked a little puzzled. "I don't know just where home is. But I guess I will be able to find it," said he.

And then it came to one of the Merry Little Breezes that they had blown Danny Meadow Mouse ashore on the wrong side of the Smiling Pool. His home, the home where he had left Nanny Meadow Mouse, was on the other side of the Smiling Pool. How those Merry Little Breezes did wish that they needn't tell Danny Meadow Mouse. But they had to, of course. There was nothing else for them to do.

Such a funny look as there was on Danny's face. Then he grinned. "Never mind," said he. "It is a whole lot better to be on the wrong side of the Smiling Pool than to be on the right side of it in the stomach of Longlegs the Heron, or Snapper the Snapping Turtle, or that big fish. I guess I'll find some way of getting back across the Smiling Pool, or across the Laughing Brook.

When the Merry Little Breezes saw that Danny really didn't feel so badly they felt a great deal better about it themselves, and they once more began to dance. One after another they rumpled up the hair of Danny Meadow Mouse, and then bidding him goodby they danced away to see what more good they could do in the Great World. As for Danny, the very first thing he did was to go look for something to eat. He really didn't seem to be a bit all worried because he was on the wrong side of the Smiling Pool.

The meeting also authorized the borrowing of $50,000 by the city in anticipation of the bond issue, this money to be used for the purpose of taking up options, etc., in order to get the reservoir project underway as soon as possible. It is hoped to have part of the new project well underway by fall.

PROBLEM OF CHILDHOOD DISCUSSED AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 6—Much interest was shown in the excellent program in homemaking that was offered today, in connection with Farmer's week, and the results obtained so far this week have been more than gratifying according to M. E. Sprague, dean of women at the State college. Demonstration talks on meat cunning, the use of sewing machine attachments, measuring the health of runabout children, and a lecture on how to tell pure foods, and giving a child the right start were the high lights of today's session.

Miss Harriet Lock, director of the Visiting Nurse association of Hartford discussed the subject, "Giving a Child the Right Start." She discussed her topic from a pre-natal standpoint, stating that if a child is to get the proper start this period must be carefully considered. Mothers of today are realizing this more and more, she said, and through the work of the health stations, pre-natal clinics, doctors and visiting nurses, much good work is being accomplished.

Feeding, bathing, sleeping and weighing are all important consederations in giving a child the right start, according to Miss Lock. She advocated keeping the baby under the doctor's care, nursing by its mother to give it a fair start in life, and feeding by the clock instead of when the baby cries.

In a demonstration talk on "How To Use the Sewing Machine Attachments", Miss Anna G. Glynn of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., showed how to use the many attachments, most of which the average housewife does not understand.

In the "Conference Hour for Young Mothers," Miss Lizbeth Macdonald and Mrs. M. E. Dakin, both of the college extension service, discussed the problems of childhood. These included feeding, habit-forming, number of hours of sleep a child should have, amount of sleep necessary, kind of clothing to provide, exercise required, care of babies food, and babies room.

"Safety in the Home," was discussed by Mrs. Owen Humphreys, assistant chairman of the National Council of Safty Education. The slogan "Safety First" is not the big thing htese days, according to Mrs. Humphreys, but rather education along the lines that will eliminate the dangers of accidents. She said that every child should be taught to swim, citing the many drownings of the past year as sufficient reason why this should be required, if boys must have guns, they should be taught how to use them properly, she said.

Miss Lindham, nationally known canning expert of the Boston Woven Hose and Rubber Co., of Boston, held the interest of her listeners with a demnstration talk on the canning of meat, in which she discussed the best methods and practices in this work. LARGE CROWD AT FLAG RAISING IN GREENEVILLE

In the presence of over 200 children, city officials and parents of the children of the Greeneville playground, the dedication of the new 35 foot flag pole, and the official raising of the American flag, presented to the playground by the Daughters of Veterans, took place Thursday evening at the Greeneville playground.

The affair was one worthy of mention in as much as it marked the raising of the first flag of any of the nine playgrounds in the city, coming after tireless work by Edward Sullivan, director of the playground, assisted by Celine Bowen, instructor at the playground. The movement to have a large flag-pole and standard at the Greeneville playground was started some weeks ago and the citizens and merchants of Greeneville backed the idea with their money, resulting in the purchasing of a beautiful 35-foot flag-pole, mounted with a golden ball, which was set at the north west end of the playground, close to the main street, where it will be most prominent and conspicuous.

The program Thursday evening in connection with the flag raising began with a parade about the playground by over 200 children of the Greeneville section. Many of the children were in costume and the parade was most effective and unique.

This was followed by a delightful musical program by Swahn's band, which as usual was greatly enjoyed by the large audience assembled for the occasion. A large band stand had been erected just back of the flag-pole affording seats for members of the band, speakers of the evening and officials of the playground commission, including Mayor Milo R. Waters, representing the city of Norwich; Miss Florence Hoffman, representing the Daughters of Veterans; Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, who delivered the address of the evening, Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, Mrs. Elizabeth Drew, William J. Fitzgerald, and Jonathan L. Johnson, representing the playground commission and Edward Sullivan, representing the Greeneville playground.

Following the selections by Swahn's band a patriotic playlet, The Glorious Wish, was given by a group of children from the playground, the parts being taken in a most clever manner and winning applause from an appreciative audience. Children taking part were Dorothy McClafferty, as Betsy Ross; Dorothy Kelly and Anne Connelly, as Colonial maids; Arthur Green, John Crow and Catherine Kelly, as Colonial youths. The members of the cast had been coached by Miss Celine Bowen and Miss Catherine Dodd, who also received congratulations at the success of the play.

The speaking program was opened by William A. Fitzgerald, chairman of the playground commission, who explained the work of the commission and stated that there are now nine playground centers in the city, each having 200 children and that another playground had been asked for by 200 children in another section of the city.

He then introduced Mayor Milo R. Waters who paid a tribute to the people of Greeneville, saying that they were always ready to get back of every plan for civic betterment and that this flag raising stood not only as a symbol of their patriotic spirit, but as the spirit of true Americanism throughout the country.

Miss Florence Hoffman, patriotic instructress of the Daughters of Veterans, briefly described the meaning of the American flag and stated that it was the purpose of the Daughters of Veterans to spread patriotism throughout the country. Thus, she said, it is with great pleasure that I have the honor to present this flag of our country, to the Greeneville playground, on behalf of the Daughters of Veterans.

The flag was received by Edward Sullivan, on behalf of the Greeneville playground, and he expressed his appreciation, and that of the children, of the gift of the flag by the Daughters of Veterans, also expressing his appreciation of the spirit shown by residents and merchants of Greeneville, whose liberal support made it possible to purchase the beautiful flag pole, from which the colors of America are to float each day while the playground is open.

The flag was then turned over to Harry Richmond, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and George Gladue, representing the Combat train, and the colors were slowly raised to the breeze, while the audience stood at attention to the playing of The Star Spangled Banner.

The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, who chose for his subject, Our Flag and What It Means. This is not an idle ceremony, said Rev. Mr. Ricketts, it stands for something as deep as humanity, for this is not a flag of self but a flag for everybody.

Why this flag? We have the flag because we live in a society and this represents an outward showing of the things we are striving to perpetuate Flags have stood for these things for many years. When we look up at that flag we are able to see what the United States stands for and there is no need for us to add our personal opinions.

Let us trace the history of the flag. Julius Caesar raised his standard 200 years ago, the standard of the Roman Empire, and wherever it was seen it stood for conquest. In the middle ages there were three flags; the pentant which carried by the knight, the banner which was carried by the king or a member of royalty and the standard which was carried by the nobility.

In America from 1620 to 1776 there were many flags, each colony had its own flag. The basis for the United States flag was taken from that carried by Israel Putnam, carried at Lexington and Concord, and this was the flag of Connecticut which gave the message, "He that brought us over here will sustain us."

Today we are recognized as one great country standing for liberty, equality and fraternity and our flag means all this.

On January 2, 1777, under the Washington Elm in Cambridge, the flag was raised bearing thirteen stripes and the Cross of St. Andrew's. On June 14, 1777, the red, white and blue was seen and in 1808 the thirteen stripes were recognized and our flag has grown until it now numbers 48 stars, one for each state.

Its colors mean something, too—the red standing for valor and courage, a thing every American should possess, being ready to fight for America if attacked by those who would destroy that which our forefathers handed down into our keeping. The white stands for purity and no nation can live without it, for it is only as the boys and girls grow physically, mentally and morally, that a nation may succeed. The blue stands for fidelity, no secret diplomacy, but meaning that our word is as good as our bond.

Let us hope our flag continues to be big, big enough to shelter all peoples, regardless of race or creed or color. Let it ever stand for Brotherhood, which, in the providence of God, shall live from sea to shining sea.

The program of the evening closed with the singing of America and several numbers by Swahn's band, after which the flag was lowered while everyone stood at attention.

URGES AUDIENCE TO GET BEHIND CLUB WORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 6—The third day of Farmer's Week at the Connecticut Agricultural College saw a crowd of over 500 in attendance for the sectional meetings in animal husbandry, dairying, homemaking and rural religious work. Connecticut Feed Dealers closed their two day session this afternoon, and in today's meetings they took part in the dairy and livestock program.

Characterizing the boys and girls as the greatest crop on the farm, George L. Farley, state club leader in Massachusetts, in an address last night, made a stirring appeal to his farmers week audience to get behind and support club work in Connecticut.

"Club work shows every child that he or she has the opportunity to be of real service and do something worthwhile, regardless of where they may be, was the assertion of Mr. Farley in explaining the benefits of this activity. He illustrated his point with numerous examples of boys and girls who have achieved real success in situations where apparently no opportunities existed. There was the boy in Provincetown, Mass., on the tip of Cape Cod, he said, who joined the bread club because in the garden club he felt that the natural conditions of his community were unfavorable to garden work. How he became an excellent bread maker, even better than the girls of his community, was interestingly told by Mr. Farley, who said that the boy became county bread champion his first year in the club, then state champion his second year, winning over every girl in the state. Realizing that the large summer colony in his neighborhood would provide a desirable market, this boy began in a modest way to sell his bread, and in time worked up a business large enough to pay all his high school expenses. The same year that this boy was state bread champion, a girl in western Massachusetts was awarded the honor of being the state pig champion, all of which made Mr. Farley wonder if the world was not becoming "topsy-turvy."

Speaking of club work for girls, Mr. Farley asserted that it was a crime to let any girl grow up and not learn to cook and sew. Deep down in the heart of every normal girl is the hope that sometime she will become a wife and mother, and have a home of her own, he said, and in order to make a real home, a girl must be able to cook and sew.

Even though every boy enrolled in club work would not become a farmer, which in itself is a good thing, said Mr. Farley, he believed that every boy should have some experience growing things, because he would then be in a position to better understand just what the framer is up against.

That the young people learn true sportsmanship through their club work was also brought out by Mr. Farley. He spoke of the fault-finding adults, who gather at the fairs after the judges have placed the ribbons, to criticize the awards. This was never seen in the boy and girl club members, he said they accept the judges decision in a spirit of true sportsmanship and make up their minds that they will come back the following year and make a better showing.

The economic production and utilization of feeds was stressed in the program offered to the dairy and livestock men of the state today. Speakers of national reputation on the program were E. W. Sheets, chief of the division of animal industry, U. S. department of agriculture; Philip R. Park, president of the Park and Pollard Feed company, of Buffalo; and B. L. Hartwell, director of the Rhode Island state agricultural experimental station.

Discussing "The Why of Better Sires," E. W. Sheets presented a convincing argument for the elimination of scrub bulls that made a deep impression on his audience. "There have been varelous advances made in the United States towards better farm animals and better livestock production," said Mr. Sheets, "and livestock occupy the keystone position in our agriculture, with their products supplying much of the brain and brawn of our daily existence. If our livestock breeders and feeders, during the next quarter of a century, can continue the advancement which they have made during the last twenty-five years, and will make the most of their opportunities, then the effect will be far-reaching.

"An analysis of census figures shows that states that are high in purebred bulls are also high in average milk production per cow," remarked Mr. Sheets, "and during the time between 1900 and 1920, purchased beef cattle sold at auction averaged three times the price per head received for native steers on the Chicago market.

"Your state of Connecticut ranks fourteenth in the honor roll of states in the better sires campaign, with 3852 animals and more than 10,000 poultry listed," was the remark of Mr. Sheets in speaking of the results obtained in this state in introducing better sires. "Qualification for enrollment in this campaign is that the owner must use purebred sires only in his breeding operations—his female animals may or may not be purebreds. Once Connecticut breeders are familiar with the preponderance of evidence in favor of the purebred sire, I believe the passing of a few years will see the elimination of the scrub and inferior sire from Connecticut for all time.

"Experiences in Feeding" was the subject developed by Philip R. Park, in which he told of the results obtained in the experimental feeding laboratories of the Park and Pollard company of Buffalo. That yeast, which has been extensively advertised of late as an excellent supplement in the poultry ration, was of little value was the contention of Mr. Park, who based his remarks on results obtained in their laboratories. He recommended fish meal over tankage as a feeding stuff, once more basing his recommendation on results of experimental work at Buffalo.

EASTERN POWER TEAM WINS CLOSE GAME FROM MADDEN'S YOUNGSTERS

The Eastern Connecticut Power team won their fourth straight game in the Twilight League, Thursday evening when they emerged victors over the Nuggets in a close and exciting contest 3 to 1.

The Power nine went into the game strong favorites to win, but were extended to the limit in order to win the decision.

Tommy Simcox started on the mound for the E. C. P. and pitched all but the last inning, when Dickson relieved him. In winning his fifth game of the season, Simcox held the Nuggets to six hits, and one run, and fanned three. Dickson made good use of his speed in the dusk of the final frame and retired the side in one-two-three order. Leo Jarvis twirled for the losers and altho he lost, pitched fine ball. He limited the hard-hitting Power batsmen to eight hits, and his slow socks proved especially hard to connect with in the pinches.

The E. C. P. started off in the first inning scoring one run, after two were out. Clabby singled to right and Stanley to left in quick succession, and when Ringland drove a long double into the swamp, Clabby scored. Sheffler ended the frame with a sharp liner to Lemieux.

The Nuggets came back strong in the next stanza and tied up the game. Lloyd Jarvis, leading off, was safe on Ringland's error and when Lesseman sacrificed went down to second. Calkins then singled to left, and Jarvis went to third. Calkins started to steal second, and was caught Sheffiot to Davis, but Jarvis taking advantage of the throw scored before Davis returned to the plate.

Both teams had chances to score in the next two innings but did not have the necessary punch to push a run across. The Nuggets best chance came in the fifth. Burke led off with a double to right. Guillette shot an infield hit to Whitney, but Burke was caught off second, and was tagged in a run-up, Whitney to Davis to Ringland. Guillette took second on an infield out but was stranded when Benjamin grounded to the pitcher.

The Power nine's best chance to score prior to their rally in the fifth came in the third but a quick double-play turned them back without a tally. Whitney opened with a single to left. Davis then bunted to Jarvis, and when the latter threw wild over first, Davis was safe and Whitney took second. Clabby then raised a high fly back of second which fell safe and the bases were filled. Chick Stanley attempted the squeeze play, popped to Leo Jarvis who threw to third, doubling Whitney. Ringland then fanned for the third out.

In their half of the 5th inning, the E. C. P. bunched three hits and scored the one run necessary to win. After Barry had fanned pinch-hitting for Simcox, Whitney got his second hit, a sharp two-bagger to right field. Davis flied out to centerfield, but Clabby came through with a long double into the swamp in right field and Whitney scored. Clabby then tried to score on Chick Stanley's single to right but was caught on Calkins perfect throw to the plate. The score:

Tonight's Game.

It was predicted in this morning's paper that those who missed last night's game between the Nuggets and the E. C. P. would receive the disappointment of their lives, and all those that weren't there to see the E. C. P. nose out ahead of the Nuggets in the last inning by a two to one score have no one to blame but themselves. It was by far the fastest game of the season being played in exactly fifty minutes. Not only was it fast and well played but was also the cleanest game seen on the Duwell field, not a bit of crabbing being done by either team. While the E. C. P. won not a bit of the credit should be taken from acting-manager Charlie Risley and his Nuggets as they played sensational ball behind Leo Jarvis who outpitched the opposing pitchers and if it hadn't been for a tough break in the last inning when with two out Clabby of the E. C. P. hit a long hit into the swamp which Calkins of Nuggets practically had after a sensational run only to stumble over a stone it would have ended in a one to one tie. While Calkins didn't get the ball he deserves due credit as he made a try that no other fielder ever made on the Duwell field, and if he hadn't stumbled would have pulled down the most sensational play ever seen in these parts. It really was too bad that the weather had to be so threatening to cause such a small crowd to turn out as the game furnished a thrill every minute, keeping what fans that were present on edge at all times and finally sent them home satisfied that they had seen a game worth watching even in the heaviest of rains.

Spring St. Stars Win

Thursday afternoon the Spring St. Stars defeated the Elizabeth St. playground midgets, 15-9. It was the first defeat for the midgets in four games. Rankin hurled a neat game for the losers, his slow ball proving very deceptive. Failure to cut off runner at the plate and Cooper's smoke-ball were the main causes of the downfall of the midgets. Midget teams from the playgrounds desirous of playing the West Siders will meet with strong opposition from the four star pitching staff of Reardon, Siegal, Rankin and Fogarty.

TRUMPET UNDER THE WIRE FIRST IN $25,000 AMERICAN TROTTING DERBY

AURORA, Ills., Aug. 6—(AP)—Trumpet, a bay gelding by Ytawah-Mary Tipton, owned and driven by Tommy Murphy of Syracuse, N. Y., won the $25,000 American trotting derby here this afternoon, taking two out of the three heats, the first in 2:03 2-5 and the third in 2:03 2-5, breaking his former race record of 2:04 1-4 by a fraction of a second.

Hollywood Jessie, a bay mare by Bel-Win-Hollywood, driven by Walter Cox of Goshen, N. Y., took second money. After finishing seventh in the first heat Cox came back and won the second from Murphy, his foremost rival in the harness horse world, in 2:04. Murphy was not to be stopped, however, and sent Trumpet out in the third and deciding heat, beating Hollywood Jessie under the wire by a length in the fastest time of the race.

Murphy won $15,000 with Trumpet, and Cox, in addition to getting $4,000 for second place, won the third money of $2,000 with Thompson Dillon, driven by Fred Egan. There were seven moneys in the race, the lowest $500.

The derby was raced under the old scoring system, three heats to a race. It was one of the hardest fought trots in history, grand circuit officials said, every horse being under the whip in the stretch in each heat.

Today's races marked the close of the grand circuit meeting here. Secretary Clifford F. Trimble announced that the events on tomorrow's card had failed to fill.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Breed.

How will the fmutre judge of America in its present era of social dissolution which came as a reaction to the anxiety and agitation of the last war?

That is the question evoked by Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon in their latest First National drama, I Want My Man, which opens at the Breed theatre today.

Will they see it with the eyes of Sills in his role of Guilan Eyre—a man returning after eight years' seclusion in France, during which he has receiving cure from blindness incurred in the war?

To Sills it is a world up-ended, a world of flapper orgies, of tea-dancing matrons and reckless fathers. But beneath it all he sees there is that soundness of heritage that will emerge above the phase of pleasure-madness that prevails.

As Earl Hudson has produced it, I Want My Man is well acted, well directed and well told. It is a drama well worth seeing, with a story of weight and moment. The film was adapted from Struthers Burt's novel, The Interpreter's House.

The picture has been well cast. Phyllis Haven, May Allison and Paul Nicholson give excellent renditions as the victims of jazz mania. Kate Bruce and Theresa Maxwell Conover, as a pair of mothers, give contrasting portrayals of equal merit. Little Frankie Evans shows promise in a child role.

The story is that of a war nurse who gives up the husband she has married when he was believed incurably blind in the hope of winning him back on even terms with the girl to whom he was engaged before his war calamity. Cured, he returns to the home he has not seen for eight years—to find it on the verge of ruin through a new spirit of pleasure chasing. Into this home, her identity unknown, comes the former wife, and here the problem of the woman who has waited and the woman who gave him up for love is solved.

"Broke!"

Zelda Sears, author of "Broke!" with George MacFarlane, which comes to the Lyceum, New London, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 7th and 8th, with a popular matinee Saturday, signs her "occupation" when she votes as "farmer." Therefore farming is this lady's chosen vocation, while playwriting is only her avocation.

Quite frequently in the past four years, however, Miss Sears has put down her plow and abandoned her 150 acres at Wilton, Connecticut, to write a successful play. All of Miss Sears' writings, which include Mitzi's two recent successes, Lady Billy and The Magic Ring, also Peggy Wood in The Clinging Vine and Ada-May in Lollipop, were done in her spacious farmhouse. "Broke!" was not only written there, but its scenes also are laid near by, in a summer hotel in Connecticut.

Palace.

There is a perfect program of vaudeville and pictures at the Palace the last half of this week.

Judging from the amount of applause each act received at last night's performance when "Merchants' Nite" reigned supreme again, without a question of a doubt it was the best and greatest bill of the season.

The vaudeville opened with U. S. Thompson, a fast stepper that showed the audience something different in the line of dancing. His imitations were perfect and received every hand in the audience for his efforts.

Li Van & Alger followed with a new line of Hokum that just kept the audience gasping.

The "Seven Native Sons" took the house by storm. The Seven Red Men furnished a number of Red Hat foxtrots with their jazz band that could not be beat. As well as a good band, they are a set of clever entertainers.

Chas. Toblas single-handed, captured the audience the minute he walked on and held them for fifteen solid minutes. He has a sixty mile an hour line that is sure fire.

Ted Shaw & Sister closed the show with a very clever wire act, performing some very difficult stunts.

The feature picture is of the most entertaining, something out of the ordinary, starring "Rex." The title is "King of Wild Horses."

Broadway Theatre.

There is no question but that the B. F. Keith vaudeville and Paramount picture which opened for a three days' run at the Broadway theatre yesterday is by far the best seen in the city this summer.

Not a dull moment in the entire five fine acts. Here you'll see comedy, novelties, singing, dancing, music and anything else that goes to make up real entertainment. We advise you not to miss it.

Every person, young and old dreams of sudden riches and romance—and that's why "Eve's Secret," a Paramount picture co-starring Betty Compson and Jack Holt, which opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday, is going to prove one of the most entertaining productions of the current season.

OWLS PROVE USEFUL BY KILLING VERMIN

Naturally when a farmer catches an owl hanging round his poultry house or his barn he concludes that the invader is an enemy of mankind and should be annihilated. For this reason and because so many people are possessed of an inherent desire to capture or to kill any living thing which excites their curiosity it is exceedingly difficult to obtain protection for the owl. It can not be denied that, now and then, some owls feed upon young chickens, but even these culprits more than make up the loss of their depredations by the good they do in destroying large numbers of insects, rats and mice. One rat in its lifetime would consume grain enough to pay for several chickens. Barn owls sometimes known as monkey face owls and screech owls are especially beneficial to mankind. They destroy great numbers of injurious insects and rodents.

Owls cast up the indigestible parts of their food in the form of pellets. By examining these pellets scientists are able to judge the kind of food the birds have swallowed. Dr. A. K. Fisher found in 200 pellets cast up by a pair of American barn owls the skulls of 225 meadow mice, 179 house mice, twenty rats, twenty shrews and only one bird. In his examination of the stomach of the screech owls, he found that only one contained poultry. Of all the owls, and there are many species, the great horned owl seems to be the most destructive to poultry and yet it, too, earns its right to live by its attacks upon noxious mammals and insects. The owl is interesting as well as useful. The soft plumage, its noiseless flight, its night journeys, its look of wisdom, the direct, unshifting expression in its eyes surrounded by their discs of feathers, the reversible property of its outer toes and its odd hoot and whistles and harsh notes like laughter set it apart in the world of birds. In all ages and among all peoples the owl has been regarded as an object of superstition. Hiding away in deserted houses and in old ruins in his effort to escape the attacks of smaller birds, which take advantage of his daytime blindness and peck at his eyes and his head, he suggests the presence of haunts and ghosts in their walls. To the superstitious his hoot near a sick chamber is a portent of death. T omany the plaintive note in the screech owl's call has a cadence expressive of dreariness and desolation, but to those who know the true character of the owl and who respect his alertness in the dark, his helplessness in daylight, his marvelous instincts and his usefulness, his screech and his hoot are not unpleasant.

IRISH FREE STATE REDUCES BUDGET DEFICIT

In the fiscal year, which ended on March 31 last, the Irish Free State had a budget deficit of 532,000 pounds, as compared with a deficit at the close of the fiscal year of 7,225,000 pounds. In the current fiscal year to date, revenues have exceeded expenditures to was an extent that on May 23 there was a surplus of 2,044,000 pounds for the elapsed two months of this fiscal year. On that date the Free State had a debt of 13,438,853 pounds made up as follows:

Ways and means advances by public departments 1,719,000 pounds. Annuities under telegraph acts 202,944, Savings certificate 1,254,200, national loan 9,760,850, compensation stock 501,850.

According to advices received by the Bankers Trust Company, of New York from its British information service, President Cosgrave takes an optimistic view of the immediate future of the Free State. The recent remissions of taxation and the increases in the agricultural grant, he states, point to the solvency of the state, and given fair harvests for the next year or two, there is every prospect of prosperous times. Referring to the measures introduced for the improvement of live stock and agricultural products, he pointed out that Ireland's export trade in these commodities was being seriously menaced by Denmark, and consequently that it was necessary to grade up Irish produce to the highest quality.

During the next two or three years intensive propaganda is to be undertaken in the Free State to popularize the use of electricity, and as to the ease with which electrical installations may be made. There is a bill pending before the dail known as the Shannon electricity bill, which pledges the government to certain steps in connection with the development of electrical undertakings. In some sections it is feared that the scheme may not be profitable and may result in government deficits, which will have to be met by resorting to taxation. On the other hand, it is expected that the Shannon scheme will absorb a considerable number of the 40,000 men now unemployed.

Another government undertaking is a program to foster the beet sugar industry by giving subsidies to manufacturers. The first factory to be established will receive subsidies for ten years, from October, 1926. During the first five years when the polarization exceeds 98 degrees, the payments will be at the rate of 24s 6d a hundredweight, and for the last two years 22s. The payments would vary in the case of other degrees of polarization. No subsidy will be paid during the next three years unless the minister of agriculture is satisfied that the price paid to farmers for beet sugar is not less than 50s a ton for one year's contract, or 54s a ton where there is a three year's contract. The beets must have a sugar content of 15 1-2 per cent. If this is higher or lower the price paid will vary accordingly. The subsidy to be paid by the Irish Free States is higher than that paid by Great Britain, say on the average 23s a hundredweight, as against 15s 8d. The factory now being erected in the Free State will, it is expected, ultimately produce 15,000 tons of sugar per annum.

Another measure which is expected to promote the prosperity of the Free State is the expenditure by the land commission of 200,000 pounds, chiefly in the poorer areas. There is a sum of 100,000 pounds available for improvement of farmers' lands, and 25,000 pounds will be expended on drainage schemes. Money will also be spent as a result of housing grants.

NEW ENGLAND FISHERIES RICHEST IN UNITED STATES

The fish fauna off the New England coast is one of the richest and most varied in American waters, according to a survey by the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries of the Commerce Department. About 130 species have been recorded from this area and the host of commercial species includes representatives of the most important world fishes, such as the cod, haddock, hake, pollock and related species; the sea herring, mackerel, swordfish, halibut, flounders, salmon, etc. The outlying bank-fisheries extending to the northeast represent the most important fishing area in the Americas, on which fishing vessels from the United States, Canada, Newfoundland, France and Portugal scrape the bottom or set their baited trawls to fill their vessels with the riches found on these shore areas. American fishing vessels alone annually catch about 200,000,000 pounds of sea foods from this area.

The kinds of fishes, their size, range, habits, color, characters, the shape and character of the eggs and young, spawning seasons, etc., are matters of interest to many people. These and many other points about the fishes, are treated of in a 500-page bulletin just issued by the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries. Nearly every species is illustrated, in many cases including figures of eggs and young. Simple keys to species add to the usefulness of this elaborate work written by Dr. Henry Bigelow of the Museum of Comparative Zoology, Harvard University, and W. W. Welsh, late Scientific Assistant, U. S. Bureau of Fisheries. The subject matter is treated of in a way to be readily comprehensible and useful to the fisherman and layman, as well as to the scientist. The investigations which furnish much of the data were begun in the summer of 1912 and were continued, except for interruptions during war years, up to the time of preparation of the final report.

FERNS HURT BY INSECTS AND IMPROPER WATERING

Potted ferns do not seem to be always well treated in their environment of radiators and electric fans, judging from the numerous requests for information concerning them received by the United State department of agriculture. In answer to inquiries, the department says that improper watering is the foundation of most fern difficulties, especially such liberal watering as that which keeps the plant soaked, or such lack of water as permits the soil in the pot to become dry and hard. Fumes of burning gas, whether from a gas range or gas jets, are extremely injurious.

Great care should be taken not to overwater the fern when it is in a jardiniere, where the drainage is necessarily very poor. The time of year should be considered, too. In the spring and summer ferns will require three times the water necessary in autumn and winter. They should always be watered sparingly—just enough to keep the soil moist at all times.

It is well, also, occasionally to put them in the bathtub and wash them with weak soap suds made from a good grade of soap. The soap must be thoroughly rinsed off immediately. Great care must be exercised not to injure the fronds, as they are very tender. Mealy bug, a white woolly insect that works close to the bottom of the fronds, is one of the worst enemies of house ferns. If found, the plant should be examined every day and all insects removed by a splint or toothpick. If badly infested, all the top of the fern should be cut off within an inch of the ground and then thoroughly treated each day until all insects are exterminated, when a new top can be grown. Red spider is a minute sucking insect that thrives in a dry atmosphere. It can be kept in check by washing or by spraying the top with clear water. The aphis or green fly is also eradicated by washing.

Apply once in two to four weeks a dilute solution of nitrate of soda—one teaspoonful to a quart of water, very dilute ammonia water—two teaspoonfuls of household ammonia to a quart of water, or manure leachings as fertilizers.

NEW YORK SHARPS PREPARE 72 PAGES OF TIPS FOR NEW LONDON POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 6.—The set of rules and regulations prepared by Lieutenants Vincent Sweeney and Francis Putts, of the New York police department for adoption by the New London department, and which arrived in New London a day or two ago, is most exhaustive, comprising 72 pages of typewritten matter. The rules and regulations are compiled in three divisions— administration, police practice and police procedure. Whether the rules and regulations, either in part or entirety, will be put into operation in this city will not be decided for several weeks and not until after all members of the city council have studied the proposed set of ordinances.

A large number of sailors from submarines were in the city yesterday. They swarmed in the principal streets last evening and they made things lively wherever they gathered. Some half a dozen arrests for intoxication were made during the evening. The men arrested were arraigned in the police court today where they were fined. They were told that they could not come ashore here and disgrace themselves and the uniform they wore without paying the penalty. All but two of the bunch paid their fines, which were without costs attaching. The pair who were without funds went to jail. A couple of the gang taken into custody were not presented for prosecution.

Two strollers who represented that they were on the way to Boston to engage in railroad work were arrested for trespassing at the railway station. They were allowed to get out of town and promised that they would lose no time in following the suggestion of the court.

Nicholas Haddad, a storekeeper on Main street, was accused of having committed a breach of peace, in an attack upon Marie Synoda. The parties are Syrians. When Mr. Haddad was presented it turned out that he was not the person accused, but that Alexandrina Haddad, his wife had committed the alleged offense. The complaint against Mr. Haddad was nolled, and Mrs. Haddad was sought and found. She was represented by Attorney Lubschansky, who made a vigorous remonstrance against the method employed in the case. He said he was not ready to go on with the case and it was continued to Friday, Mrs. Haddad giving a bond for appearance then. No one sees to know just what the alleged breach of peace is, but it will be determined when the case comes up for a hearing tomorrow.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen anticipates the most enjoyable time the organization has ever had when the members feast on shore dinners and a clambake at Red Top, on the river, on the 6th of September. That will be the day preceding Labor's holiday, and preparations have been made for a very large attendance. Special trains will be run to accomodate members all along the line of the New Haven road.

Still another burglary was perpetrated this morning and the place visited by the crooks is in the same section of the city as were all of the other stores burglarized the past fortnight. The store entered this morning is that of Jacob Baschour, 133 Jefferson avenue. The plunder obtained consisted of about $18, which was taken from the cash register and an assortment of cigarettes of the approximate value of $35. Entrance to the place was gained by the crooks going to the rear of the store and removing a pane of glass from a door. After the glass had been taken out, the crooks used a skeleton key to unlock the door and give them free access to the store. With the plunder obtained, it is the belief that an automobile was used to cart the cartons of cigarettes away for they contend that anyone observed on the streets during the early morning hours carrying a bulky bundle would attract notice.

James A. May, candidate for state senator on the democratic ticket last fall who will make the race for the New London city council this fall. May is engaged in the business with his father, James R. May.

The starting gun has been made for the $5,000 drive for the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service in this city. The drive will continue until the evening of Aug 12. The New London bureau is one of six similar organizations in the state and is a branch of the original diocesan system of social service instituted by Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, Bishop of Hartford, by whom the Catholic social service movement was started in this country. He organized the first bureau in Bridgeport in 1916.

It is the plan of the drive committee to visit every Catholic home in this city, Groton and Waterford. The bureau has been supported by contributions from the church, the bishop, and by money raised by local organizations at public entertainments. This is the first time the Catholic men of the city have been asked to give aid in supporting the organization. The committee of team captains who will participate in the drive follows: Julian D. Moran, chairman; Rear Admiral Laurence A. Carr, U. S. N. (retired) secretary; Attorney F. L. McGuire, P. T. Quinn, M. R. Moran, T. M. Cook, Harry May, Dennis Devine, Jr., Paul A Curtin, Frank E. McCormick, Attorney Frank E. McGarry, Florence Sullivan, Harry J Kennedy and James A. May.

Miss Delia M. Maroney is county director of the bureau.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Freda Wallace, 38 Summer street, to be suspended. Mrs. Wallace was prosecuted recently in the police court on a charge of reckless driving as the result of the automobile she was operating colliding with a machine owned and operated by Henry B. Lee, 188 Blackhall street, corner of Montauk avenue and School street. Lee's car, a sedan, was damaged about $1,006, for the car was overturned.

City Manager William A. Holt has received complaint from residents of Franklin street because automobile owners permit their machines to be parked beside the curb the entire night. As a result of the complaint the police have been instructed to make a note of the registration of such cars as are parked all night on that thoroughfare. No arrests are likely to result from the parking of the machines because no ordinance exists restricting the parking there of the machines and provided the cars do not obstruct traffic or create an element of danger, the car owners are within their rights in keeping machines parked along the curb any or all part of the night.

Joseph Alfiero and Peter Grillo, both of Orchard street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital several weeks where they were treated for bad burns, were able to return to their respective homes today. Alfiero and Grillo, together with Philip Alfiero, went to the Thames Marine railways about six weeks ago and boarded a government launch for the purpose of stealing gasoline. In their movements to remove the gasoline from the tank and while smoking the gas fumes became ignited and caused the supply tank to explode, the flames setting fire to the boat and totally destroying the craft. Joseph Alfiero and Grillo were found on the boat terribly burned and were removed to the hospital, but not until several hours after the blaze occurred and only after the craft had been freed of water, was the body of Philip Alfiero found, being badly burned. Probably he was drowned following his being rendered unconscious by the explosion. Whether the authorities will prosecute Alfiero and Grillo for the part they played in the gasoline theft and destruction of the boat, has not been determined.

The Union Bank &Trust company, executors of the will of Edward T. Brown, has sold a house and lot on Crescent street to Rosa Tarnapolsky.

The funeral of George G. Cook, of 18 Hope street, a former employe of the D. E. Whiton Machine company, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 63 Washington street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The bearers were members of Pequot lodge of Odd Fellows and at Montville, where the committal took place, the service was conducted by officers of the lodge.

Mrs. Mary Lezenski, about 55, of 69 Douglass treet, died last night at Homie Memorial hospital, where she had been under treatment but a few days.

The body of John Foley, of Naugatuck, who had been employed as a laborer at Lyme some time and whose death occurred last night at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, was forwarded this morning to Naugatuck, in which city Mr. Foley's mother resides.

THREE TAXICAB DRIVERS AND TWO GIRLS UNDER ARREST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 6.—Two public service operators are under arrest tonight upon a serious charge and a third one may be apprehended before tomorrow morning; for the police late this afternoon claim to have discovered that the trio of taxicab operators provide their automobiles for purposes of immorality.

The public service operators taken into custody are Samuel Hoffs, 21 North Bank street, and Charles Parks Poquonoc Bridge. The specific charge against the pair is renting their automobiles for purposes of prostitution, lewdness and assignation. They are being held in bonds of $1,000 each and Hoffs furnished a surety on his bond in May Meyer, a North Bank street merchant, but Parks could not obtain a bondsman and was placed in a cell to await trial.

Also locked up on a charge of lascivious carriage are Ruth Purdy, Rochester, N. H., aged about 19, and Evelyn Page, of Sandwich, N. H., about 17. The girls, it is claimed, have made admissions which implicate the taxicab drivers as having rented their automobiles for the purposes alleged.

The two girls have been in New London several days and since they have been in this city they have been seen almost constantly in the company of sailors and almost invariably in public service machines. This forenoon, when the two girls were observed loitering on Golden street, near Bank street, with two bluejackets they were taken into custody, by Sergeant Nelson Smith. At the police station the girls at first denied all acts of misconduct with the sailors; but when it came to the question as to how they obtained a livelihood and means to supply themselves with lodging house accommodations, they finally admitted that they, it is claimed, are in the habit of entertaining sailors and in several instances in the automobiles of Hoffs, Parks and the third cab driver, who was being sought tonight and who had not been about the public stand, union station, for several days.

Hoffs and Parks deny emphatically the charge made against them, but Hoffs admits that sailors have hired his machine and that the two girls were with them. He claims that he simply transported the sailors from one place to another and under instructions from the sailor who hired him and paid him. He denies flatly that any act of immorality occurred in his machine. Parks, on the other hand, has refused to make a statement, and declares that he will not, until he is advised to do so by counsel.

Later: Shortly before 10 o'clock George Kenneth Clark, of Flanders, the third operator sought, was arrested at Flanders by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman William Corcoran. The officers went to Niantic in search of Clark, who, it was supposed, had been arrested by Constable Charles Tubbs. When the officers reached Niantic they ascertained that Tubbs had not located Clark. The officers then instituted a search for the accused and located him at the residence of his parents. He was brought to the New London police station and in default of a surety on his bond, was locked up to await trial tomorrow.

A more serious charge may be lodged against Clark and if such is the case it will be a federal charge. It is understood that Clark caused the two girls to become passengers on the New London line steamer Richard Peck recently and caused them to entertain sailors who were passengers bound from New London to New York.

IRISH: A LANGUAGE "REVIVAL"

"A news dispatch from Dublin stating that the Irish language has been made a compulsory subject in the Irish schools indicates a very ancient branch of the almost extinct Celtic family of languages will again take a place in international affairs," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Although written or printed Irish looks, at first glance, more like Greek or Hebraic, or some weird Eastern tongue, it occupies a philological position between the Italic and Teutonic groups of the Indo-European languages, a division known as the Celtic family. The Celtic family also includes Welsh, Breton, Scottish Gaelic, Manx and Cornish, the latter extinct, and Manx, the dialect spoken on the Isle of Man, reported fast dying.

"The Irish alphabet has only 18 letters, many of them similar to English characters. However, there is no J, K, Q, V, W, X, Y, nor Z. When a letter is sounded softly, with an aspiration or breath, a dot is placed over it. This dot represents an "H" following the letter. When a vowel is sounded long an accent mark is placed above it, similar in appearance to the acute accent in French.

"One of the peculiarities of the spoken language is that a consonant can be sounded only with a vowel, for by itself a consonant in Irish makes nothing but a whisper. 'H' is neither a vowel nor a consonant. It is a breath. 'A', 'O', and 'U' are called broad vowels. A broad vowel makes the consonant next to it broad. 'E' and 'I' are slender vowels and make the consonant next to them slender."

Preserving Blankets

Blankets, when they have been washed and thoroughly dried, should be well beaten. This has the effect of making the wool light and soft, and giving the blankets a new and [illegible] appearance.

AFTER MUSIC

I saw not they were strange, the ways I roam,
Until the music called, and called me thence,
And tears stirred in my heart as tears may come
To lonely children straying far from home,
Who know not how they wandered so nor whence.

If I might follow far and far away
Unto the country where these songs abide,
I think my soul would wake and find it day,
Would tell me who I am, and why I stray.—
Would tell me who I was before I died.

—Josephine Preston Peabody.

HIGHWAY SIGNS TO BE SEEN

(Written Specially For The Bulletin.)

I know the roads in my own neighborhood and what turns to take to reach my destination.

You know the roads of your neighborhood and how to get wherever you want to by them.

But you don't know mine. And I don't know yours. When I get into your country I don't know which road goes where and which goes elsewhere. When you come into my bishopric you're equally uncertain which fork to take.

We both have to be informed by signs, "finger-posts" as they call them in England, "sign-boards" as they are usually styled in the United States.

In the old days, when the ox-wagon or the horse and carriage were the common means of transportation or travel, this fact was clearly recognized. Sign-boards were set up at almost every corner where there was anything that might be called through traffic.

These sign-boards were devised and set up to meet the needs of existing travel. The stranger, driving along at a leisurely gait of anywhere from three to eight miles an hour, saw ahead of him, at the corner where a side-road branched off, a white-board say ten-inches by thirty, set up on a slender post some six or eight feet high, and bearing the name of the town or hamlet to which the side road led in two or three inch letters. If the stranger's eyesight was a bit dim he had but to pull over to the sign, halt, take out his glasses, adjust them carefully and spell out the inscription at his leisure. Just such signs still remain in use at hundreds of road corners or intersections.

They not only remain where our forefathers set them, but every year others like them are being set up along even state roads and cement highways. Their erectors seem to think that what was amply legible and manifest to people jogging along at eight miles or less must be equally evident and informative to automobilists whizzing by the same corners at thirty miles or more. Which isn't so.

The truth is that the auto driver, unless he is a rare expert at the wheel, has to give about all the attention he carries with him to the road and the traffic. He must look out for bumps and ruts in the paving, he must keep his car on its proper course, he must guard against over-passing the legalized speed, he must turn out for cars meeting him, he must heed signals of cars ahead which are liable at any minute to make either a right or a left turn, he must keep up a constant watch for cars coming out from side-streets or private driveways, he must see every child on either side within twenty feet of the roadway and be ready to dodge the small lad if he makes a sudden dash in front of the car, he must keep his eyes peeled for straying dogs and cats and chickens—while attending to these matters, is expected also to see every small road-side board in the corner of the fences so as to be sure not to pass the route he wants to take. Moreover, he must do all this at the rate of twenty or thirty miles an hour, if he doesn't expect to be deafened by the hootings and hankings of impatient cars behind him warning him either to get a move on or else get out of their way.

If you'll consider all this for a minute, you'll agree with me that the small-lettered, small-sized road-side finger boards which were amply sufficient as warnings or directions to our dads are not adequate to present needs.

What the auto driver in a strange country needs is signs so directly in his line of vision, so big-lettered and so clear that he simply can't help seeing them and grasping their full meaning at the first glance. He just can't see all or even a great part of the little signs set up often at the inner sides of sidewalks, just as far away from his track as the width of the highways permits. He needs them, flaunting themselves in staringly big letters right before his eyes.

"But it won't do to set up huge sign-posts square in the middle of the roads," you say. "They would not only be hindrances to travel but positive dangers." Agreed. Such a thing is manifestly out of the question.

Nor is it practicable to paint them on the surface of the roadways, for incessant traffic soon dulls and erases them. Even the double and treble painted danger marks which some states paint on the road surface when it approaches a grade crossing last but a short time. They are rapidly grimed over, dulled, wholly or partly worn away by the attrition of endless wheels.

If, then, we can't have proper signs ahead of us in the roads themselves or at the extreme sides where they are wholly out of the way, or on the carriage, where on earth shall we put them?

The answer seems to me quite simple. Don't put them "on earth" at all; put them up in the air.

They needn't be put up so high as to interfere with aeroplanes, nor so low as to scrape the tops of loads of hay going beneath them. But they can be suspended at a reasonable height over the very centers of roads in immediate and unescapable sight of every passer from either direction, and where they can be made of sufficient size to take lettering readable even by the half-blind.

Such signs would not be novelties. They are already in use in scores of places over trolley-tracks, conveying signals to motormen. They are used by canny advertisers over the streets in front of their stores. They are regularly called into service by political organizations during election campaigns.

Now there are more autoists than motormen; there are more than the patrons of any store; there are more than the "floating" voters of either party. Why shouldn't the device which is found desirable for the few be adopted in the service of the many?

Take a couple of near-by cases as illustrations of what I mean. We'll say that an autoist wants to go from Springfield, Mass., to Norwich, via Stafford Springs. He comes down from the Massachusetts city into Longmeadow, which is traversed by an exceptionally wide street. Traffic regulations require him to keep on the right hand side, while the road to Stafford leads off from the left. Yet the only clue given him is a small corner post bearing a small board, with "Stafford Springs" on it in sadly unobtrusive letters. And this is set at the extreme corner farthest away from the driver. It is confessedly visible—if one knows just where to look for it. But if the driver is a stranger, and doesn't know within a mile or so where he should make his turn, the chances are more than even that he will drive by it and fail to discover his mistake till he is set right by inquiry at some roadside gasoline station, half-way down to Hartford.

Take another illustration. The same traveler is trying to go from Hartford to Norwich by way of Colchester. Arrived in the latter town he tootles complacently along till he suddenly discovers that he is on Route 10? instead of Route 17. Whereupon he stops, makes inquiries, and then retraces his way to the Norwich turn. This again is marked—or was, the last time I traversed the road—by a small and far from conspicuous sign at the corner of the Norwich road and facing the same way the Hartford-Norwich autoist is going so that, even if he saw the small board he would see only its back.

In both these cases, and in scores and scores of others, the signs, while usually present, are either by size or position inadequate for their purpose. Yet in both cases, and in all others that have fallen under my observation, a sign hung, say twenty feet above the roadway and wide enough to admit big, plain lettering would simply compel the motorist to see it. It could hardly escape the observation of even the most careless driver. Such signs, requiring two high posts instead of one short one, and a stout cable between them, would assuredly cost more. Yet the road makers are constantly paying out greater sums for insuring safety and comfort to travellers.

Of course, there would be no need for such signs along narrow country roads, where the width compels a driver to pass almost within hand-reach of the old-fashioned sign post. Nor are they necessitated in the case of unimportant side roads. But something of the sort is grievously lacking on main highways, with their incessant traffic, quite as often interstate as local, and where the exigencies of long daily runs require the maintenance of a twenty-to-thirty miles an hour speed.

The highway commissions are agreed in urging upon motorists the need of constant vigilance and increasing watchfulness to prevent accidents. They are dead right, as well all agree.

One of the "luckiest" chauffeurs I ever knew said once that he ascribed the fact that he had driven for twelve years without an accident to a single rule of conduct. "I always act as if the other fellow was a d—n fool," he said, "and it was up to me to look out for myself and him, too."

In putting up road signs, the authorities should act on something like that rule. The signs should be so plain, so insistent, so searing that the wayfaring man, though a fool, cannot miss them.

I am glad to note that the editor of The Bulletin keeps dinging away at this general subject as occasion offers. In writing this Talk, I'm merely trying to play Aaron to his Moses, and hold up his hands insofar as my more limited range of influence will permit.

We're getting good roads, fine country. Now let's have, in supplement thereto, a series of road signs which shall make their use covenient and comfortable, not only to us of the locality, but to the strangers within our gates, as well.

WESTERLY

Three automobile mishaps occurred Thursday on Broad street, and practically in Dixon square. The first, the most serious, occurred about 12 o'clock noon when Horace P. Dodge, of 7 Williams street, Pawcatuck, who on Tuesday last completed 47 years as a clerk in the store of E. M. Dodge and company, was struck by the auto truck driven by Henry M. Button, of 13 Stanton street. Mr. Dodge was crossing Broad street from the St. Clair corner to the Washington Trust building, when the radiator of the truck was reported to have struck him, knocking him to the street and under the automobile so that he was taken out from the back, the wheels not running over him. He was taken to his home in Pawcatuck. Examination by Dr. C. Grant Savage showed no cuts or broken bones but a possible injury to his head when striking the highway surface. Patrolman George H. Champlin, on duty at the time, made investigation. The truck was taken for a tryout when it was found that the brakes were not in proper working order. A summons was given Mr. Button to report in Third district court this (Friday) morning to answer to a charge of operating an automobile with faulty brakes.

In the morning a delivery truck of Stillman's Bazaar, driven by Raymond K. Stillman, backed into the Chevrolet touring car of Ernest Sharpe, of New Haven, who is on a visit of several weeks in Westerly. The touring car headlights were broken and the front fender and radiator damaged. Officer Champlin investigated, this accident occurring about 10:30 a. m.

The third accident occurred about 3:30 when a Buick touring car of a Massachusetts demonstrator, in backing out of the parking space in front of the Rhode Island hotel, jammed the rear left mud guard of a passing Chevrolet sedan, without damage, as reported by Officer Champlin who was present to investigate.

In the beginners' class for swimming lessons by Instructor Edward M. Clarke, under the auspices of Westerly chapter, American Red Cross, fifteen aspirants for aquatic knowledge reported at Thompson's Corners, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, Miss Constance Rathbun being the assistant.

By deeds recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk:

Aug. 5, Israel H. Chapman, et al., transferred to Carl V. Brucker, a tract of land near Pleasant View, between Pleasant View and Weekapaug on the north side of Atlantic avenue, Lot No. 6 on the plat of rear beach lots of the heirs of Harris P. Chapman.

Annie L. Wilcox, formerly Annie L. Dean, to Frederick O. Lanphear, et al., lots with buildings and improvements on the east side of Grove avenue.

Clifford W. Campbell, et ux., to John W. Anderson, et ux., a parcel of land with buildings and improvements, on the south side of Cross street.

William T. MacFarland, of Bridgeport, Conn., to Amy R. James, of East Providence, R. I., a parcel of land on the north side of the Post road, partly in the town of Charlestown and partly in the town of Westerly.

Amy R. James and Edwin P. James, of East Providence, to Gurney Edwards, of Providence, a parcel of land on the north side of the Post road, partly in Charlestown and partly in Westerly.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Thursday morning, the marriage was solemnized of Miss Isabelle Celeste Riley and Albert Henry Robar both residents of Westerly. Rev. Fr. J. F. Vincent officiated. The bridesmaid was Miss Madeline R. Riley, twin sister of the bride, and Roger Blinn, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man. Following a breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Robar left on a short automobile trip.

In spite of the stormy beginning of Thursday morning, the Tag Day workers for the Westerly Visiting Nurse association were out early, when boxes were presented to pedestrians for their contributions for the support of the visiting nurse work, while pennants and streamers were offered to automobilists. The beaches at Watch Hill, Pleasant View and Weekapaug were visited and Thursday night, at the band concert in Wilcox park, additional opportunity was offered those who wished to give to the Boy Scouts who were on duty. In addition to those already named, rides who worked with the team captains Thursday in selling tags were Mrs. D. Harold Rogers, Mrs. Harry Coleman, Frederick Peterson, Charles W. Utter, Janet Coleman, Arthur Davis, Jean Monti, Anna Monti, Amelia Monti, Ruth Reynolds, Margaret Perry, Alice Virginia Clark, Helen Murphy, Augusta Stanton, Grace Murphy, Virginia Davis, Mrs. Frank Sherman, Betty Whitford, Eleanor Scanlon, Jack Scanlon, Mary Wiley, Amy Eaton, Stanza Edwards, Jannette Stillman, Margaret Peabody, Emma Mark, Lyman Blake and Lois Wustenbarth.

Va., to visit Mrs. Crandall's mother, Rev. Harold R. Crandall will join his family there and then go as delegate to the Seventh-day Baptist General conference at Salem, W. Va., in session Aug. 13th to 24th. July was spent by Mr. Crandall in evangelistic work in Pennsylvania.

A four-masted schooner with all sails furled lay off the East Beach, Watch Hill and Pleasant View Thursday, awaiting favorable wind to proceed east. As the tide ebbed and flowed the schooner came in shore and swung and moved out, a heavy cargo causing her to set low in the water.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

SPRAYING APPLE TREES.

Apple trees should be sprayed or dusted as soon as possible, because the weather scab has been developing to a marked degree. Black rot also may be starting. Besides these two diseases there are three different insects that a spray would help to control if applied at this time. They are the late brood codding moth, apple maggot and the leaf skeletonizer.

The lime sulphur spray will help control the diseases, while arsenate of lead will help in the control of the insects. For this reason it is advisable to mix up the sprays as follows.

Two gallons of liquid lime sulphur or 8 pounds of dry lime sulphur to 100 gallons of water. Add to this 2½ pounds of the dry arsenate of lead if the paste form is used the amount should be doubled.

Apples that drop on the ground should be picked up, as it will very materially lessen the danger of the apple maggots the following year.

If dusts are to be used the 90-10 sulphur lead arsenate dust should be used. Dusts should also be applied more often than sprays during a rainy season, as dust does not adhere to the leaves quite as well as the spray.

DRY MASH DANGEROUS.

"It may be injurious to allow growing chicks to have all the dry mash they want, when they are not eating sufficient scratch grains," says J. H. Bodwell, county agricultural agent. "Sometimes also a certain number of the chicks will constantly eat at the dry mash hopper without eating much scratch grain. As the dry mash is made to balance the ration with the scratch grains, it therefore contains a high per cent. of protein. When little or no scratch grains are eaten there is a possibility of the chicks getting too much protein, which may cause what is known as protein poisoning. Out of a flock of 1,000 chicks there may be from 1 to 2 per cent. that lose the use of their legs, wings or neck or all three from this cause, and sometimes a higher per cent.

"By giving less dry mash or taking some of the meat scraps out of the mash many times helps to control it. It is wise also to clean out the digestive system by putting epsom salts into the water once every three weeks or so. One pound to 400 pounds of live weight is recommended."

BACTERIAL WILT HITS VINES.

A bacterial wilt which affects cucumbers, melons and squash is being reported from many places. This disease injures fruit, causes the ultimate loss of the plant affected, and in moist or humid weather spreads rapidly.

The disease is not accompanied by any soft rot. The term wilt exactly describes the symptoms on the vine. The infection, beginning on a few leaves that droop, spreads down the stems. The fruit often shrivels. The sap of affected plants instead of being watery becomes stringy and often milky white in color.

The spread of the infection depends upon the activities of the striped and 12 spotted cucumber beetles. If these beetles can be eradicated the disease will be checked. Visible infection takes place in less than a week and the whole plant is invaded in 12 to 15 days.

If the plants are young, eradication of the beetles is the principal control. For old plants, that is vines that are running, apply a bordeaux spray or copper lime dust. Arsenate of lead should be added to the spray to kill the beetles. Nicotine dust will repel beetles and usually gives good results. As soon as a plant begins to wilt pull it up and burn it. Sprays should be applied as a fine mist and reach the stems and underside of the leaves. Nicotine dust should be applied on a warm, bright day and reach the underside of leaves also.

EXPECT POTATO BLIGHT LATE.

The current cool and moist July almost certainly foreshadows a late blight on potatoes, and unless farmers of New England spray their plantings with bordeaux mixtures, warns Prof. J. B. Abbott, state crop specialist of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, they stand a strong chance of losing a substantial part of their crops. Furthermore, with this year's crop for the country forecast to be only three-fourths of what it was last year, and noticeably below the five-year average, the potato grower who fails to spray runs the loss of a good profit.

Prof. Abbott cites Michigan and New Jersey authorities in his warning. Records from those states show that a moist July and at the same time a cool one, was followed in 90 per cent. of the recorded years by a severe blight. Neither moisture nor coolness alone brought on such a situation; the combination accomplished it. He says the effect of weather conditions are parallel in all potato regions.

New England's plantings are in good condition at present. If they weather this blight that sets in in August or September, they should put New England potatomen back on their feet.

Prof. Abbott recommends as a preventive a spray containing four pounds of copper sulphate crystals, four pounds of lime and 50 gallons of water, known as bordeaux mixture. It should be sprayed on to the plant under pressure in a mist, enough being applied to cover the leaf but not to drip off it. For maximum control of the disease, Prof. Abbott advises farmers to spray as often as it is washed off by heavy rains, or whenever new growth requires protection.

SEASON FOR WHITEWASHING.

Whitewashing of all kinds will be in vogue from now until the first of October. It depends on where whitewash is to be applied what formula is to be used. The following article is printed to give the man who intends to use whitewash information that will be worth his while:

This is made by slaking about 10 pounds of quicklime with two gallons of water. The lime is placed in a pail and the water poured over it, after which the pail is covered with an old piece of carpet or cloth and allowed to stand for about an hour. With an insufficient amount of water the lime is "scorched" and not all converted into hydrate; on the other hand, too much water retards the slaking by lowering the heat.

"Scorched" lime is generally lumpy and translucent, hence the use of the proper amount of water for slaking and after addition of water to bring it to a brush or sprayer consistency.

For use in a sprayer all whitewash should be strained through a piece of cheesecloth.

Whitewash for Walls.

1. Sixty-two pounds (1 bushel) quicklime, slake with 15 gallons water. Keep barrel covered until steam ceases to rise. Stir occasionally to prevent scorching.

2. Two and one-half pounds rye flour, beat up in a half gallon of cold water, then add two gallons of boiling water.

3. Two and one-half pounds common rock salt, dissolve in two and one-half gallons of hot water.

Mix (2) and (3), then pour in (1) and stir until all is well mixed.

This is the whitewash used in the large implement factories and recommended by the insurance companies. The above formula gives a product of perfect brush consistency. Add more water for use in a sprayer.

Whitewash for Buildings.

1. Sixty-two pounds (1 bushel) quicklime, slake with 12 gallons of hot water.

2. Two pounds common table salt, one pound sulphate of zinc, dissolve in two gallons of boiling water.

3. Two gallons skimmed milk.

Pour (2) into (1), then add the milk (3) and mix thoroughly. If too thick to apply with the sprayer, add more water.

Disinfectant Whitewash.

The following recipe for a disinfectant whitewash is recommended by the Iowa Experiment station as being especially suitable for the interior of poultry houses, barns, etc., and one application will serve the same purpose as several applications of stock dip. There should be two applications, made each year, one in spring and one in fall, using a high pressure spray pump: 1. Hydrated lime, 1 1-2 pecks. 2. Salt, 3 pounds. 3. Commercial lime-sulphur, 4 gallons. 4. Water, 40 gallons.

Equivalent amounts for a small quantity of the above whitewash are approximately as follows: 1. Hydrated lime, 1 heaping quart. 2. Salt, 3 tablespoonfuls. 3. Commercial lime-sulphur, 1 1-2 quarts. 4. Water, 4 gallons.

Washes which contain milk, flour or glue are not to be advised for use in damp interiors, owing to danger of decomposition of the organic matter. For such locations it is better to use one of the formulae containing none of these ingredients. When whitewash is applied with a broad whitewash brush, it should be spread lightly over the surface, no attempt being made to brush it in as is the case with an oil paint.

Alum added to a lime whitewash prevents it rubbing off. An ounce to the gallon is sufficient. Flour paste answers the same purpose but needs zinc sulphate as a preservative. Molasses renders the lime more soluble and causes it to penetrate the wood or plaster surface. A pint of molasses to five gallons of whitewash is sufficient. A pound of cheap barsoap dissolved in a gallon of boiling water and added to about five gallons of thick whitewash will give it a gloss like oil paint.

MOTORCYCLE DEATHS JUMP 100 PER CENT

The reports of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles show that the victims of motorcycles on the highways of Massachusetts have jumped 100 per cent this year over the same period last year, says the A. L. A. Observing the way they travel, this is not surprising.

Eighteen deaths have thus far resulted from these scorching streaks, four times as many, in proportion as is recorded against automobiles.

Is it due to speed or may some other cause be assigned to those fatalities? The A. L. A. says it is speed and that speed is almost the most dangerous element there is to contend with in our highway vehicular travel. How motorcycle operators "get away" with their bursts of speed is a mystery. Our laws apparently are not made alike for all certainly the motorcycle exceeds in speed any other vehicle on the roads. Sixty miles an hour even through towns is a common occurrence, and one may be heard coming a half mile away. There is no excuse for this recklessness. There is no excuse to have these deaths happen when the majority of them are due to speed. A live officer doing his duty most anywhere in the state could daily summon a dozen into court and every judge before whom one appeared and was convicted of speed should see to it that the sentence imposed was sufficient to deter a repetition.

Not until they are forced to acknowledge that the law applies to them by applying it, will these speeding motorcycle operators take heed. They are generally of the class known as irresponsibles and speeding seems to be their aim in life. In view of the fact that highway deaths caused by them have so enormously increased it seems the part of wisdom to more closely scrutinize all applicants for motorcycle licenses. It may have a deterrent effect; and with licenses of all offenders revoked and proper punishment given, we may hope that a halt will be called on this criminal waste of human life.

SEOUL: KOREA'S ONE-STORIED CAPITAL

"Seoul, or Keijo, as it is called by the Japanese, scene of recent disastrous Korean floods, lives at once in the dreamy past and bustling present," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The city is the administrative center of Chosen, the Japanese official name for Korea.

"Seoul was the capital of the old kingdom of Korea which had its roots about as deep into the past as Japan or China," continues the bulletin. "It was not a glorious past. Class distinctions, bureaucratic oppressions and official apathy and general stagnation made the Korea of a generation or so ago anything but an admirable country. A reminder of the past is the huge palace group in Seoul today occupied by the deposed Prince Yi, a pensioner of the Japanese government.

"The present is working marked changes in the old city. Along two or three main streets modern buildings have been erected, and these thoroughfares are well paved. Electric street railways operate, waterworks and gas works have been installed, and an electric generating plant furnishes power and light. Even a sewer system is making slow headway.

"Off the main thoroughfares, however, one finds himself in a medieval Korean city of narrow alleys with open drains, and one-story wooden dwellings. In the old days commoner people were forbidden to build houses more than one story high, for no one must have a building from which he could look down on the king.

"Seoul is in a valley, with mountains hemming it in. About the city is a wall built in the 14th century. It is from 16 to 30 feet high and about 20 feet thick and makes a circuit of seven miles. Within this wall, now falling into dilapidation, are included some of the smaller mountain peaks. The population is about 277,000. Of this total the Japanese, most of whom have come into the country since the annexation to Japan in 1910 number about 40,000. Europeans and Americans resident in Seoul probably do not number 100. Most of these are missionaries. Two mission hospitals and several schools are maintained in the capital.

"The Japanese inhabitants of Seoul are active and their business methods, their shops, and their costumes are leavening the Korean lump. Even today, however, the street scenes in Seoul are strongly reminiscent of old Korea. Officially the old class distinctions have been abolished by the Japanese, but they persist. Among the 'common people' are classed the farmers, artisans, laborers. In the 'middle class' are the doctors, priests, scholars, mathematicians, interpreters and artists. A big quarter of Seoul is given over to the 'middle class'. Above them were the nobility and some of these have been given a new status by Japanese patents. Many things were forbidden the common people. Among other things, they could never under any circumstances wear spectacles. The very crude spectacles worn by Korean 'gentlemen' are not to improve the eyesight, but rather are badges of respectability.

"Most Koreans dress in white, a custom said to have resulted from the fact that white was the official mourning habit, and that the populace was constantly being compelled to go into mourning for several years at a time on the death of members of the royal family. Few costumes in any part of the world are more bizarre than that of the Korean 'gentleman'. It consists of a long flowing coat of white material, that looks like a night shirt, below which protrude a few inches of white pantaloons tied about the ankles. The foot coverings are awkward swathings of cloth. The climax of the ludicrous is the hat which consists of a 'pill-box' crown on a stiff brim. It sits very high on the head and is held in place by black tapes tied under the chin. Often men so dressed are seen, wearing huge spectacles and solemnly smoking pipes with tiny bowls and two-foot stems. No Westerner can view his first Korean 'gentleman' with a straight face.

"The white clothing requires frequent washing; and to the casual observer laundering seems to be Korea's chief industry. Along every brook near the cities—and even along the open drains of the streets of Seoul—one will see a bevy of women continually rubbing and thumping garments. Because of the necessity for frequent washing, many of the Korean garments are now sewed, but instead are pasted together and are pulled apart for each cleansing."

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—Price movements in today's stock market disclosed considerable irregularity, final quotations as a rule showing slight concessions. Oils and motors were heavily sold by professional traders on unfavorable trade rumors, and much of the selling in other quarters was inspired by cautionary commission house advices.

There was a fair-sized accumulation of overnight buying orders, the execution of which lifted nearly a score of issues to new peak prices for the year in the first hour of trading. The majority of the advance, particularly which soared over 5 points at a new all-time high, was Montana Power, record top at 99 1-4, invited considerable realizing, that issues settling back to 95 at the close.

The chief news development of the day was the reduction in the rediscount rate of the bank of England from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent. This was generally construed here as an indication of improved credit conditions abroad and a vindication of Chancellor Churchill's gold policy. Rumors were circulated around the financial district during the afternoon that the New York federal reserve bank would increase its rate to curb reckless speculation in the stock market but the rate was unchange dat 3 1-2 per cent.

Buoyancy again developed in several high priced issues. General Railway Signal which is reported to have received large orders for automatic train control devices, soared 12 1-2 points to a record high at 237 1-2, as against a price of 144 when it was listed on the "big board" a few months ago. Havana Electric jumped nearly 10 points to a new peak at 196 3-4, losing about 1 1-2 points below the top. Mack Trucks, Westinghouse Air Brake, Niagara Railway and Power and National Steel Products preferred closed 4 to 8 1-2 points higher. Coca Cola was run up over 4 points to a new top at 148 and International Telephone climbed 3 points to 157.

Sharp gains also took place in a number of low-priced issues. Davison Chemical jumped 5 points to 42 3-4 and then reacted one on profit taking, while net gains of 2 to 3 1-2 points were recorded by American and Foreign Power, Beechnut Packing, International Paper, Fleischmann, and New York Shipbuilding. Frank G. Shattuck jumped 5 points to a new top at 92 after selling as low as 83 1-8, on buying based on reports of a consolidation of the Schraff's and the Huyler candy stores and restaurants.

Fresh weakness developed in the oil shares on reports of another increase in crude oil production last week. Independent Oil and Gas broke nearly 4 points to 25 3-4 and then rallied to 27 and Atlantic Refining, Colorado Fuel General Asphalt, mid-Continent Petroleum and Pierce Oil weakened 1 to 2 points. Pan-American B received better support, losing 1-4 higher at 68 3-8.

Profession is sold the motors freely on the theory that the recent cuts in car prices and the expected reduction in export demand, due to the heavy shipment of cars to England before the new tariff went into effect on July 1, would seriously affect earnings on the last half of the year. Willys Overland, White Motors, Hayes Wheel, Chandler, Jordan and Pierce-Arrow all showed declines of 1 to 2 points.

Specialties industrials showed only fractional changes on the day. United States Steel common closed 1-2 lower at 118 3-4 after selling a point above that figure. American Can touched a new record top at 217 3-4 and then reacted to 215 where it was up 3-4 on the day. Baldwin closed slightly higher at 111 1-4.

Rails showed moderate strength in the early dealings, but failed to hold their gains. Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville and "Nickel Plate" preferred all broke through their previous high prices.

Call money ruled steady at 4 1-4 per cent, time money and commercial rates were unchanged.

Quotations in the principal foreign exchanges were narrow and irregular. Demand sterling and French francs ruled slightly lower at $4.85 3-8 and 4.70 cents, respectively. Danish kroner dropped about ten points to around 26.52 cents. Belgian francs improved on the announcement that the debt funding negotiations with Washington will begin next Monday.

TAFTVILLE

When the Turning Section of the Taftville Maennerchor Club held their weenie roast on Mish's Island in Blossom Pond, strings of Japanese lanterns, two blazing campfires and the August moon supplied the heat and made the surroundings picturesque. Singing and other amusements kept the members in a joyous mood until the party broke up about midnight. The affair was in charge of the following committee, Herman Krause, chairman; Miss Gladys Thoma, Miss Bertha Thoma and Robert Pilling.

Among the local people visiting Pine Grove, Niantic, Thursday, were Mr. and Mrs. George J. Meyer and Miss Fossie M. Meyer of Lisbon, William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue, Miss Elsie Heap of South Second avenue, Miss Natalie Ferris of North B street, Nicholas Lukoff and Peter Lukoff of South B street, William C. Kendall of Norwich, and George N. Beardow of Providence street.

Peter Lipsar of North A street is enjoying his annual vacation.

GREENE CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court has reserved the case of Jennie M. Greene of New York for decision of the supreme court on the demurrer filed by Percy S. Bryant, counsel for the plaintiff, to answer to the complaint filed by Hiram M. Alcorn, acting for the estate of Harriet T. Kilbourne, late of East Hartford. Mrs. Greene who was formerly Jennie M. Ackley of East Hartford, is suing the estate for an accounting, setting forth in the complaint that under the terms of the will of the grandfather, Alfred Kilbourne, one-half of the amount which went to Harriet Kilbourne, was given in trust, and in case of her death without descendants that property was to go to other descendants of Alfred Kilbourne, among whom is Greene.

Mr. Alcorn set up as answer that Miss Greene's mother signed a waiver, according to a so-called "antiabduction" by which the rights of all who might have participated in any such trust fund were lost.

The waiver secured from the probate records of East Hartford is known in the form of a mutual distribution between those at that time, December, 1901, interested in the undivided settlement of the estate of Alfred Kilbourne, which sets out to Alfred Kilbourne, two shares, Harriet T. Kilbourne three shares, Ellen K. Bishop of Norwich two shares, Mary K. Ackley, Mrs. Greene's mother, one share.

CONFERENCE ON COUNTY STATUS OF DETECTIVES

Members of the state police commission and Superintendent Robert T. Hurley have been invited by Governor Trumbull to attend the conference he is to have Monday with the state attorneys to fix the status of county detectives.

Six of the state's attorneys, including Hugh M. Alcorn of Hartford county, are opposed to the governor's plan to require county detectives to be members of the state police, as a means to secure coordination of the efforts of the state police department and the county detectives. The state police commissioners, Ernest L. Isbell, Robbins B. Stoeckel and Frederick M. Salmon, as well as Superintendent Hurley, are equally firm in their opposition to a continuance of the present system under which county detectives are responsible only to the state attorneys, on the ground that the two agencies work at cross-purposes and much effort is wasted.

The power to make the requirement lies with the governor under an act of the recent session of the legislature which requires the executive's approval of the appointment and salaries of county detectives, instead of the superior court judges, as in the past.

The Norwich Lions club's regular Thursday noon luncheon was held at Oaks Inn, Watch Hill, on the Westerly shore road, facing Pleasant View. About 35 Lions and 17 guests attended the outing and enjoyed a delightful afternoon and evening.

A very elaborate luncheon was served at 2:30 p. m., Thomas M. Gates very tastefully decorated his large dining room, setting the tables in fine style with beautiful flowers to complete the effect.

President Bill Anderson welcomed the guests, expressing the appreciation of the Lions club for their fine neighborly spirit in celebrating this outing with the Lions. Herb Corey was appointed as song leader at the luncheon, with Pete Enger ably assisting at the piano. The programme opened with the guests singing "Sweet Adeline." As the Lions warmed up in their first song, Joe Weymouth, president of the Rotary club, put in an appearance.

His arrival was a signal for a very friendly demonstration all the Lions and their guests rising and expressing a delightful and boisterous welcome. No sooner were the Lions and their guests seated than the song leader called on their Rotarian guests to sing. A quartet and Joe Weymouth, Charlie Wells, Charles W. Taggart and L. M. Carpenter responded with "I Love a Lion," which brought a grand round of applause.

The menu consisted of celery, queen olives, mixed salted almonds, fresh fruit cocktail, steamed long clams, drawn butter, Rhode Island clam chowder, with hard tack, broiled baby fresh mackerel, Block Island style, with Parisian potatoes, sliced cucumbers, with French dressing, hot biscuits, buttered, black coffee.

At 3:30 the luncheon ended with all present adjourning to the large ball ground facing Pleasant View. A game was arranged between the married and the single men and was contested with great enthusiasm. The game went 11 innings, with a score of 12 to 11 runs in favor of the married men. Joe Weymouth and Charlie Wells very ably and fairly umpired the game.

Dinner was served at 7 p. m. consisting of radishes, chow-chow, boiled live lobster with Saratoga chips cold slaw dressing, broiled squab, chicken, julienne potatos, green corn on cob Oyster Bay asparagus, Hinograwte sauce, combination salad, fresh strawberry ice cream, preserved peaches, assorted cakes, demi tasse, cigars and cigarettes.

President Anderson opened the ceremonies of the evening with the singing of America. Jean Kieffer was appointed song leader and in credit to Jean it must be said that he kept the Lions roaring with song in which all the guest participated with great zest. President Anderson called on Max Hanover for a few remarks, in answer to which Max spoke about the friendly relations predominating between the Rotary and Lions Clubs as manifested by the close co-operation of both organizations in various civic and social activities in the city. Both clubs stand for a better community, better city, state and nation.

Joe Weymouth as president of the Rotary club was called upon for a few words and he told the Lions that the members of the Rotary club are always very much delighted to join with the Lions in any of the Lions' outings and entertainments. He assured the Lions that he will act as their publicity agent by telling the Rotarians at their next meeting what a wonderful day of fellowship he enjoyed with the Lions.

President Anderson expressed appreciation and thanks for the offer of such a distinguished publicity agent boosting for the Lions club.

The dinner ended at 9:30 with the singing of the Star Spangled banner and the Lions' roar.

The arrangements for the outing were in charge of Earle Taggart, as chairman, assisted by Dr. Sussler, Dr. Solomon and Herbert Corey and the Lions are very much indebted to the committee for their very fine arrangements and for the selection of such an ideal place for the outing.

ROBERT S. ROSS MAKES GOOD IN AMERICANIZATION WORK

The Schenectady, N. Y. Gazette of recent date makes the following complimentary reference to a former popular Y. M. C. A. secretary of Norwich, Robert S. Ross, Mr. Ross who was as well thought of at Gales Ferry where he had been a summer resident, as he was in Norwich, recently gave up Y. M. C. A. work for an engagement with the General Electric company, in Schenectady. The Gazette says:

Americanization activities of the Industrial service department of the General Electric company, is the subject of an interesting article by Miss Irene East in a recent issue of the Schenectady Works News. The program conducted by the Americanization office of the local plant includes instruction in English, help on naturalization papers and recreational activities.

The school is conducted from October until April. Each class meets for one hour, two days a week, at the close of the day's work at 4:30 o'clock.

Rallies of all students and guests are held several times a year in the fire station hall. Stereopticon and motion pictures are shown with interesting and educational features. The basis of studies used in the school is the system entitled "English for Coming Americans," compiled by Dr. Peter Roberts, New York city. The process is known as the direct method and remarkable results are obtained in a brief time.

During the past winter there were 27 employes acting as teachers with 252 enrolled students. The average attendance for the year was 75 per cent., showing the interest with which the students pursued their studies.

The G-E Americanization work was recognized in the national illiteracy conference at Washington, held last year, when Robert S. Ross, the Americanization secretary, was appointed a member of the national illiteracy conference committee, composed of 11 members. A report on courses of study and methods of instruction for native illiterates, foreign-born illiterates and foreign-born beginners was prepared by this committee. This report has just been published by the bureau of education in Washington and is entitled "Elementary Instruction of Adults."

The work of the English classes leads up to the naturalization of the men and is of supreme importance in fitting them for full citizenship.

WOMEN VOTERS BELIEVE IN THE PARTY SYSTEM

The voter who votes only at elections is using but a small part of his voting power. The Connecticut League of Women Voters through non-partisan believes in the party system. It urges its members to join the political parties whenever the opportunity is offered. The registrars of voters in many towns in the state have announced that they will be in their office for that purpose August 7th to 10th. In many towns this is the last chance given before the September caucus.

Unless a party member, an elector has no voice in the choice of candidates. When he goes to the polls on election day he merely gives his approval to the selections made at the caucus. If he does not like them he may write in the names of candidates he would have liked to have seen nominated. His vote on election day is wasted, when it might have had some weight at the caucus.

PROFESSIONAL MEN HAVE OUTING AT DRAWBRIDGE

Overcast skies meant nothing to the professional men of the city Thursday, for about 40 o'clock autos began to leave the city bound for Poquetanuck drawbridge, where the annual outing was to be held. Over 100 professional men, doctors, druggists and clerks of Norwich, Taftville and Baltic attended the outing and there was plenty doing through the day to keep up the interest.

Various water sports were enjoyed and there were field meets and a baseball game. In the evening the outing wound up with an old fashioned clambake, the menu consisting of:

Blue fish Gravy
Clam Fritters
White and Sweet Potatoes
White and Brown Bread
Roast Native Sweet Corn
Steamed Clams One-Half Lobster
Sliced Cucumbers
Tomatoes Lettuce
Watermelon

John Temple Graves, the aged southern writer, ill at his home in Washington, clung to life last night, although his physicians and family had virtually abandoned hope for his recovery.

GEN. PAYNE REFUSED FEDERAL RECOGNITION

New regulations in the militia bureau have already caused difficulty for New England national guard officers says a Washington dispatch.

To date (and the regulations have been in effect about two months) two Connecticut generals have been turned down. Now the bureau is waiting for the recommendation of all the units in New England for a divisional commanding officer.

Brig. Gen. Greenlaw of Maine has been mentioned as a possibility but as yet no definite word has been received at the bureau.

The Connecticut officers, Maj. Gen. Payne of the 43rd National Guard Division and Brig. Gen. Haggerty of the 85th Infantry Brigade, were refused federal recognition because they could not pass the new examination. Both were held up for military reasons and Haggerty had difficulty with the physical examinations. This means that they can not get any pay from the war department.

The militia bureau will not recognize a recommendation for commanding officer unless he is the unanimous choice of all the military organizations represented. The man selected will then be subject to an examination. He must be acceptable morally, physically and professionally.

Generals Payne and Haggerty took their examinations for promotion in June in accordance with the new regulations of the militia bureau. General Payne has stated that recognition was being held up on technicalities but that he hoped to have these straightened out before long. General Haggerty's recognition is being held up because of his physical condition and this fact recalls to many the successful fight that he waged in 1917 for acceptance for military service.

After the calling out of the National Guard for Mexican border service, General Haggerty, then a captain of the old Second, was discharged because of physical disability. He was determined, however, to serve in the World war and re-enlisted early in 1917 as a private. He finally overcame the objections of army medical officers as to his physical condition, went to France as a lieutenant of the 102nd United States infantry and rose to the rank of major. He became colonel of the 169th infantry, C. N. G., in January, 1922, and of the 170th now the 102nd infantry regiment in June, 1923. Last spring, as senior infantry colonel, he was the choice for command of the infantry officers for brigadier general.

CLARENCE BENNETT IS DISCHARGED BY COURT

In the city court, Thursday morning, Judge Arthur L. Libby entered a discharge for Clarence Bennett, 20, of 23 Lenox street, New London, who was charged with violating the motor laws, by driving past a trolley car while passengers were being discharged. Lack of evidence caused the decision.

James Foley, conductor of the car testified to getting out of his car and asking the driver of a Ford car what his hurry was, but upon question of the court, testified that Mr. Bennett was not the man who was driving the car.

Other witnesses testified along similar lines also stating that the car was not the one owned by Mr. Bennett, although the number taken, N-8281 was that of Mr. Bennett's car. The conductor testified that when he took the number he was but five feet away from the car, an old Ford, but that Mr. Bennett's car, although bearing the number he had taken, was not the car which was driven by the standing trolley.

One man was sent to jail for failure to pay his court bill for a charge of intoxication.

Joseph and Mary Mikolyeh, husband and wife, of 23 Fourth street, charged with receiving stolen goods, had their cases continued until August 12th. They were among those arrested in the raids, because of thefts of cloth alleged to have been made from the U. S. Finishing company's plant in Greeneville.

MOB OF 1,000 LYNCHED NEGRO AT EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, MO.

Obtained Entrance to Jail Through Use of a False Fire Alarm —Dragged the Victim Through the Streets, Past Fashionable Hotel, and Hanged Him to an Oak Tree About a Mile South of the Town—Negro Was Accused of Having Assaulted a White Girl.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A mob of a thousand persons lynched Walter Mitchell, negro, here today for an alleged attack about midnight last night on a young white girl in the country.

The mob obtained entrance to the city hall, in which the jail is located, by the ruse of a false fire alarm, and dragged the negro through the Main streets, past the fashionable Elms hotel, to a place about a mile south of town where he was hanged to an oak tree.

The attack was alleged to have occurred while the girl was being taken to her country home by Leonard Utt. Several miles from town the negro jumped on the running board of their car, brandishing a flashlight, with which he struck Utt in the mouth knocking him temporarily unconscious. The negro then forced the girl into the rear of the car and attempted to attack her but was beaten off. Frightened by her cries, the negro ran toward Excelsior Springs.

The police traced the negro early today by his tracks. They found him asleep in a small house in which he lived. Nearby lay the flashlight. Utt identified him at once and the young woman did later.

When news of the identification spread, a crowd formed about the jail, where Mitchell had been taken. There were threats, but no violence as the crowd was without a leader. Chief of Police J. F. Craven and eight or ten deputies guarded Mitchell and attempted to disperse the crowd. An attempt by the officers to remove Mitchell by way of a basement door proved futile, for part of the mob was guarding that exit.

Not until a false fire alarm was turned in was there any attempt on the part of the mob to storm the building, said Chief Craven. When the large outside door of the fire department room was opened for the truck, the mob poured in. A man with a sledge-hammer battered down the door leading to the cellroom and smashed the lock from the cell. The negro, already in handcuffs, was dragged from the building amid shouts of "burn him."

Down Thompson avenue, the main street of this little resort town, the mob swept, women and children in its wake. Past the Elms hotel, where guests crowded the veranda, the negro was dragged and on out into the open country. A rope was procured on the way and upon arrival at an oak tree about a mile from town, a man shinned up the tree, tossed the rope over a limb and five other men pulled the negro into the air.

The hanging was witnessed by passengers on a stub train that runs between Excelsior Springs and Excelsior Springs Junction. The mob swarmed over the tracks and forced the train to come to a standstill and passengers crowded the steps and windows.

Witnesses said that as the negro was dragged through the streets he was asked twice if he had anything to say. The first time he replied in the negative, but the second time is said to have admitted the attack and pleaded for mercy.

Fifty policemen from Kansas City armed with riot guns arrived at the hanging spot 15 minutes too late. They cut down the body and turned it over to the coroner.

Tonight Clay county, scene of many a stirring crime in the days when Jesse James held forth, was quiet.

Meantime, authorities were conducting an investigation in an effort to learn the identity of the slayers and the members of the mob.

Second in Missouri in Year.

CHARLESTON, Mo., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The lynching at Excelsior Springs today was the second in Missouri within a year. Roosevelt Grigsby, negro, was lynched here the night of December 18, last, after he had been taken from jail where he was held on a criminal assault charge.

Coolidge is to Remain Aloof in Coal Squabble

Still Hopeful That an Agreement Will Be Reached Without Government Action.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 7.—(A P)—Strong indications were given today at the summer white house that President Coolidge does not intend to become involved, at least for the present, in the anthracite wage controversy.

Efforts to obtain comment on the situation from the executive failed, and the inference was given that despite the break in negotiations between operators and miners with expiration of the present wage scale less than a month away, he still is hopeful that an agreement will be reached without a move on the part of the government. He is of the opinion that the resolution adjourning the Atlantic City conference subject to the call of the chairman leaves the way open for further negotiations.

Although it had been expected that the president would take advantage of a visit to White Court today by Attorney General Sargent to go over the hard coal situation, which has assumed proportions of the most important domestic issue confronting the administration, it was stated officially that the possibility of a suspension of anthracite operation had not been mentioned in their conference.

Further, it was declared that President Coolidge had not invited Secretary Hoover to visit him tomorrow with any idea of discussing the coal question and that he did not expect the commerce department head to bring up the subject.

The attorney general stopped off here for eight hours on his way from Washington to his Ludlow, Vt. home. It was explained at White Court, solely to discuss with the president some prospective appointments of federal judges and district attorneys and several unimportant pardon cases. Nothing else, it was said, was discused.

Mr. Hoover, it was stated, is coming here to invite the president to attend a jubilee celebration in San Francisco in September—an invitation that Mr Coolidge does not believe he will be able to accept. Mr. Hoover will arrive tomorrow morning from Washington and will be a guest at White Sourt until he returns to the capital to attend a meeting of the tariff commission Monday.

The president's program for next week has not been determined but he is hopeful that he and Mrs. Coolidge will be able to get away the latter part of the week for a short visit with the president's father at Plymouth, Vt.

To Issue Refund Slips For N. H. Commuters

Explanation Made by Counsel Spock in the Supreme Court at White Plains, N. Y.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 7—(AP)—Benjamin F. Spock, general counsel for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, in a statement issued here tonight, announced that following a hearing this morning in White Plains, N. Y., before Justice Arthur S. Tompkins in the supreme court he had informed the court that refund slips would be issued to commuters probably by next Wednesday.

"It is now a question of printing and distribution of the slips" he declared. He also stated that purchasers of tickets between August 1, the date the new rates went into effect, and the time the refund slips are issued would be entitled to obtain the slips. "An arrangement will be made whereby those who present the covers of the ticket books so purchased will be given the refund slip," he said.

The rebate slips will carry this paragraph:

"If the above described fare, effective August 1, 1925, shall be reduced for the period of this ticket by an order of the public service commission of New York, which shall be confirmed, upon review by the court of last resort having final jurisdiction, the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company, at any time within six months from such final adjudication, (but not thereafter) and on presentation of this receipt at the office where purchased, at Grand Central terminal, or any passenger traffic department, Grand Central terminal, or New Haven Conn., and after reasonable opportunity to said company to identify such purchaser, will refund in cash to such purchaser the amount of such reduction."

Mr. Spock refused to comment on the present status of the case or what the company would do in the event of a rehearing before the public service commission.

BROWNING IN TROUBLE OVER ADOPTION OF DAUGHTERS

Wealthy Real Estate Operator Declares He Will Never Adopt Another Child, Boy or Girl—Foster Mother of Dorothy Sunshine Browning Asserts Her Belief the Multi-Millionaire is Not Fit To Be a Guardian—Believes the Adoption of Mary Louise Spas is "Disgusting."

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(A. P.)—A new element entered today in the adoption of Mary Louise Spas by Edward W. Browning, wealthy real estate operator. Mrs. Anne St. John of Rye, N. Y., foster mother of Dorothy Sunshine Browning, sought advice as to the cancellation of that adoption which occurred six years ago.

Declaring many statements made to her when Dorothy was adopted since have been proven false, Mrs. St. John asked Commissioner of Public Welfare Coler if there was not some method available of revoking the adoption.

"I cannot believe that Mr. Browning is fit to be her guardian," she said in a letter to the commissioner, "and now this disgusting farce of adopting that young woman."

The possibility of some action through the district attorney of Queens county seemed to be eliminated when that official announced late today he had been unable to find any law on the statute books which prohibited parents from selling their consent to an adoption.

Commissioner Coler, acting, he said, upon criticism voiced in hundreds of letters, has presented the Mary Louise adoption to the district attorney for consideration.

Browning, through his counsel, issued a statement today charging Commissioner Coler was actuated by personal motives and intimating a libel suit may follow.

Special Agent Pasarra of the Society of Prevention to Cruelty to Children, announced that a "rigid investigation" is being conducted into the conditions surrounding the adoption of Dorothy, six years ago.

"We have no control over Mary because she is more than sixteen," said Mr. Pasarra, "but we have jurisdiction over Dorothy and if we find that Mr. Browning is not a suitable man for a father, we shall take steps to revoke that adoption."

Mr. Browning denied he had any intention of adopting 10-year-old Sylvia Mullen, who had announced she was to share his parental bounty with Mary Louise and Dorothy Sunshine, and further asserted she had spent the hours of her unexplained absence from her home last night in discussing details of her adoption. Mr. Browning denied both the conference and its alleged outcome.

"I will never adopt another child, boy or girl," he declared. "Please make that final."

YOUTH "NOT FULLY AWAKE" SHOT AND KILLED FATHER

ALLISON, Iowa, Aug. 7—(AP)—The strange story of a youth, who while "not fully awake" last night shot and killed his father, the Rev. H. P. Vandervoort, Methodist Episcopal pastor at Parkersburg, and wounded his mother was told here today by the slayer, Warren Vandervoort, 17 years old.

In a written statement to Henry W. Burma, sheriff of Butler county, Vandervoort recited details of constant family quarrels, the purchase of a 22 calibre rifle, the shooting of first his father and then his mother, when she appeared at the doorway of her bedroom to learn the cause of the first shot, his sudden "awakening" and his attempt at a getaway.

He was formally charged with first degree manslaughter here today, and will be lodged in the county jail until the October term of court opens.

Vandervoort said in his confession that he believes his mother's mind was diseased, which was the reason she quarreled with her husband and son. He insisted he and his father had been good friends.

He graduated from the Parkersburg High school last spring, was considered one of the brightest boys in the class and had planned to enter Cornell this fall.

Yesterday afternoon Vandervoort said he purchased a rifle at the store and hid it in the home. A violent quarrel at the supper table ensued when the mother "suspected something" and during the course of the bickering she declared she wished she were dead. A few minutes later Rev. Vandervoort made the same statement.

After the family had retired, the boy, who sleeps in a tent on the lawn, crept upstairs armed with the rifle which he purchased late that afternoon. He shot and killed his father who was in the hallway, and when his mother appeared at the doorway of the bedroom he shot her in the temple.

DIVORCE DECREE OF J. P. M'LAUGHLIN SET ASIDE

RENO Nev., Aug. 7—(AP)—Holding that despite the six months actual residence clause in the Nevada divorce law, the lower courts must allow cross-examination to establish the real domicile of a party to such a suit, the state supreme court today set aside the decree in the suit of James P. DEM. BATTLE IN N. Y. FOR MAYORALTY NOMINATION

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—Battle lines in the fight for the democratic mayoralty nomination were drawn sharply today, presenting, however, the spectacle of both sides seeking to occupy the same line of trenches—the five cent fare issue.

Both State Senator James J. Walker, designated last night by Tammany hall as its candidate, and Mayor Hylan, who will be named Monday by three of the borough leaders for renomination, today indicated clearly that continuance of the present fare would be their main issue.

Senator Walker's claim to the issue is based upon his advocacy of the transportation act which would have allowed the city to construct and operate subways at a five cent fare, and by his inclusion of the five cent fare limit in the subway contracts now in force.

Mayor Hylan's opening fire was directed at Tammany hall in an address to a group of callers. "There are certain members in my own party," he said, "who disagree with me and feel that they can increase the carfare if they can be placed in power in the city administration. I realize that the people are suffering. I have striven for eight years to relieve their suffering. But when you try to relieve them you are met with tremendous obstacles. Certain political leaders dislike public officials giving such relief, and for reasons best known to themselves, they wish to seize control of the city government."

Intense interest now centers in how active a part Gov. Smith will take in the campaign.

PRELIMINARIES FOR KLAN PARADE IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—An advance guard of Ku Klux Klansmen and their families, unofficially estimated to number 20,000, were in Washington tonight awaiting the arrival in the morning of the last contingents of the gathering to join them in a procession down Pennsylvania avenue.

Robed and hooded but unmasked, the Klansmen will march from the Capitol to the White House, beginning at 3 o'clock. The police, who made preparations for the parade on the basis of estimates that only 5,000 members would participate, tonight ordered traffic on Pennsylvania avenue suspended during the march to give the visitors the right of way. A flank and rear guard of police will be provided.

Police Inspector Grant has obtained the assurance of leaders of the large negro population that members of the race had been cautioned to avoid causing any trouble. Pastors appealed to, he said, had mentioned the event in their sermons.

A development of the day was the arrest of Thomas L. Avaunt, who has assailed the Klan in handbills. After questioning by the police he was released.

The Klan established its headquarters in the New Willard hotel, with several high officials in charge. Reports were current during the day that national headquarters for the organization might be shifted here and also that its leaders were considering remaining several days for a conference, but these could not be confirmed.

After the parade the visitors will gather in the Sylvan theatre in the Mall to hear addresses. Sunday morning a service will be held in Virginia across the Potomac, and a feature of that event will be the burning of a fiery cross, said by some leaders to be the largest in the organization's history. A tree 80 feet high, which will carry a cross piece 80 feet long, has been soaked with oil for the occasion.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Treasury officials expressed hope for a $400,000,000 tax reduction.

The Ku Klux Klan announced 80,000 would participate in its parade tomorrow.

Three eastern trunk railroads protested against the proposed new line across Pennsylvania.

MINERS WILL NOT HAVE OUTSIDERS AS ARBITERS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 7—(AP)—Outsiders will never be permitted by miners to serve as arbitrators in the hard coal fields, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, said in a radio address broadcast from the Hotel Ambassador tonight.

"Anthracite operators," Mr. Lewis said with reference to the wage negotiations which were broken off last Tuesday, 'ask the miners to arbitrate the question involved in the negotiation of a wage and working agreement. Arbitrate what? Is it possible that we are asked to arbitrate the matter of life or death?

Despite all the risks and hazards which attend the miner's performance of his service, Mr. Lewis said, he nevertheless was underpaid. His pay was below that of men employed in other industries in the anthracite region and throughout the country, according to Mr. Lewis. The public must provide him compensation commensurate with his service.

To earn $2,000 a year, of $166 a month a man had to work every day including Sunday and every holiday and 105 days of overtime. Since 1921, wages had been increased 10 per cent.

BUT LITTLE CHANGE IN EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS

BOSTON, Aug. 7—(A. P.)—Industrial employment conditions in New England showed little change during the month of July, the monthly report of the New England district, U. S. Employment Service, made public today, said. A scarcity of farm labor was noted in Vermont and all five states reported great activity in the building industry. The report for Connecticut follows:

Industrial employment conditions showed some improvement during July. A majority of industries throughout the state are running, many of them on full time schedules. In certain sections a shortage of skilled mechanics in the metal trades is reported. Rolling mills and ball bearing plants are working on overtime schedules. Building operations continue active and craftsmen in all sections are well employed. Supply of farm labor is sufficient for the demand.

CONN. LAW COVERING THE ADOPTION OF CHILDREN

HARTFORD, Aug. 7—(A. P.)—Between 250 and 300 children are adopted by foster parents in Connecticut every year, according to estimates of the state bureau of public welfare, it was said today by Commissioner Charles E. Dow. An adoption like that of Mary Louise Spas by Edward W. Browning, New York multi-millionaire, would never be sanctioned by the Connecticut department, as the separation of a child from his or her mother because of the mother's poverty would be considered "most unsocial."

The Connecticut department's policy is also to require people who desire to adopt a child to take the child on probation for one year before the department will give its approval to the adoption. This is to give the proposed foster parents an opportunity to become thoroughly familiar with the traits and habits of the child they would adopt. "It is a serious matter," Commissioner Dow pointed out, "for the adoption is for life and there is no backing out of it thereafter."

He is being held under bonds of $1,000.

Jurkowski was arrested Wednesday night on a charge of intoxication following reports of trouble at 140 Grove street. The police found him lying in the yard at that address and were told by Andrzyczyk that Jurkowski was intoxicated and that there had been no trouble. The police said however, that they had been informed by neighbors that there had been a dispute at the Andrzyczyk home and that he and Jurkowski had exchanged blows on the porch of the house and that both had crashed through the railing, Andrzyczyk landing on top of Jurkowski when the men fell to the ground.

SWIMMING OF ENGLISH CHANNEL IS POSTPONED

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 7—(A P.)—Neither Gertrude Ederle, the American girl, nor Lillian Harrison the Argentine champion, will enter the English channel at Cape Gris-Nez tonight.

Miss Ederle was suffering from a slight indisposition today, and it was announced that she had postponed her attempt until August 17. It is possible that Miss Harrison tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock or tomorrow night at 11:30 o'clock will make the plunge for Dover if weather conditions are propitious. She had anticipated her fourth start for the English coast tonight with Miss Ederle.

Unprecedented interest is being evinced from Boulogne to Dunkirk over the attacks women are making this year to conquer the "soup bowl," as fishermen hereabouts nickname the channel. In addition to the women swimmers, Ishak Helmy, an Egyptian giant six feet four inches in height, has been here for the past two weeks awaiting for favorable conditions to have a try at the English goal. WILLIMANTIC

John A. Johnson of New London and Prince Albert Lester of Montville who were arrested on the South Windham road late Thursday afternoon on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and of intoxication, respectively, were in police court Friday morning and were found guilty. Johnson said that he had had only one drink and the court entered a plea of not guilty on his behalf. Johnson said that he was far from being a drinking man by habit. He and Lester had given some woman a ride and when he left them he abandoned a bottle of moonshine in the car. Johnson said that he took a drink. He had been arrested but once before and that was in this city, eighteen years ago. Judge Foss warned Johnson of the seriousness of the offense, but took note of the fact that Johnson has had a clean record for eighteen years and spared him a jail sentence, imposing a fine of $100 and costs. Prince Albert Lester said that he could not say that he was drunk, but under the circumstances he might as well say so. He stated that he was born and brought up in the town of Montville and resided in the village of Palmertown. He was arrested three years ago for trouble with a neighbor, but it was the latter who paid the fine. The court adjudged him guilty of intoxication and imposed a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $15.15 which was paid.

Willimantic found itself in the middle of a big rain storm Friday afternoon which was considered of unusual severity for this community which thus far has succeeded in escaping earthquakes, cyclones and serious cloudbursts. The intersection of North and Main streets, brought to mind the swirling waters of the Maelstrom, when the fifteen minute downpour was beginning to subside. Meadow street nearly experienced a real flood, at this point new concrete sidewalks and gutters of the underpass type are in course of construction, with piles of sand, barrels of cement. The material washed away soon filled up the inlets to the underground gutters and water poured inches high over the sidewalks. Workmen were kept busy for some time recovering material and clearing out the gutters. The choked passages once freed, the water found its way to North street in a swirling volume and the north side of Main street soon looked like a trout brook. Residents were reminded of a similar occurrence about two years ago when for a time it looked as if boats would have to be called into service, in answer to cries for gondolas from pedestrians stranded on street corners.

St. Joseph's Boy Scouts issued victorious, 3 to 2, from the first game of a second baseball series with the St. Mary's choir boys, played at Recreation Park Thursday afternoon. The largest black bass ever caught in the town of Griswold was on exhibition in Carey's garage Friday. Taken on a trolley line, in Pachaug pond, it weighed seven pounds and two ounces, several hours later in Jewett City. "Jerry" Wolf was the lucky fisherman. Although one's gloved fist might have been inserted into this old settler's mouth. Yet it is a "small-mouthed" bass. The species of large or small-mouthed bas is not determined by the extent to which its mouth can be opened, but rather on the point where the hinge of the jaw is located, as in reference to the position of the eye. The hinge of a large-mouthed bass' jaw is well aft of the eye, while the small-mouthed bass' jaw is hinged right under the eye.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Considering the traffic rushes that are so frequent every hour in Danielson, these summer days, one wonders what would happen without a traffic officer on duty, to control the movement of so many machines in such a narrow area.

The women's society of the Congregational church at Brooklyn, held the annual sale of useful and fancy articles Friday afternoon. This effort was in line with plans to raise funds with which to make improvements to the parsonage, which will be later occupied by Rev. John R. Pratt and family.

Next week Saturday will be marked by a general exodus of millmen from towns along the Quinebaug Valley to attend the annual reunion of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, at Rocky Point. A program of sports has been arranged and there will be a dinner.

It is anticipated that Speaker E. L. Darbie of the house of representatives will act as toastmaster when the Windham county legislative outing is held next Thursday afternoon at Rocky Point and that Secretary John Corbett of the Windham county Y. M. C. A. will lead the singing.

What were abandoned farms in outlying sections of the town of Killingly a few years ago are being reclaimed and made to produce very promising crops by foreign farmers, who have taken them over and are engaged in making them like they once were. Finnish and Polish farmers predominate on these old farms. They are tremendous workers and getting much to show for their toil.

Plainfield will get another stretch of concrete roadway, running north from the northerly end of the new road to French's crossing. This will be a link in the all-concrete highway that the state highway commission has planned to extend from Putnam to New Haven, via Danielson, Plainfield, Jewett City, Norwich and New London.

Watches, jewelry, groceries, balls and bats are included in loot found hidden in a shed in the rear of a coal yard at Dayville. The matter has been reported to the state police for investigation. There is an impression about Dayville that the loot was from breaks made by boys or youths.

The Warren homestead, on the Green Hollow road, now occupied by Principal and Mrs. E. R. Warren has been through a very extensive renovation and remodeling this season. This beautiful old place has been the Warren family homestead for generations.

Considerable work will be done at the Service battery rifle range, south of Danielson, in making it ready for use by the men who are to try out for places on the state rifle team that is to represent Connecticut in the national rifle match at Camp Parry, O., in September. The 1,000 yard range is to be cleared of growths of brush and small trees.

Registrars of the town of Killingly were busy Friday making an enrollment of voters on the caucus lists of the republican and democratic parties. This work is done each year, to keep the lists up-to-date, but no re-registration is required of any vote resident here whose name already is on a caucus list.

Today (Saturday) the force of employes of the Paco Manufacturing company round out the first week of their vacation. They also have next week, the two plants of the company re-opening a week from Monday—August 17.

Grange members and others from this section who have been attending Farmers' Week at Storrs have found much to interest them.

In spite of the gas "war" in Massachusetts and the slashing of prices to as low as 20 cents a gallon, the price here remains at 27 cents. Motorists would appreciate at least a skirmish in this territory.

A checkup of the Old Home day at East Killingly shows it a complete success. Financially the church will profit materially. Everything provided for the dinner was sold, and revenue was obtained even from the sale of the clam shells. King George Jacques, who had charge of the dinner, was elated Friday over the success achieved.

Next Thursday's annual field trip of the Windham County Farmers' association will attract a number from this territory. Eastford and Woodstock farms and orchards will be visited on this year's trip.

Sixty Killingly citizens have been drawn for jury service in the superior court of the county for the year beginning in September. This is one-half the number of names submitted by the selectmen, as required by statute.

By charging higher prices than prevail at many a retail store in town and city for equal good fruit and vegetables, roadside stands in country districts through which state highways pass are losing plenty of business. The motorist is not always gullible or loaded with money.

The good record as to absence of cases in the town court during July will not be duplicated in August. Already this month men have been before the court for non-support, intoxication and evasion of tax payments—and the month remains young.

When Rev. William S. Beard comes to the Congregational church September 6 he will tell of his recent observations of missionary work in Mexico and distant parts of the United States.

WESTERLY

It was after 1 p. m., Friday when the regular session of third district court ended, making one of the longest non-stop series hearings before Judge Michael J. Turano in the district court rooms in many weeks.

Frank Tuomi, 43, resident of the town of Charlestown, who was taken into custody on Main street, Bradford, by Westerly Police Officer George Madison, when the horse and buggy driven by him collided with the smair touring car of Octavio Panciera, Wednesday night, about 7:30 o'clock, was was drunk. At the time of Tuomi's arrest a full pint bottle of moonshine whiskey was found under the cushion of the buggy seat and he was reported as being unable to keep on his feet in the highway. His plea was "No, I don't know, mebbe! Not drunk!" An effort was made to secure a Finnish interpreter to explain the case against him, but on court's adjournment none had appeared. Judge Turano continued the case until next Friday and required bonds in the sum of $100 surety, in default of which the accused was returned to the Westerly lockup.

The case of the State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, complainant, vs. Niman Davidson, 40, alleged that the defendant operated a motor vehicle on Bay street, Watch Hill, Aug. 7th, which "was not equipped with at least two powerful brakes, sufficient to stop said auto within a proper distance." He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued to Aug. 14th., for trial, surety being required in the sum of $200 for his appearance.

Frederick A. Jancks, 17, was presented on the complaint that he operated a motor vehicle on Bay street without registry. He pleaded not guilty and his case was continued to Aug. 14, surety in the sum of $200 being required.

Henry M. Button, 60, of Pawcatuck was presented on the complaint that he operated an automobile on Broad street Aug. 6th, without proper brakes. He entered a plea of guilty. Town Solicitor Ferguson told the court that Horace P. Dodge was struck and run over by the truck operated by defendant and that it had been tested and found that the brakes were defective. In reply to a question by the judge, it was learned that it was a Chevrolet truck. Operator Button said in his defense that the bands had been lined two months ago, and tested at the Murphey station, it was said that they were drawn so tightly that they buckled. He was fined $20 and costs.

Walter M. Killam, was arraigned on complaint of Frank Brown, chief of police of Hopkinton, with Attorney Ferguson as town solicitor, wh said that pleading would be made on his amending the complaint, it being changed to "operating a motor vehicle in Hopkinton on Broad street, at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper," from alleged reckless operation. A plea of nolo was entered by defendant. Solicitor Ferguson stated that the automobile was operated at a speed of 35 miles per hour in Ashaway, when two cars were passed in the opposite direction and one in the same direction at the intersection of highways where another driver was caused to bring his auto to a sudden stop and drive off the road. The defendant said that the other car came from the left and that he thought that he had te right of way. He was fined $25 and costs.

The case of Carl Olsen vs. Orlindo Guimaros, represented respevtively by Attorneys Ledwidge and Dunn, which was the cause of a wrangle at the last court session and continued a week, was again continued a week, when Judge Turano said Mr. Dunn had told him that he would be away.

In the case of William H. Rhodes vs. C. H. Broomfield, stipulations were filed by Attorneys Ledwidge and Gallagher on a settlement of the case on payment by the defendant as agreed by the attorneys and parties to the suit.

The case of Pasquale Furcola vs. Generoso Galucci was continued one week.

State Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell vs. Tony Selvarise was on two counts, assault with a dangerous weapon upon Joe Jepe, of Charlestown: and the theft of an automobile. In the first case the respondent was adjudged probably guilty and bound over with bail fixed at $2,000. In the second case the defendant was also adjudged probably guilty and a bond of $2,000 was required. Witnesses appearing besides the parties to the suit were Ralph Graco, of Providence, P. Consolo, also of Providence, Joe Pepe, of Charlestown, painter and farmer and Sergeant Michael Curtin, of Westerly. In the court it was announced by Sheriff Mitchell that word received by him from the Bridgeport police and commissioner of motor vehicles that the car C 391 Conn., was owned by Robert Day, of Bridgeport.

State Annaziato Vuono vs. Joe Grillo was a case continued from last last week. At the conclusion of the hearing Judge Turano stated that no argument was necessary from attorneys, as the could would reserve decision.

The Charlestown trespass and ejectment case of Lucy A. Webster vs. William B. Rathbone, Judge Watts of Wakefield and Attorney Gallagher of Westerly involved the transfer of property and at the conclusion the judge stated that he reserved decision and held the matter in abeyance, pending an agreement between the parties.

OPENING OF NEW HOSPITAL IS SET FOR MONDAY NEXT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 7—Westerly hospital after two years of preparation will be opened to receive patients after eight o'clock Monday morning, August 17th, when the three-quarters of a million dollar up-to-date institution will be complete. It will be open for public inspection Monday and Tuesday of next week, from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 in the evening.

Planned by a number of public-spirited citizens, and made possible through the co-operation of residents of southern Rhode Island and eastern Connecticut, the new institution will be available to patients this month.

It has a capacity of 50 beds, which it is believed will accommodate the needs of Westerly and surrounding villages for several years. The equipment of the hospital is of the most modern type, and the building has been arranged according to latest architectural designs.

The staff will comprise practically all the doctors in the territory served. Those interested in the planning of the institution point out that for some time the town has been fortunate in having numbered among its medical residents not only practitioners, but also surgeons and specialists.

Miss Ethel Doherty, of Holyoke, Mass., was chosen for superintendent several weeks ago, and since that time has been at the hospital daily in charge of the placing of equipment, and in getting the building ready for occupancy.

Officials stated Friday that the opening will be conducted along very informal lines, no written invitations having been sent to anyone. All who live in the section to be benefitted by the hospital are privileged to inspect it. Several women, residents of the various villages, will be at the hospital during both inspection days to show callers through the building.

Among the officials who will also take part in the opening exercises will be Charles Perry, chairman; John O. Mills, treasurer; Edgar P. Maxson, secretary, and Charles J. Butler Charles A. Morgan, Arthur Cottrell, Alberti R. Stillman, Thomas McKenzie and Edward Bradley.

The Pastors returned from their vacation Friday of last week.

Mrs. Amelia Albertine (Frank S.) Linnell, who has been ill much of the time since April, 1924, suffered a relapse the middle of last week and died Saturday morning, Aug. 1st. The funeral service was held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., (S. T.). The bearers were Benjamin Albertine, of Jewett City; Moses A. Linnell, of Manchester, Conn.; Deacon Charles Barstow and Deacon Arthur Edmond. The senior pastor, with John Croft, of Hanover (who had been acquainted with Mrs. Linnell for 28 years), preceded the casket, the latter reading selections of scripture. A trio, Mrs. Emily Bushnell, Mrs. Ida Lager and Burt Goff, rendered two requested hymns, "Abide With Me" and "Lead Kindly Light" at the beginning and close of the service, without accompaniment. The scripture reading was by the assistant pastor and followed by prayer for the bereaved, by the pastor T. Edward Davies. Mr. Croft was the speaker, giving various characteristics he had found in Mrs. Linnell during their long acquaintance. The sermon was followed by the reading of a poem by Mr. Davies, "He Giveth His Beloved Sleep." Mr. Croft led the service in the churchyard and Mr. Davies pronounced the benediction. The flowers were very choice, against a background of beautiful green arranged by friends of Mrs. Linnell in memory of her love for flowers. Relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Moses Linnell, of Moosup; Mrs. G. Clitter, Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. and Mrs. Moses A. Linnell, (Mrs. Linnell is the daughter of Deacon and Mrs. MacMurray, for many years connected with Westminster church), Edward Byrnes, of Irvington, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Albertine, of Jewett City.

Other friends were Mrs. Lulu Cooke, of Providence, and sons, Alexander, of Washington, R. The church was well filled with friends from Westminster and places in the vicinity.

Work on the belfry of the church has progressed so that the bell may be rung as usual next Sunday. AMERICAN SAILOR BOYS

One of the things that seemed to impress the Australians upon the visit of the American fleet was the youthfulness of Uncle Sam's jackies. Most of the sailors appear very young and unsophisticated, "wrote the correspondent of an American newspaper, who added that "the conduct of most of them in the face of many temptations is a tribute to their training and steadiness."

Americans generally would do well to bear in mind that the nation's warships are manned almost exclusively by boys in their teens or not far beyond that age. Scarcely anywhere on land will young Americans of no greater age than theirs be found doing such exacting work or responding to such perfect discipline as do the boys of the navy in their thousands. Dwellers far from the sea who question the desirability of spending large sums annually on the navy would find it interesting to investigate the results achieved by it as a university for boys of limited opportunities at home. A farm boy who has sailed around the world, who has engaged intensively in any one of the almost innumerable tasks on board ship that require mastery of scientific instruments, who has been taught order and discipline and promptness and thoroughness as part of the daily routine, is provided with an equipment that should materially aid him in making a success in life.

The boy away from home, if he has character, will choose good companions. Much, of course, depends on the port, whether he is an inmate of an expensive boarding school or is swabbing the decks of a battleship. The navy swarms with boys from the inland states. In far away Australia they are winning respect for themselves and their flag by their behavior, which is reported to be "well behaved and courteous, with a percentage of wild spirits neither greater nor less than could be expected among a similar number of sailors of other nationalities."

It is safe to say, however, that the average age of the American boys is less by years than is the average age of sailors manning a fleet of any other nationality.

FARMING VIEWS

Seven weeks of visiting in agricultural states has convinced Secretary Jardine that, generally speaking, the farmers are not insisting on additional federal legislation as an aid in solving their problems. Taking the country as a whole, he believes that the economic status of the rural residents is improving slowly, but surely. The growth and development of the cooperative movement, in his opinion, has great possibilities of benefit. So convinced is he of this, that the department of agriculture is to be placed whole-heartedly at the disposal of such agencies.

Within the last year those intimately in touch with farming have been better satisfied, although there is some reason for thinking that Secretary Jardine finds somewhat more contentment than actually exists. As far as satisfaction has succeeded dissatisfaction it has been due to the working of natural laws, which have removed burdensome surpluses that depressed farm prices. But it was not so much the quotations on their commodities that disturbed farmers as it was the relatively higher cost of manufactured commodities which they bought. It was case of price maladjustment. Near the end of last year there was an approximate balance between manufacturing and agriculture.

To the extent that artificial stimulation of manufacturing prevails, to that extent, at least, may we be prepared to face the danger of more or less complaint from agriculture that is not so protected. Murmurings that can be established as justified must not be ignored. It was only a short while ago that Governor Lowden of Illinois, who knows farming thoroughly from the inside as well as the outside, voiced a warning that the agricultural situation still was far from satisfactory. Such responsible utterances are not to be forgotten.

Legislation, it is true, cannot effect the permanent stabilization of farming. There is logic in opposition to price fixing schemes. It is a logic though, that applies to other lines of activity as much as it does to agriculture.

POPULATION PROPHECIES

According to a prediction by Dr. J. R. Reed of Johns Hopkins university, the United States has a margin of only 65,000,000 to grow in population before it will reach such a saturation point that further growth must stop because of a lack of food to support additional people. That time is not sufficiently imminent to cause any great concern for this or several succeeding generations, but such a speculation is not without its value. It warns against the exploitation of resources, of which there has been much in this nation. That is a crime that has been committed against timber and minerals, and even against land itself. It used to be said of many American farmers that they mined the soil, but did not restore the necessary qualities it must possess if high average crop production was to continue. There has been a vast improvement on that score. So-called exhausted farms are becoming rarer. Either the mining process has been stopped this side of destruction, or the land has been reclaimed by the planting of legumes and other methods. If deterioration were general and uninterrupted, even the present population would be in ultimate straits.

Science has stepped in between man and privation and, in view of what has already been accomplished, there is no reason to be pessimistic about the future granted that reasonable prudence is exercised. If dense ignorance prevailed, among all except a few people, there might be some reason for believing that the lack of knowledge might bring about a catastrophe but individual knowledge is a great governor when it comes to adjusting population and resources. The expert view is that it will be a century yet before our present 115,000,000 grow to 200,000,000. By that time science may have enabled man to stimulate production to such a point that additional tens of millions could be taken care of without anybody going on short rations.

BRIDGING LAKE CHAMPLAIN

Hearings that have been held by a joint commission from New York and Vermont to determine whether a bridge or bridges shall be thrown across Lake Champlain have resulted in the discovery that there is a strong sentiment in favor of two bridges. If one only is to be constructed at the present time, it is urged that it be located with reference to a second to be built later. Four possible sites, all along the narrow southern extremity of the lake, have been under consideration, by the commission. At most other points the lake is too wide for any bridge, its extreme width being thirteen miles, but at the northern end it narrows again, and there are many islands, which would facilitate the work of bridge building.

It seems to be altogether probable that at least one bridge will be built. Motor traffic has been a cause for the return to the construction of toll bridges. Motorists who have been subjected to the annoyance of waiting weary hours for their turn on a ferry boat would welcome the opportunity to pay tolls on a bridge in place of the charge on a ferry. The new bridge across the Hudson at Bear Mountain is a toll bridge, and a bridge across the Kennebec at Bath, Me., is to be made to pay for itself by the tolls collected and the rental from a railroad. The toll plan would probably be applied to a bridge across Lake Champlain.

Access to a route and region of rare scenic beauty and no little historic interest would be provided by a Lake Champlain bridge or bridges. Lake Champlain itself is set in surroundings of great natural beauty and it may be approached on the one hand through the Adirondack region in New York and, on the other, through the Green Mountains in Vermont. Spanned as now proposed it should be an added attraction rather than an obstacle to travel through northern New England and New York and the hopes of the people that it will soon be bridged in accordance with the joint action of the two states can well be shared by people elsewhere.

A SAVING PEOPLE

While the trend of the age is sometimes deplored as that of reckless extravagance, especially in the United States where "easy come, easy go" might almost be called a national habit, the figures for increase in savings bank deposits do something to dispel that impression. In the month from June 1 to July 1, the deposits in 902 savings banks increased $124,000,000. The total savings in these institutions on the first of July were just slightly under eight billions of dollars. These savings, more than bank clearings, give one an understanding of the widening distribution of wealth in this country. For the money in only small measure is the money of the rich. It is the money of wage earners and salary workers, the farmers and small merchants, the housewives and domestic servants. Nearly all of it can be put down as earned income as distinguished from income from investments, gifts and legacies. The savings are powerful defenses against the woes and ills of rainy days and are also protections against failures, panics and money shortages.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It is commonly remarked that in society when conversation lags, and one is at his wit's end to know what to talk about, it is always allowable to fall back upon the weather. And there is really a good reason for this, because it is about the only thing many people are interested in. Another reason is the weather is the most apparent thing in the world. It comes the nearest of anything to our sense perception. It is a matter in which everybody thinks that he knows something about, and occasionally you will run across a person who does know just a little. All this we can stand. But what "gets our goat," especially if we are a bit thin-skinned, is this everlasting growling about the weather which with some people is never right. It's too hot or cold, too dry or wet, too much sun or too little. These dry weather growlers ought to be sent to the Falkland Islands where it rains most of the time; and the wet complainers to mid-Arabia, where over large sterile tracts hangs a sky of almost eternal serenity, and where rain is practically unknown.

Does it occur to anybody that at present we are having altogether too many grade-crossing accidents? Because of the amazing number of automobiles now in use there are many accidents, more or less serious, every day. On this account there is much said and written about the reckless, careless driver, and most of it is justified by the facts. But all the recklessness and carelessness cannot be laid at the door of the motor driver. Take one of the recent accidents at Bishop's Crossing—which is fast getting the evil reputation of being one of Connecticut's greatest death-traps. A long freight train is split in two to allow traffic to pass, thus obscuring all vision of approaching trains, but with no watchman on duty. Result, two in an automobile are killed by a passenger train. Could anything be more careless?

Theodore Roosevelt was one of those virile personalities that attract us at every point of contact. He is like a mountain peak that looms up bigger just in proportion as we get away from it. The following anecdote will be interesting to all boys who find that they have sub-normal bodies. When he was a little, thin, pale-faced boy his father is reported to have said to him: "Theodore, I think I have given to you a brain. But if you ever have a body, I am afraid that you will have to make it for yourself. I have fitted up a gymnasium in the attic for your use. You may start today if you will." Using that wonderful brain at once—which was one of his characteristics through life—he attacked that gymnasium with his usual impetuosity. And he kept at it and at it with grim determination until something, just short of the miraculous, occurred: that little, thin, sickly body was transfigured into a physique that resembled wrought iron. It was the logical answer to an iron resolution.

The Oregon school law passed by the legislature of 1922 has recently been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court of that state. The purport of that law was that all children up to sixteen years should attend the public schools. From many points of view the law was unjust. It transferred the supervision of children from the parent to the state, which created an unnatural paternalism. No one will take more interest in the schooling of children than their parents. It did injustice to many private schools that had established a great reputation, as, for instance, a fine military academy that was the pride of the state. This law was aimed at parochial schools, but its sponsors overshot the mark, as seen in the supreme court's decision.

If one is intimate with the manner in which human needs have been met in the past, he ought not to pass any sleepless nights in worrying over the question of supply and demand. And yet he ought not to be unmindful of the future outlook in regard to some important commodities, and to make provisions for possible shortages as far as possible. Take for instance, the automobile industry. The output last year was three and a half million passenger cars and trucks and the demand on gasoline was almost nine billion gallons. To be sure when gasoline gives out, if it does, something else may be found as a substitute. And yet it is enough to make us thoughtful. We must remember that substitutes never come apart from intelligent human research. The latent potencies of the universe respond only to earnest investigation on our part. These substitutes do not come simply because we fear, or weep or even because we pray, but only as we apply scientific methods to the field of nature.

The attention of America, and to a less extent that of the civilized world, has been centered upon the Scopes trial in Tennessee, now fortunately concluded. It has been a strong reminder of religious feuds and trials in the Middle Ages, and the outcome has been just about as satisfactory. It lacked some of the thrills of the former religious trials in that nobody was burned at the stake. One who followed the trend of this court could hardly help feeling that William Jennings Bryan, with all his wild political fancies, and antiquated religious views, was far more dignified and sincere than the tricky Chicago lawyer who asked him, "If he believed that Jonah swallowed the whale." This lawyer was very anxious that the youth of Tennessee should have educational justice, but how about the justice that was given to little, murdered Bobby Franks?

What Matthew says (6:13) is good advice for all of us to follow, and surely many of us need it badly, "but when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." In modern speech it means, if you give a ham to the Jones family who are down and out, don't put it into the personal column of a daily newspaper "to be seen and read of men." It isn't generally considered as good form. And another thing, you, John Smith, the donor, mustn't feel that the Jones family are under obligations to black your shoes because you gave them the ham. Neither are morally bound to vote for you when you are up for dog warden. When you give a ham—presumably with your right hand—just keep your left hand behind your back so that it won't hand out the information to the whole neighborhood. Remember what it says in your Bible: "What shall it profit a man if he gains all the souls in the world, if he thinks he can buy them with hams?"

Of course there is a converse side to this proposition as to all others. The beneficiary of a gift or kindly act is not always a saint. At least I have heard that such instances have been known in Texas and Alaska, but probably not in such highly civilized states as Connecticut and Rhode Island. To put the matter bluntly it is something like this: Some people are so constituted that if you give them a slice of bread and butter before the week is out they will demand a whole barrel of flour. They will keep a record of the dates on which bread and butter came walking by a sort of divine right into their pantries. Sometimes they will say: "I didn't know but what you'd bring along a chocolate cake this week, but it was kind of you to bring the bread." Mark Twain was right when he said: "Human nature is as funny as anything."

POOR THINGS

The pretty girl who looked too painfully neat and well brushed to be accounted chic or stylish ran across the other girl when she entered the lunch room. The other girl was the last word in ensemble suit, platinum fur and choker beads, and she smiled kindly.

"Do sit down with me here, Adele," she begged. "Why, I haven't seen you since we were in school together! Whatever have you been doing with yourself and how are you?"

"Oh, you've been abroad most of the time, Harriet," pointed out the first girl, cheerfully. "And I've been right here! I read about you from time to time."

"Oh that!" the platinum fur girl said, a trifle disdainfully. "Awful bore traveling abroad with the fussy customs and everything. Oh, yes, we had a good enough trip, I suppose. It made me utterly furious, though, to come home with a trunkful of new clothes and find exactly the same things in the local shops! What's the use of going abroad?"

The other girl blinked a bit. "You'd think it was lots of use if you never got away from Chicago at all," she told her friend, grimly. "That's a stunning affair you're wearing now, Harriet!"

"Oh, this rag," muttered the other girl. I saw one yesterday on a girl walking down Michigan avenue. You aren't engaged or married or anything, are you, Adele?"

The first girl laughed amusedly. "Why should I be, when the men demand so much?" she asked, with an expressive sweep of her hands at her own attire. "Most of them don't even see me, I admit, Harriet, because I know just how dowdy I look—but anyway, my mother had been dreadfully ill for a year, dad had business misfortunes and most of what I earned has gone to help at home. We're pulling out all right, though."

There was frank horror in the eyes of the platinum fur girl. "You can't even keep your own money that you have to earn?" she gasped. "Why—why, I think that's simply dreadful! It's unfair!"

The first girl broke her roll with deliberation. "Well," she admitted, "there's been too much worry and anxiety for months at our house to let us think of fun. Mother is getting better now and father is doing well again, and I'm—"

"Whatever you do, don't worry!" declared the platinum fur girl. "It makes wrinkles and ruins your complexion and, anyhow, I don't see why you should be expected to take the burden of the family on your shoulders when right now you should be care free and looking out for number one! A husband—"

"Oh," said the other girl with a whimsical raise of her brows, "getting married doesn't bother me—I'm too busy! And, really, I haven't minded working and everything, Harriet, because I've been so glad I could help. They appreciate it so! I like parties, but I can live without 'em, and if no man is going to like me because I don't look like a Paris model I guess I'll have to live and die unwept and unsung so to say! I suppose you are engaged?"

"No-o-no," admitted the platinum fur girl, a trifle reluctantly. "I'm not mercenary, but I simply won't tie myself down to any man unless he can take care of me."

"Counting pennies doesn't appeal to me at all!" she explained. "I just can't make you out! You look so cheerful and I can't see what you have to be cheerful about! Oh, whatever became of Fred Frome, who used to be in our crowd—that big, fine looking fellow—you remember him? I always liked Fred!"

The first girl wore the hint of a smile. "Fred went west and bought a ranch," she related. "He is doing well, I think—I hear from him, you see!"

"You do!" said the platinum fox girl. She surveyed her friend with speculative wonder.

"Why, he's never written me a word and—oh, well a rancher! Mercy, but you marry him and bury yourself out there!"

The first girl turned a pretty pink. "I don't know why you should think that," she murmured hurriedly and got up to go. She noted the petulant lines about her friend's lips as she said good-by and to herself muttered, "Poor thing!" as she briskly headed back to her office.

The platinum girl watched her departure and critically noted that her garb was at least two years old and a bit shiny. "Poor thing!" she said and shook her head with condescending kindness.—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Edouard Herriot, who has accepted an invitation to speak at the annual Golden Rule dinner of the Near East Relief in New York city next month, is an eminent French scholar and statesman who for a time last year held the premiership. He was born at Troyes, near Paris, in 1872. After completing his studies he became a professor at a Lyons high school, embarked on a literary career with several essays, married and was elected a municipal councillor of Lyons. As mayor of the compactly industrial city of Lyons, he achieved a reputation for dependability and efficiency among his businesslike constituents and became known as a persuasive orator. For a short time during the war he was minister of public works and supplies. Personally, M. Herriot is inclined to corpulence, somewhat neglectful of his appearance, a pipe-smoker, and a lover of good food and wine. He is a great reader and collector of books.

Sunday Morning Talk

Treasures in Heaven.

"But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." Matt. 6: 20.

If some one of us had money invested in some mine or scheme which we had never seen but which we firmly believed would prove a rich investment, his thoughts would often turn to that place. To him it would be as real as if he had seen it with his eyes. In his heart he would feel rich in the possession of that unseen property.

Such ought to be the Christian's faith and the Christian's feeling. He has rich possessions, unseen, but as real as the things that are seen. His faith ought to be such as to make these things real to his heart and cause him to feel rich in his unseen possession.

But many of us are lacking in this faith which makes unseen things real to our minds. We believe, after a fashion, in the realities of the world to come. We assent to the teaching of Scripture on this subject. But, after all, it is little more than assent not a real living faith which takes possession of our hearts and controls our live. Notwithstanding our belief in the Bible, we live as if there were little outside of this world worth striving for. We look but little to the things unseen.

Here is the cause of our want of zeal and of joy in our religion. These unseen things are not real to our minds as the things that are seen, and we are not earnestly striving to make them ours. We have faith, but it does not amount to a firm conviction of the reality of that which is beyond this world and does not cause us to set our eyes upon it. And for the same reason we do not feel rich in the possession of heavenly treasures. To our minds they are not only unseen but, in a great measure, unreal. If only we had the faith to look upon them as real, it would fill our lives with zeal and our hearts with joy.

From Small Beginnings

Gray, the Farmer's Son, the Great Botanist.

A 17 year old farmer's boy in Oneida county, N. Y., set out one spring day to make a collection of all the flowers that grew on his father's farm. He had gone to the local academy, and he expected to study medicine in the Fairfield Medical school. His collection of spring flowers was his entrance into his life work.

Eight years from that day he began to write about what he had found. In that time, 1835, there had been little study of the wonderful plant life of the United States. The farmer's boy who studied what was closest at hand—at his very door—found an almost unexplored field for greatness.

Until he was 78 years of age, Asa Gray studied the botany of the United States. Lovingly and painstakingly, and with wonderful ability, he observed the works of nature.

He wrote many books that have helped others to understand and love plant life. "Gray's Botany" is one of the best and most popular scientific books ever written. Asa Gray's learning became so great that Harvard university made the farmer's boy professor of natural history, and maintained him in that office 46 years.

At Harvard, Asa Gray built up a department of study that has influenced hundreds of young men to devote their lives to the work in which he himself was so profoundly interested.

His books, his papers, his many botanical studies and his great influence over his pupils formed a life-work of the highest value.

Out of the farmer boy's interest in things close at hand, and out of an earnest, quiet life, Asa Gray built an imperishable fame.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Finds a Bridge

A bridge somewhere you're bound to find,
Unless you quit or lag behind.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse was on the wrong side of the Smiling Pool. There it lay, the dimpling Smiling Pool, between Danny and home. Danny is such a little fellow that the Smiling Pool was as big to him as a lake would be to you. But Danny didn't worry. You see, he had just had one narrow escape after another, and he was so thankful to be alive, and not in some one's stomach, that he didn't waste any time worrying over his present difficulties.

Danny had filled his stomach, and so was feeling in very good spirits. He had told the Merry Little Breeze that he guessed he could find some way of getting back. He knew he could swim if he had to, but it would be a long swim and a very dangerous one. So Danny decided it would be much better to try the Laughing Brook, and see if he couldn't find a way across that. Danny started along down toward the lower end of the Pool. By and by he came to where the Smiling Pool ended, and the Laughing Brook once more started on its way toward the Big River. There were grassy banks, and Danny likes grassy banks. Danny always likes grass. He likes it to eat, and he likes it because he can travel about in it quite hidden from sharp eyes looking for him.

Danny looked across the Laughing Brook. It was quite wide here. Danny knew he could swim, but he hadn't forgotten that pickerel he had seen in the Smiling Pool. And so the very thought of swimming made him shivery. "Perhaps I can find a place where it isn't so wide," thought Danny.

The Black Shadows were creeping across the Green Meadows, and jolly, round, red Mr. Sun was disappearing under his rosy cloud blankets as he went to bed behind the Purple Hills. Danny liked it. Danny is one of those people who really do not care whether it is day or night. He sleeps when he is sleepy, eats when he is hungry and just runs around when he feels like it. Being very small, as you know he is, he feels a little safer at night, when the Black Shadows have come creeping across the Green Meadows, than he does in daylight. There are so many sharp eyes looking for him, and, then, it is not as easy for those sharp eyes to see him. So when Danny has any traveling to do he prefers to do it after dark.

Over in the distance, toward the Green Forest, Danny heard the dreadful voice of Hooty the Owl. Over in the Old Orchard he heard the voice of Hooty's little cousin, Spooky the Screech Owl. Danny listened a minute.

"That's all right," said he, talking to himself in that funny little squeaky voice of his. "There is nothing to fear from those two fellows. I know where they are, and here's hoping they'll stay there. Now, if Reddy Fox and Old Man Coyote keep away, I guess I'll get home all right."

He started right along down the bank of the Laughing Brook

Just then he heard Reddy Fox bark way over on the Green Meadows beyond the dear old Briar Patch, and he heard Mrs. Reddy answer. A few moments later he heard Old Man Coyote's voice up in the Old Pasture. If Danny hadn't heard it so often he might have thought that he was listening to many voices instead of one. Those voices were a great relief to Danny. He wasted no time now. He started right along down the bank of the Laughing Brook, keeping as much under the overhanging grass as he could. He was looking for a narrower place that he could swim across.

He had just about made up his mind that there wasn't a narrower place when those banks seemed to draw together, and then Danny came to a mossy old log that made a bridge right across.

OVERLAND SIX

Price Reductions

Standard Sedan Now $895

DeLuxe Sedan Now $1095

f.o.b Toledo

The plain fact of the matter is that, following its first introduction seven months ago, every one of these big super-value Sixes sold, has sold another. Hence, with volume automatically doubled, production costs have been materially reduced. Now, the price to you is correspondingly scaled down! ((Before you commit yourself finally to any other car in this price-class, LOOK ABOUT YOU. Don't let your judgment be clouded by the lure of suddenly lowered prices, for prices cut beyond a sane and reasonable level must mean, INEVITABLY, a proportionate CUT in the QUALITY of the car. So, don't be stampeded. Before you buy—INVESTIGATE. Shop carefully around. Check up on ALL moderate-priced Sixes. Then match your findings, point for point, against this big Overland Six. As an experienced owner you must then admit that never before, for as little as $895, have you been offered so much of QUALITY and of VALUE in ANY automobile.

NOW DOES ALL HER WORK

Has No Backache, No Bad Feelings Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Drove Her Illness Away

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"I was in a badly run-down condition and I would get weak spells and terrible headaches. I felt so badly last year that I could not do any housecleaning. The minute I would lift or stoop it seemed as if I was going to fall to pieces. I told a neighbor how I felt and she said that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was surely the right thing for me. I took four bottles then and in the fall of the year I took three. I had been treated by a doctor but he gave me an iron tonic and that did not help me. It seemed that the tonic did not have in it what the Vegetable Compound did. That gave me the strength and ambition I needed and I have gained in weight. This year before I started to clean house I got four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and am taking it right along. I tell all my friends about it and how much good it does me. They can notice it because I have gained in weight. I weigh 118 now and do all my work myself again."—Mrs. EMIL O. BRANDENBURG, 651 37th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

TO MAKE AN ESTIMATE OF THE EXTENT OF CRIME

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—Informed that in many cities crime conditions are so bad that police deliberately conceal the truth, the sponsors of the national crime commission have decided to appoint a committee on criminal statistics to make a true estimate of the extent of crime in this country.

Frederick L. Hoffman, of Newark, N. J., statistician of homicide and suicide has offered his services and the commission will place him at the head of a trained staff of investigators. At present according to leaders of the movement, there is no unified system of tabulation and it is difficult to estimate conditions accurately.

"As soon as the commission begins to function, law enforcement officials will be invited to explain the details of their systems for crime suppression, and to make suggestions it is hoped in this way to bring about more harmony between the police, district attorneys, the judiciary and penal officers.

At present, it was said, lack of co-operation between these officials is "painfully apparent," often bordering on open friction.

Business men's organizations have asked the commission to concentrate on an investigation of business frauds but while this will be inclined in the survey, the first fight will be made on holdups, crimes of violence and the free use of firearms.

TWO MACHINES DAMAGED IN CRASH AT NORWICH TOWN

Walter Madak, of 84 Sherman street, Norwich, will appear in court this (Saturday) morning, to answer to a charge of reckless driving, brought against him by State Policeman Arthur Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks, who investigated an accident at Wightman's switch, Norwich Town, about 11:15 o'clock Friday night.

Madak, driving a Chevrolet sedan, registration N 4800, was heading towards Norwich and a Ford suburban, registration L 1977, owned by Morris Benizerchner, was headed towards Yantic. The two came together just beyond the switch, with the result that the Chevrolet was disabled, losing the left front wheel, bending an axle, and suffering a bent fender. The Ford was struck about midway on the dashboard on the left side, breaking it back against the frame.

Officer Whitmarsh was called and following his investigation summoned the parties concerned to the city court at 9 o'clock this morning. Madak is charged with reckless driving, marks made by the broken wheel, as the car came to a stop, indicating that the Chevrolet was being driven in the middle of the highway at the time of the accident.

The wrecked Chevrolet was hauled to the Adams' Tavern garage for the night but the Ford was able to proceed under its own power.

TROLLEY AND MACHINE WERE IN COLLISION

Early Friday evening, a machine owned by James Longistor, No. 3 State street, New London, and driven by Thomas Millaras, of No. 13 Hobron street, New London, and a Connecticut company trolley car, collided at Thames square. The New London machine bumped into a machine owned and driven by Charles Podziewski, of No. 114 High street.

The front and rear mudguards, a spring and bumper on the New London machine were damaged and a left rear mudguard, tail light, and rim brace on the Norwich machine were damaged. After the accident it developed that Millaras did not have a driver's license with him and he was summoned to appear in the city court this (Saturday) morning.

MACHINE SMASHES FENCE AT OTIS LIBRARY

While backing on Church street about 2:15 o'clock Friday afternoon, intending to return across Union square, Steve Gianaris, of 45 McKinley avenue, noticed a car in back of him and to avoid a crash swung his car sharply to the left, resulting in its going onto the sidewalk and crashing against the heavy iron fence on the Church street side of Otis library, breaking down a section of the fence.

The blow was a sharp one and a piece of iron about five inches long flew through the air, smashing one of the large windows near the entrance to the library and landed on the chair of the librarian, which had been vacated but shortly before the accident.

State Policeman Joseph Bobnick of the Groton barracks, who was in the city giving tests for motor vehicle operators, investigated the accident. Gianaris visited the library and agreed to settle for the damage.

The car driven by Attorney Henry Harris of Westerly was struck a light blow by the Gianaris machine as it swung by, but suffered no damage.

MACHINES COLLIDE ON WEST MAIN ST.

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon a car driven by William G. Stinson of 171 Laurel Hill avenue and a Porteous & Mitchell company delivery truck came together in front of McMahon's store on West Main street, both cars being damaged to some extent. The Stinson car was the least damaged, having bent fenders, while the P. & M. truck had a fender bent, hub cap broken and axle bent, being put out of commission. It is understood that Mr. Stinson agreed to settle for the damage. The accident was reported at police headquarters.

TO DISREGARD PETITIONS OF BANNED DOCTORS

Directions to the state department of health to disregard the petition of the eclectic examining board regarding reinstatement of fifty-five eclectic physicians whose licenses to practice medicine in Connecticut had been revoked by the state council of health, are contained in an opinion given to the department by Attorney General Frank E. Healy.

The licenses of the banned doctors were revoked on request of the eclectic examining board following the grand jury inquiry, the board in a signed statement declaring that fraud had been perpetrated in obtaining the licenses. This board consisted of Dr. Ernest A. Markham, Dr. James E. Hair, Dr. Ralph L. White and Dr. John O. Perry. Subsequently, however, the banned physicians obtained control of the board and elected to its membership some of their own number so that the petition for the rescinding of the original request for the revocation of licenses was signed by Dr. Perry, Modestine O. Coppom, Raymond C. Prisque and Anthony R. Campbell.

The opinion of the attorney general will be received by the state council of health at its meeting on Monday, and in accordance with his opinion the petition of the examining board, will not be granted. The petition was filed with the commissioner of health just prior to the time the eclectic examining board, as such, went out of existence.

The next action, if any, will probably be the taking of steps leading to the prosecution of physicians whose licenses have been revoked. The attorney general had previously ruled the physicians would be permitted to practice pending a decision of the supreme court, the high court deciding the council had the power to revoke licenses, and now that it has been decided the licenses should not be reissued, more definite measures may be taken.

DISCORD PREVAILS AMONG THE FREE SONS OF ITALY

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—The conflict between the New York state lodge, Free Sons of Italy, and the national association, growing out of the alleged attempts of the parent body to inject fascist sympathies into the organization, reached a climax today when the local lodge, in convention here, voted almost unanimously to secede.

Announcement of the result of the poll brought a storm of applause from the 267 delegates, representing nearly 30,000 lodge members throughout the state. It was announced only one vote was cast in opposition.

Justice Salvatore A. Cottilo, grand master of the lodge, who has vigorously promoted the fight for withdrawal, both on the convention floor and prior to the convention, presided.

Adoption of the session resolution came as a sequel to the recent decision of Supreme Court Justice Levy, who, when the fight was carried into the courts, ruled the New York lodge was a distinct organization, having the right to ally with other organizations or to operate alone.

COLUMBIA

Harold Woodward, son of Madison Woodward of Merrythought Farm, who was graduated from Connnecticut Agricultural college in the class of 1925, has been elected Assistant Poultry Professor at the State College of Georgia, at Athens, Ga., where he will teach Poultry Husbandry. Mr. Woodward married July 3rd Miss Blanche Wilcox, of Pomfret, Conn.

Doris Oehlers of Bloomfield, N. J., who is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Champlin at the Green was struck by an automobile on Thursday forenoon near the post office. The machine was slowing up to stop at the P. O. when the child ran out from behind naother car. She was struck by the bumper and thrown into the ditch, but owing to the fact that the car was moving slowly, she escaped with scratches and bruises.

Wm. B. Prince of Cleveland, Ohio, called on his aunt, Mrs. Mary Yeomans recently.

Miss Patty Stiles, of Brooklyn, who has been spending part of the summer at the lake, recently sailed for Europe for two years's stay, to study art.

Mrs. David Allen, of Utland, Cal., and Mrs. Frederick Rice of Pittsfield, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rice.

A letter has been received by a resident of the Green from Mrs. Adelaide Leonard, for many years a resident of this town. She announces her recent marriage, with Henry Lapham of Pasadena, Cal., for whom she has been acting as housekeeper since the death of his wife. Mr. Lapham is 75 years of age, and Mrs. Lapham 76.

The lawn party which was to have been held by the grange Wednesday evening was postponed on account of the weather, and was held Thursday evening. A large number of Grangers and their friends were present, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The grounds between the chapel and town hall were attractively decorated with Japanese lanterns. Music was furnished by the Columbia band. A hot dog roast served as a fitting climax to the affair.

Silence may be golden, but a lot of talk savors of brass.

TAFTVILLE A. A. WILL MEET PIONEERS OF GROTON TODAY

This afternoon at the Providence street grounds the Taftville A. A. will hook up in a battle with the Pioneer club of Groton in what is expected to be a good game. The Pioneers come to Taftville with a record of having beaten some of the fastest ball clubs in the state which includes South Manchester, Fort Trumbull stars and other teams of like calibre. This club is noted for its heavy hitters and it will take the best that the Taftville A. A. can produce to win.

Manager Troland will send Lloyd Jarvis to the mound against the visitors with Lefty Dugas, Speed Gaudette and Gauthier held in reserve. Troland will have his regular lineup with Stanley, who hit a homer in the last game, in the outfield. Taftville has been playing strong baseball during the past few weeks and it takes a mighty strong team to win against them.

TAFTVILLE A. A. BEAT GEER'S ALL STAR BALL TEAM, 8 TO 2

The Taftville A. A. had an easy time defeating the Geer All Stars, 8 to 2, knocking the ball to all corners of the lot. Lloyd Jarvis led the hitting with three bingles. The game was called in the sixth inning because of darkness. The score:

KEARNS SAYS FITZSIMMONS CLAIM IS A JOKE

CHICAGO, Aug. 7—(A. P.)—Jack Kearns today characterized as a "joke" the report from Los Angeles that Floyd Fitzsimmons has Jack Dempsey's signed contract to fight Harry Wills at Michigan City in September. He seemed unconcerned about the reports and declared it meant nothing.

Speaking of the reported signing for a Gene Tunney-Harry Wills fight, he said:

"Tunney is not in Wills' class. He should be fighting welterweights like Walker. Wills should beat Tunney easily if they are matched."

PANTHERS SWAMP HARTFORD UNDER DELUGE OF HITS

WORCESTER, Aug. 7—(AP)—Worcester blanked Hartford today 13 to 0. A new pitcher was on the mound for Worcester, R. Edwards who came from St. Petersburg, Fla., team. He held the leaders to four scattered hits, batting well also, making a home run in the third inning with Smith on. Kibbie made a homer in the eighth with Wilson and Eayrs on. Score:

Worcester	0 4 3 3 0 0 0 3 x—13

Two base hits, Thomas, Wilson, Smith. Home runs, Kibbie, R. Edwards.

FITZSIMMONS COMING EAST WITH DEMPSEY'S SIGNATURE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7.—(A. P.)—Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City, Ind., promoter, left today for Chicago and New York with the signature of Jack Dempsey to an agreement for a title bout with Harry Wills, July 4, 1926, at Michigan City, Ind., it was announced by R. H. Benton, of Dempsey's staff. Benton said Chicago financial interests would back the bout and that arrangements were completed last night between Fitzsimmons and Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills.

EAST HOLDS ADVANTAGE OVER WEST IN INTERSECTIONAL TENNIS MATCHES

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 7—(A. P.)—Taking three of four matches, tennis stars representing the east head a decisive edge over their opponents from the west today at the end of the first half of the two day intersectional battle.

Robert and Howard Kinsy of San Francisco, in the final match of the afternoon, scored the west's only triumph when they staged an uphill struggle to conquer William T. Tilden and George Lott, young Chicago star recruited for the east's forces.

Displaying the best tennis they have shown so far in the east, the Kinsey's outplayed and outgeneralled their opponents after dropping the first set, gaining the match by scores of 2-6, 6-2, 7-5. Tilden was forced to fight practically a lone hand against the national champions after the first set, with Lott stroking erratically, and the singles king was not equal to the task of breaking up the brilliant teamwork of the coast brothers.

The other doubles encounter went to the east, when R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards volleyed their way to victory over William M. Johnston and Clarence Griffin, San Francisco veterans, 6-2, 6-4, while both singles tussels also went to the Atlantic seaboard representatives. Dr. George King of New York took the measure of John Hennessey of Indianapolis in short order, 6-1, 6-1 and Manuel Alonzo, Spanish Davis cup ace, rallied to upset Cranton Holman, the young Stanford University star, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Tomorrow, with five additional matches scheduled, will have added significance because the feature singles match, bringing together Vincent Richards and William M. Johnston, will have the status of a test to determine which is to get the number 2 singles position on the Davis cup team.

Tilden already has been chosen to fill the No. 1 position again and is expected to pair with Johnston in the doubles, on the strength of their victories this week over Richards and Williams, but "Little Bill" is making a keen fight to replace Richards in the singles. The two rivals have not met in the singles since the east-west matches a year ago, when Richards triumphed in straight sets.

ATHLETICS TAKE EVEN BREAK WITH INDIANS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—(AP)—After dropping the first game to the Cleveland Indians, 10 to 4, the Athletics came back in the second today and won, 2 to 0. Rommel and Uhle tangled in a hurling duel in the second game and the Mackmen were held hitless until Cochrane led off with a single in the seventh inning. Simmons followed by hitting his 18th home run of the season, scoring Cochrane ahead of him. The Indians' two hits, both singles, were made by Spurgeon in the second inning and Jamieson in the third.

The game was played in sixty-five minutes, said to be the shortest ever played in the American league. The shortest game heretofore in the junior circuit was 68 minutes between Chicago and Philadelphia on Aug. 28, 1915. The shortest game in the National league was between Philadelphia and New York on Sept. 28, 1919, and was played in 51 minutes. The score:

PIRATES NOSE OUT DODGERS IN THE NINTH

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Pittsburgh came from behind and scored three runs in the ninth today to win from Brooklyn, 10 to 9, a single by Spencer driving home Traynor with the winning run. As the Giants lost again, the Pirates are now three and one-half games ahead of the champions.

Max Carey and Burleigh Grimes came to blows near second base while the Pirates were at bat in the seventh inning. Carey sought to return to second base after starting for third and collided with the Robins' twirler, who stood on the base line. Grimes started to swing his fists. Both were put out of the game. SCHOELL TO FIGHT DAVE SHADE TONIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—(A. P.)—In a ten round bout here tomorrow night Frankie Schoell, of Buffalo, Pacific coast welterweight champion will try to down the world's title hope of Dave Shade of Concord, Calif., the leading contended for the belt worn by Mickey Walker.

A Shade-Walker match has been in the making for some time, with the New York Athletic commission insisting that the champion meet Shade before taking on other challengers. A victory for Shade tomorrow will clarify his claim for a chance at the title. If Schoell wins, he will be in line for a crack at Walker. Shade is a favorite in the betting.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(A. P.)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California extended her conquest on American courts today by eliminating Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Los Angeles, a former national title holder, 7-5, 6-2. The victory carried her into the semi-final round of the New York State Women's championship.

Mrs. Mallory worked her way into the bracket by winning from Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., 6-3, 6-4, while Miss Goss advanced by eliminating Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

Tomorrow's semi-final matches bring together Miss Ryan and Mrs. Mallory in the lower half and Miss Wills and Miss Goss in the upper half.

The finals are scheduled for Sunday.

RAIN HALTS PLAYGROUND SWIMMING CONTESTS

The second of the Playground swimming meets was held Friday afternoon at Mohegan park and although the day was not ideal the attendance was fine. The meet was nearly over when a brisk shower sent the spectators to cover and the swimmers to shore to protect their clothes. When the atmosphere cleared it was found that only Ed Sullivan's team had stayed and were ready to continue, so the meet was called to be swam off later. The Falls team was leading at the time with Lake street second and Greeneville third. The results: Junior 25-yard free style—First, W. Bohar

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The capture of a murderer and his subsequent appearance in Norwich made interesting conversation for Norwich people in 1875, while an epidemic of fires kept the firemen busy throughout the week.

News of the week as taken in part from the columns of the Bulletin of a half century ago is as follows:

Monday, August 2, 1875—The large barn belonging to the estate of the late Henry Lathrop and rented for a livery and boarding stable by H. H. Lathrop, took fire in the loft about 9 o'clock last night. The proprietor and three men were sitting in front of the barn, when suddenly they noticed smoke pouring out of the upper story. The alarm was immediately given and when Chief Tarrier arrived he caused a second alarm to be sent in as many manufacturing buildings nearby were threatened by fire. The building was a total loss and Mr. Lathrop lost his stock, on which there is no insurance. The property around the barn was saved from fire by efficient work of the firemen.

So heavy is the freighting business by the Norwich Line, just now, that the freight house at the wharf was almost completely enveloped Saturday and yesterday, by merchandise awaiting transportation.

So much coal is being shipped to Norwich for points north that several special trains are being run to carry it.

The exchange of postal money orders between the United States and Canada begins today.

Tuesday, August 3, 1875—An employe of the company finishing the Soldiers' monument for Colchester, became intoxicated yesterday and in a rage seized a hammer and so mutilated the monument that it is thought that it will be necessary to discard it and construct an entirely new one.

The burning barn on Chestnut St., Sunday night, so illuminated the sky that firemen at New London turned out and awaited a call, believing it to be a big fire not far from their city.

The weather yesterday was extremely cool for this time of the year and fires were built in many local houses for the first time this summer.

The police commissioners, engaged in placing lamps in sections recently taken into the city report that the work is made difficult because of the sameness of names of streets. It is expected that changes will be made in the names of these streets, thus ridding the city of so many duplicates.

A number of residents of Greeneville are asking for fire protection, stating that they are in danger of fire since the legislature appointed the committee to disband the company there.

Seventy fire lamps have been placed in Greeneville, Burrellville and Laurel Hill during the past few weeks a most noteworthy piece of work.

Wednesday, August 4, 1875—One of the Air Line Railroad Company's trains, a day or two ago, ran into some cattle in Well's woods, Exeter Society, Lebanon. Five of the animals were killed outright and so badly injured that it is feared that they will have to be killed.

To equalize the water privileges in Thamesville, the water superintendent shut off the city water Monday, and left people with only the rain for washing day purposes.

A Putnam young man has been caught at Webster, Mass., and has confessed to murdering Frederick D. White of Spencer, Mass., in New London, last Wednesday night. The youth says that he stabbed his victim five times with a knife and robbed him of his watch and $31 in money. After his arrest the youth tried to commit suicide in his cell, by stabbing himself in the throat, but the injury was only a slight one.

At a meeting of the common council in New London Tuesday night it was voted that the Ferry Committee advertise for propositions to run or lease the New London ferry.

West Side grocers have learned that all is not well with them if they leave their merchandise outside their stores over night. One tried it Tuesday night and found only bare shelves when he opened his store the next morning.

Thursday, August 5, 1875—Officer Sheppard of New London passed through this city yesterday morning en route to New London, with the Putnam man, charged with the murder of Frank White. There was a large crowd at the local station to see the confessed murderer and they were privileged to see him. The prisoner was taken to the local city hall where he related the circumstances of the murder. He was taken to New London later in the day. His victim, Frank White, is the third member of his family to meet a violent death, his father having been poisoned and his brother burned to death.

When Pa is Sick.

When pa is sick
He's scared to death,
An' ma an' us
Just holds our breath.

He crawls in bed
An' puffs an' grunts,
An' does all kinds
Of crazy stunts.

He wants "Doc" Brown,
An' mighty quick;
For when pa's ill
He's awful sick.

He gasps an' groans,
An' sort o' sighs;
He talks s' queer,
An' rolls his eyes.

Ma jumps an' runs,
An' all of us
An' all the house
Is in a fuss.

An' peace an' joy
Is mighty skeerce—
When pa is sick
It's somethin' fierce.

When Ma is Sick.

When ma is sick
She pegs away;
She's quiet, though,
Not much, to say.

She goes right on
A-doin' things,
An' sometimes laughs,
Or even sings.

She says she don't Feel extry well;
But then it's just
A kind o' spell.

She'll be all right
Tomorrow, sure;
A good old sleep
Will be the cure.

An' pa he sniffs
An' makes no kick,
Fer woman folks
Is always sick.

The Smile of a Friend.

Oh, how many hearts are longing
For a cordial word of praise,
For a smile of recognition
That will cheer their dreary days!
Everywhere are men whose labors
Earn for them our friendliness
And that frank appreciation
We should readily express.

Let's resolve to greet our neighbors
With a friendly word each day;
Let's be more than merely civil
As we rush along life's way;
Each of us should scatter sunshine
That will gladden every mile,
For the souls of men are yearning
For the comfort of a smile.

The Home Way.

She walked her humble round of tasks each day,
Serene and cheery, Maytime on to May.

She heard the first brave robin, and the last,
And loved the varied seasons as they passed.

From her glad heart, like rivulets of cheer,
Her love ran out to others, far and near.

Beside her, toddling feet grew firm and strong,
And age was cheered the sunset way along.

She saw the night sweep o'er the western bars,
And read a promise in the twilight stars.

Her lowly walk shall never lead to fame,
Nor legions know the glory of her name.

Yet with her toil she fashions, year by year,
Love's holy refuge from life's fret and fear.

She finds her peace in common tasks of day—
I wonder if there is a nobler way?

NEW MEMBERS JOINS.

Dear Social Corner Editor: For a long time I have thought I would join the Social Corner. I have attended a picnic this summer and enjoyed it very much. We had a very social time and a good pleasant day. I am sending a Cottage Pudding recipe:

Cottage Pudding: 2-3 cup sugar, 1-4 cup of butter, 1 egg, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 level teaspoons of baking powder 1 cup of milk, 2 1-4 cups of flour. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually and egg well beaten. Mix and sift flour and baking powder and salt; add alternately with milk to first mixture; bake 35 minutes.

Best wishes to all.

JOINS SOCIAL CORNER.

Dear Social Corner Members: So many times I have thought I would write to the Social Corner, but procrastination is the thief of time. And as I was reading over the Social Corner letters I saw Gypsy Wanda and as I am a stamp collector was glad to find someone interested, too. I think it a very interesting pastime, also instructive. Would be glad to exchange.

How many of the readers ever tried the stiffly beaten white of an egg with mashed banana, substitute for whipped cream. I will take as my penname ABLETEN.

A LONG AGO FISHING TRIP.

Dear Editor: Many thanks for the Social Corner pin and hope to wear it many times. Surprised, although very much pleased, to see my name among the prize winners. I extend to you my thanks.

Reading of the activities now going on at Gardner Lake, it brings to mind my first fishing trip on the lake. Some fifty or more years ago, back in the '70s, late one afternoon, at the closing of a beautiful summer day, I was invited to go a-fishing, making one of a party. We soon were on the way and in a short time, after driving over a very rocky road, going around a corner and coming to a house the door of which being quickly opened, we then saw the late Solomon Gardner, the proprietor of the summer resort at that point of the lake. He told us we would easily find the boat at the shore. On passing along a laneway, we soon came to a bluff. I paused for a moment and saw a scene that I have never quite forgotten. The sun in all its summer splendor slowly sinking behind the western hillside, bidding its good night to the calm and placid waters, and the lengthening shadows of the twilight stealing along the shore; it was a picture no artist could paint. We trudged on and shortly came to the boat. We then seated ourselves in the boat and were quickly out to the fishing ground. Very soon I felt a nibble at the hook and I began to pull in and by the weight I thought it must be the king fish of the lake. It landed at my feet, a very large and ugly looking eel. As it wiggled over my feet it made me very much excited, so much so that I was told to sit down or I would be in where the eel and the others on the successful catch of the members of the party, and having caught enough fish we were soon back to shore and I was glad to get out of the boat, too. After going up the bluff, past a quiet house and over a rocky road, we arrived home. That night in dreamland my dreams were a mixture of fish and eels, eels and fish.

They tell me a camp stands at the Gardner site today; it may, I do not know, but I hope as the boys go to camp for the recreation of the outdoor life, they will experience the same keen pleasure I did roaming the hillsides of Gardner lake in the happy years of long ago. As the key of time checks our daily life; as it glides into lengthening years, it finds me today as deeply interested in the hapnenings at the lake as I was many years ago.

In closing my thoughts run to the sick and the shut-ins and I hope many pleasures will be given to them that will enable them to while away the long hours of a summer day.

With best wishes to the Corner.

GUSTA.

A TRIP IN MAINE.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Just a few lines to tell you about another trip I took with my friends to Peak's Island—an ideal summer place. Went across on ferryboat, the Swampscott, a three-mile ride across the harbor, for 10 cents.

After dinner in Mrs. Isner's summer home, where we found many others waiting for us, Mrs. Donohue and Mrs. Morris and myself went for a walk, while the rest engaged in playing whist. We walked about a mile across the island or one and one-half miles from where we were being entertained, to the water. I had been invited to Greenwood, but in going there I would have to take the boat for the different islands on Casco bay. Went to Peaks instead. After going through lovely groves, past pretty bungalows, we came to the Pelton, where lunches were served near the water. There we had a fine view of the beautiful salt water. I gathered shells and feasted again on ice cream and salted peanuts, and I must confess I have forgotten half the goodies for they came thick and fast. At half past 4 we were again at the landing on our way home, but not to come home until after the theatre. Went to Mrs. Foley's for supper, then went with Mrs. Jackman to the Empire theatre, there to enjoy a good laugh which I am sure we both enjoyed. It was another enjoyable day—never to be forgotten.

My son and wife are here on their honeymoon. We are to tie quilts today. It is trying to rain but trust it will clear off soon. Tied two quilts and set blocks together. They were the H pattern and tied those two in one day—going some, well I should say so—busy every minute of the stay, picking blueberries, for they carried home a half bushel or more beside all we ate and cooked. I have done up a number of jars and more to do up. I am going to have blueberry pudding; never made one before but I am told it is fine. We can sit by our windows and watch our blueberries.

Saturday—raining today, crops looking fine, no bugs nor worms this season to destroy and not many potato bugs. Hay never was better. There's a nice bungalow and garage for sale near my place, all modern conveniences. The buildings were built last year. A bargain for $2,500. Five rooms, all painted floors, chemical closet, water in sink, fireplace, nice wide veranda on two sides of house. Room under roof for cot beds, skylight in roof, and boat. Sorry to learn everybody isn't well, only wish they were.

B.: I am glad your head is feeling better. Thought it would when you got glasses.

K. and H.: Trust you arrived home O. K. and did not lose your blueberries.

Must close, for I see mailman coming. Au revoir, from

HOUSEKEEPING DISCOVERIES.

How to cover an ironing board to have the cover absolutely tight and smooth: You take the sheet or ticking and wet it thoroughly. Then tack it on the board while wet and it will dry gradually. The result will be an absolutely tight covering and perfectly smooth.

If your lawn mower fails to run easily, it probably is clogged with grit and dried grass. The remedy is to take off the wheels and clean the accumulation of trash from the gear boxes and the bearings. Takes about two hours' work, a half cake of soap and a pair of oily hands. Maybe pinion gears have slipped and the wheels do not turn. Then you will need new pawls, which cost 20 cents.

To give fine polish to linen, use luke warm water instead of cold to break down the starch. When it has been reduced to the required consistency by boiling water, add a pinch of salt and stir several times with a wax candle. This will make the irons run smoothly and give a polish to linen that nothing else can impart.

To wash silk crepes, or georgettes, use warm water and white soap. Do not rub but squeeze the garment through a good suds. Rinse several times and iron on wrong side when partly dry.

If a custard has been boiled and then curdled, it will be quite all right if it is rubbed through a very fine sieve and then stirred up.

Did you ever wash the collars and cuffs of a man's shirt with a stiff brush, also bands? Lay the cloth smoothly on the washboard, wet the brush, rub it crosswise with borax, then scrub the garment with short strokes of the brush.

The drawers in my bureau seemed to run unevenly and caused trouble in opening and shutting. I rubbed soap on the inner edges of the drawers, which overcame the difficulty.

To make cake richer, always beat eggs, butter and sugar together before adding flour.

KITTY LOU.

AN INTERRUPTED WEDDING.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: Here I am again. I have been laid up with rheumatism for several days past but am much better. Perhaps I ought not to write again so soon but some woman wishes my address. Her penname is Great-Great-Grandaunt; dear me, to be an aunt once is all right but to be three or four times an aunt is too much for me, and if I should take to writing to the women folks there would be trouble in our camp. Biddy Ann would never let me do that; and anyway I had trouble enough getting Biddy to keep her now that I have had her so long. We were both orphans, when we decided to be married; a friend loaned her house to us for the occasion. The girls all helped in trimming the rooms and with getting the feast ready. It was early in the spring—a cloudless day. A fire had been started in the fireplace in the musty old parlor. The wedding march was being played. We began to smell smoke, and more smoke. Biddy Ann and I had taken our places near the minister when someone whispered "There must be a fire." The smoke was almost more than we could stand. The reverend coughed and rubbed his red eyes. When he could bear it no longer he called a halt just as someone ran into the room screaming "Fire!" We ran out of doors and saw that the chimney was on fire. The fire had eaten its way into the woodwork of both the parlor and living room. The wedding was forgotten for a while. After the fire was out we resumed business, finished the ceremony standing on the flagstones under a great elm tree in the back yard. As you all know, the problem is for the bride and groom to skip out unseen; and it is up to the guests no: to let this happen. So we were watched very closely. However, I climbed out of an upper floor window and made legs for the woods. My wife went down cellar from the inside, came up the steps on the outside. We had had no chance to change our attire. We met each other at the crossroads where the stage coach picked us up. We were safely on our trip. After going about five miles, we were held up by two masked men who sprang out of the brush at each side of the road, grabbed the horses by the bridles and brought them to a standstill. They then opened the door of the coach, dragged out the much frightened bridegroom and the almost fainting bride. They stood us on our feet with the command that we march on, which we did. The coach in the meantime had driven on. The masked men stopped at the next barway and got their horses, mounted them and rode behind us. When we had gone about three miles we begged for mercy and were given a short rest. The men removed their masks and proved to be my best man and his friend who had acted as usher at my wedding. Wife and I were so enraged we declared we would go no further—our feet were just awful. Wife's heels were blistered walking in her dainty high heeled white satin slippers. I had on calfskin boots three sizes too small. Right here I vowed I would take the darn things off. Now no one had thought to bring along a bootjack. We all had a pull at my boot without effect. At last we doubled up, wife had her arms about my waist helping pull. I grasped a sapling while the best man had a grip on my boot. The usher had the best man around the waist. With a strong pull all together, off came the boots; boots, stocking—and some skin. I blame that walk for my rheumatism, seven corns and two bunions. Wife and I rode the horses home. The men walked. We found the youngest set dancing; we sat it out.

I wish to think all those who have sent me cards. I have some from 12 states, quite a few from foreign parts.

My best wishes to all the Corner folks.

LULAR WYLIE.

BAKE WITH GAS STOVE.

Dear Sisters; I hear so many people say "I can't bake in my gas oven; I burn everything all up." Let me tell you how I do it, and I surely do a lot of baking.

First, go to the hardware store and buy a piece of asbestos sheet about as thick as a pasteboard shoe box that shoes come in or candy box texture, so not be too heavy to take the heat of baking away. Fit this over the bottom tin that the blaze hits under your first wire grate. In time this will look burned, but let it stay there. Now start both oven burners for 10 or 15 minutes, until the oven is hot for cake or bread, then turn off one burner, and this must always be the back burner. I mean the burner that is in the back end of oven. Never shut off the front burner near oven door, as the heat goes toward the back from this front burner. If when you look at your oven to see your cake, bread, pies, etc., you think you need more heat, light the back burner again and then turn both front and back burners off about one-quarter way, which given an even and not too hot heat. With a little watching and the asbestos cover on bottom I think you will have good luck. I cook most everything on the top grate lowered to about 2-3 from top down to lower grate. When things are half done I put pie and cake on the lower grate, then as the other things get done remove them and put those on bottom grate up top to finish and brown.

I hope those who find it hard to bake and burn their food will try this or write me and I will try and explain better if possible.

I have cooked with gas summers for 21 years and befor that in the popular gasoline stove with oven on top removable. Hoping this will help someone who has to start a range fire in hot weather to cook, I shall be more than glad for sending it in.

CALLA LILY.

REAL HELPFULNESS.

Dear Members of the Social Corner. As some of the sisters are telling all about their vacations they have had, I thought I would write and tell about a day's outing I had at the beach recently, made happy for me by the kindness of Sister Barbar.

A few days ago our Sunday school had their picnic at Ocean Beach. Of course my children were all anxious to go. I wanted them to go, for I knew it would be their only chance of ever going to the beach this year. But how could I go. Five of us to get ready, lunch to pack and be on time for the truck that carried us down. And beside all that a little girl to dress and make ready. I could not see how I could do it all. If I only could leave her with some trusty friend or neighbor. I had nearly given up the idea of going when I happened to think of Barbar and wondered if she would take care of my little girl. Imagine how happy I felt when she sent back word that she would be pleased to take care of my little girl so that I might go. Well, I went with my four children, and we all had a lovely day, made happy for me by Barbar's kindness. Now if some of you sisters will stop and think of some mother who has her hands full, and does not know what it means to go away for only one day, would come and show their kindness in the way Barbar has, they would well deserve to be called a Social Corner sister. Be sociable, sisters, and if some of you have a nice car, or are situated in better circumstances than others, don't forget to be sociable as well as thoughtful of others.

Aunt Jerusha: I was very near your home a few days ago; had I known then I was so near to your place, I would have called. I am planning to call later. Please don't get nervous, as I shall leave my camera at home.

Best wishes to all.

MAKING RUGS.

Dear Corner Sisters: I am going to tell you about the rugs I have made. In all I have made 125; some I sold, some I gave away, while others the rags were furnished for me to work up. This is since I was married. I made quite a few for myself, many of them being already worn out. I still have 30 now in my home. I crocheted and knit several for myself. They are worn out. I find neither knit or crocheted ones last very long, for once a thread breaks in them they go very rapidly. Nine of these rugs are in Maine, five in Pennsylvania, three in New York and three in Massachusetts. I have braided a large number, drawn in on a frame and a stamped burlap—a large number. Those wear extra good. I generally mark out my own patterns and mark them on the burlap after securely fastening the burlap on the frames. Sometimes I use a hook I have for that purpose, other times I use a little machine I have. You thread in the rag through the eye, insert it in the burlap, then work it with both hands. I took two of those rugs to the county fair once, on one got a premium of $1.75, the other 75c. Another kind I have made several of. I fist strip the rags, get all the blues, blacks, reds, etc., stripped, turn edges in and run up on the machine, keeping each color wound into a ball by itself. One of this kind requires quite a large amount of cloth. Then I get a wagon tire from a bind wheel my rags, a paper of pins, my rags, put the tire on a table and commence. When the rags are all sewed into balls, the rest of the work is done by hand. I call these wheel mats, as I generally use red for the hub and spokes, because it makes a gayer mat. The rags are woven into this mat basket weaving fashion and each time you put in a new strip you must go around the wheel, making nine times. Then pin your rag on the tire. These rugs are very pretty when bright rags are used. I still made another rug which everybody admires who sees it. I only made one of this kind. I covered a tin star with Germantown worsted in the center of each block, fifteen in all, then cut through the center of this wool and took out the star, making a beautiful fluffy figure. Then I sewed these together, pressed the seam on the wrong side. On the right side I covered the seam with fancy stitches, with the gay colored yarn, put little heel pieces all around this mat, using one point of the star. The prettier the yarn, the more elaborate the mat. These are extra pretty, I think. Perhaps one asks where I got so many rags for those rugs. There was nothing new in them, unless in the hooked mats. You can use small pieces. I used old dresses, shirts, men's overcoats, in fact, any old cast off garment you can braid up. Then I begged some, while others saved their old clothes for me, and those I made for folks who furnished me the rags.

As this is getting rather lengthy, guess I will stop for this time.

CRUSOE RAMBLER.

TWO SALADS.

Butterfly Salad: The arrangement of this salad in the form of a butterfly is not a new one, but the fruit mixture is a good one. Including raw apple in fruit salads not only improves the flavor, but makes the more expensive fruits go further.

Two slices canned pineapple, 2 slices orange, 2 slices unpared apple 1-2 pound malaga grapes, strips of pimento, lettuce, chopped nuts.

Cut the pineapple slices in half and place the round edges together on the plate. Over this fit the slice of apple with the core removed. (If you wish to remove the skin pour boiling water on the apple and the skin will peel off, leaving the red coloring showing in the meat). On top of this fit the orange slices, which have been allowed to stand in sugar at least twenty minutes. Form the butterfly's body from the grapes and the antennae from the pimento strips. Sprinkle with nut meats and serve with mayonnaise.

Luncheon Salad: This salad contains a good proportion of the constituents of a well balanced meal. Certainly a generous helping of it, followed by a bit of sweet, would be sufficient for a hot day's luncheon.

Two tablespoons uncooked rice, 1 cup orange juice, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup chopped pecans, French dressing, 1 pimento, 1 small package of cream cheese.

Wash rice thoroughly and cook with salt in orange juice over boiling water for about forty minutes, until tender. When cool, mix with nuts and turn into individual molds. Make little balls of the cream cheese and chopped pimento to serve with each helping of the salad. Sprinkle with French dressing.

WORKERS AT MANSFIELD.

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: Here I am at North Abington after a four months' stay at my brother's in Mansfield, Conn.

The parsonage at Mansfield has been recently painted. The ladies of the church and Epworth league have made it possible for the improvement in the looks of the much needed painting. Overhead on the veranda a lovely shade of blue is noticeable.

The ladies are at work at Mansfield on aprons and other articles for their fair which comes in December. Though a small number in the small Baptist church to bring about so much financially is due to the indefatigable work of the few. The president and her assistant working in harmony are the main spokes in the wheel, to keep things moving. All the other members of the society work in, bring about the needed things pertaining to a success to the fair.

During my stay at Mansfield Depot I did enjoy so much the pleasant neighborhood socials. Mrs. Viola White, never shall I forget your kind hospitality; also Miss Brigham's, too. To tell you I miss those fine times expresses it faintly. Had I a home near how glad I would be to return the kindness. In mind's eye I see you, J. W., Mrs. Mc., Mrs. S., enjoying the fun. Speak of me occasionally. Can't help you, J. W., in beating Mrs. Mc. The last two weeks has found me for week end at shore with son and family. Fine location, few steps to ocean, where one can bathe and live as simply as you please. The motor-boat gives much enjoyment. Come on and you may enjoy it. It is my son's. I hardly think I will go to shore this week. Kind wishes from Trottie for all sisters and editor.

HOME FROM VACATION.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Have just returned from my vacation spent in my old home town, J. C., with old friends tried and true, and enjoyed my visit, but it seems good to be home again. Now I have wanted a pin for a long time and will thank the editor in advance. Hope the sisters enjoyed their vacations as much as I did.

CAPITOLA.

VISITED THE LARRABEE OAK.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Some have asked for letters telling of the little journeys which we take, so I am sending this, hoping it may prove interesting.

Without doubt some of the readers of this page have already taken this trip; if not, it may be a call to go. We have no car, but our many friends are very nice in remembernig us, and just recently friends came and asked us to go for a ride, not mentioning any special destination. For some time we rode on nice smooth roads and then a turn to the right took us on a sand road which was very narrow, many blind curves, with brush growing close to the road on both sides—a bad place to meet other cars.

We did meet a number, however, and got by all right, as the drivers were very careful. It is hard to judge but I think we rode about six miles on this road, and we were in the town of Groton.

Coming to a crossroad forming four corners, we saw a sign: "Visitors to tree, park cars here." Our driver did this, and we walked all of a quarter mile up hill, to find he might have driven to the top, as about a dozen cars were parked near a beautiful colonial house. Passing by the house, through a gate, into an open lot, across the lot, through another gate and following a narrow path to the edge of a grove, one of our party stopped and, listening, said she heard singing, "Nearer, My God, to Thee." A minute more, we could see the famous Larrabee Oak, and sitting in a semi-circle facing the tree were a band of people, holding religious service.

Not wishing to intrude, we found seats on rocks in the background and staid until the service was over. It was a very impressive service and an ideal place for it. We were told these same people hold services there every Sunday. After the service, we went nearer, where we could see the tree better. It is said to be the largest oak, and I'm not sure but the largest tree of any kind, east of the Rockies.

One of our party paced the outside, near the ground, and considered it about thirty feet or more in circumference.

And such great limbs!

It towers above everything near and spreads a wonderful shade. One limb, I noticed, had separated or branched off in its growth and then later the branch had united again with the original limb, which formed an opening about nine inches long, and the light could be seen through this opening.

It is very kind of the people who own this land to allow visitors, and many take advantage of the privilege.

A register and pencil are kept in a mail box near the tree and all visitors are invited to register. Our party did so, and I counted 75 names for that one day.

It is a wonderful sight and we felt well repaid and left wondering if the tree is a natural planting or if long, long ago some hand dug the hole and pushed the acorn down. I wish I knew and how old it is. Wouldn't it be interesting if the oak could speak?

If E. L. M. goes to Ocean Beach on Wednesday, she will know before she reads this, if I am there.

Just now, I'm debating, to go or not to go, and the nays seem to be ahead.

Best wishes to all.

MANY WAYS FOR PICKLES

Dear Social Corner Sisters:

Sirup for Sweet Pickles: Boil 2 pounds of white sugar with 2 pints of vinegar. Skim and add an ounce of stick cinnamon, broken, a scant ounce of whole cloves and piece of ginger root. Tie these in thin cloth and boil 15 minutes before putting in the cucumbers. Slice in rounds when serving.

For Sweet Pickles: Pick out small cucumbers and soak over night in a strong brine. If you want to make sweet pickles, use 2 cups of sugar to 1 quart of vinegar, tablespoonful each of cinnamon bark and cloves. Put all in a kettle and boil good; then put in your pickles. When they boil good seal in glass jars.

Mixed Pickles: Boil 1 gallon cucumbers, 3 cauliflowers, 2 quarts onions, 2 quarts beans in 1 gallon of vinegar diluted with 1 quart of water and 4 tablespoons salt; drain and place pickles in jars. Have ready boiling hot gallon vinegar, 1 pound sugar, 1-2 pound mixed pickling seed, thoroughly boiled; pour over pickles and seal in jars.

Always Ready Pickles: Gather the cucumbers every day, wash carefully and pour over them boiling salted water in which let them stand one hour, then take out of the water, wipe dry, drop them in jars, pour over them strong cider vinegar, add 2 tablespoons of sugar to every quart jar add cloves, stick cinnamon, allspice, and seal closely. They will be ready for use in a week.

Pickled Onions: Take small white onions, peel, put in salt brine over night, then pour cold water over them next day. Drain off water, put them in jars, boil your vinegar, pour over onions, seal jars.

Mixed Pickles or Chow Chow: One gallon cabbage, 1 gallon green tomatoes, 1 quart of onions, 2 or 3 green peppers, 4 tablespoons ground mustard, 2 tablespoons powdered ginger, 1 tablespoon cloves, mace and cinnamon; 3 pounds sugar. Chop tomatoes, cabbage, onions, peppers up fine, mix well, cover with good cider vinegar and cook slowly until done.

Fine Spiced Huckleberries: Ten pounds of berries, 5 pounds sugar, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1-2 sathlespoon cloves, 1-2 pint vinegar; make the sirup, put in berries and boil half hour. This will keep like other fruit put in jars.

RAILROAD SCOUTING

Dear Corner Members:

When you are bored by the thought of a long train ride ahead of you especially if you have several children to entertain or if there are several Girl Scouts going for a long anticipated camp and are impatient to reach their destination, here is a game they can play while the train is moving onward.

The object of the game is to sharpen your eyes in preparation for your days at camp. As you ride along, watch out of the windows and see who first sees certain animals, along the route. Let the animals you are looking for count as follows:

1 cow 1 point; horse 3 points; chicken 3 points; crow 4 points; snipe 5 points; squirrel 6 points; rabbit 7 points. The first person to see any of these birds or animals should call out and have one to keep score. But be careful not to call out until you are sure what you see, for if you make a mistake you will lose your corresponding number of points. For example if you call out you see a crow and you may enjoy it. It is my son's. I hardly think I will go to shore this week. Kind wishes from Trottie for all sisters and editor.

MOVING TO LARGER ROOMS.

Dear Corner Sisters: Please cut out this notice and place it where you won't forget the new requirements, as we move the first Wednesday in September (2d), to larger meeting rooms in the Odd Fellows' hall, just above the Buckingham Memorial, on the opposite side of street, near post office.

Now the requirements are that you "must" bring your dishes to eat on, such as plate, silver, cup, as there are no dishes there to be had. If you forget them, then you will have to go to the store and buy them, so keep this in mind. Every reply has been in favor of the larger hall, so it is now settled for Sept. 2d. We are all willing when we attend outside picnic or go to Club 1, 3, 4 and take our dishes, so it will not be much bother until you get used to it. At Club No 2 see what a lot of work our hostess is not going to have in not having to carry so many dishes to the tables to set on and take off. As each places her own dish on the table and that reserves her place at the table. Then you take off your own dish and pack it away in your bag. With the larger number who visit our club this means a lot of work our hostess doesn't have to do in the future, as they have done in the past number of years. So remember, bring your own dishes to use at the table, as we will have none to substitute for those who forget their plate, cup and silver. Trusting this is all right to those who didn't reply.

HINTS ON KEEPING COOL

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: Just a few timely hints on

Keeping Cool

Cut out friction, worry and unnecessary fatigue and discomfort.

Have a free circulation of air in your rooms, all the time. If possible put in electric fans. Air which is kept moving is usually not unhealthful.

Sleep out of doors if possible.

Bathe freely in cool water twice or three times a day.

Eat fruits, fresh vegetables, milk, butter, ice cream, frozen fruits custards and iced puddings.

Eat good food freely, but limit the quantity of meat and fat which produce extra heat.

Wear light-colored, loose, lightweight clothing that may be washed readily and through which the skin may be ventilated.

Avoid stiff collars, coats and gloves.

Weare loose hats if any and low shoes or sandals.

Whenever possible indulge in an air bath—remove the clothing entirely.

If possible follow the sensible European custom of taking a nap during the middle part of the day, at least keep out of the sun between the hours of 12 and 2 p. m.

Don't fuss over your appearance of your discomfort. Thinking Cool will do a great deal to keep you cool. Keep your mind pleasantly occupied and try to remember that normal perspiration in warm weather is essential to good health.

Practice the following fifteen rules of hygiene:

Air

1. Ventilate every room you occupy.
2. Wear light, loose and porous clothes.
3. Seek out-of-door occupations and recreation.
4. Sleep out, if you can.
5. Breathe deeply.

Food

6. Avoid over eating and overweight.
7. Eat sparingly of meats and eggs.
8. Eat some hard, some bulky and some raw foods.
9. Eat slowly.

Poisons

10. Evacuate thoroughly, regularly and frequently.
11. Stand, sit and walk erect.
12. Do not allow poisons and infections to enter the body.
13. Keep the teeth, gums and tongue clean.

Activity

14. Work, play, rest and sleep in moderation.
15. Keep serene.

With best of wishes to all.

A CORN CURED.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I want to tell you how I cured a corn, and did not know it. I took a narrow strip of cheesecloth and wound it around my toe where the corn was, and every night and morning I wet that cloth quite wet with witch hazel. I have been doing that for the past two months. I supposed my corn would always trouble, as it had given me so much trouble. I thought it had got to be chronic and upon examining my toe one day I could not find my corn. When it went, I don't know, but I am going to continue treating my toe to a dip of witch hazel night and morning the rest of the season, for I am fearful the corn may break out again. I am like a story I heard a long time ago. A gentleman wanted to go home with his girl friend. She told him "No; for you will be afraid to go home alone." "Oh, no!" he said "but I am afraid you will be afraid." But what is there that comes up that will put us out of commission so quick as some trouble with our feet? When a rocker or someone's little No 6 gets on our corn we are far away from having a nap. Am thinking of Club No. 1 today with their picnic at the beach; hope they have a grand time, a good day and no accidents.

Yes, Calla Lily, I am in favor of having another apartment to hold our Social Corner gatherings, for since Red Clover had the accident of falling down the stairs in Willimantic the stairs at Buckingham Memorial have had a great horror to me. I would enjoy being on the first floor better, but I think most of us sisters will have to keep our thinking cap in repair, for we will have to carry our dishes as well as our food, and we have been accustomed to carrying only our dishes at picnics or at other club gatherings.

I have tried Ino's recipe for canning strawberries and raspberries and it is fine. I met Ino at Twice Twenty's picnic and several other sisters I had never seen before, and had a fine time at that place, also at Student's picnic at Versailles, and I want to thank the editor once more for my Social Corner pin.

I must close and give room to some other sisters. My sympathy goes out to all of those in sorrow or trouble, and best wishes to all.

COMFORT.

ENJOYED PICNIC LETTER.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am glad the sun is shining so bright today, for it is what the farmers need during haying—those that haven't finished.

The letter Primrose wrote about the picnic at Twice Twenty's and Tany's was very nice. Of course Kezlah Doolittle with that big piece of watermelon couldn't think of much else. Hope she is getting straightened out in her affairs. I thought it was so nice of Whirlwind and Foxglove and those from Willimantic and Norwich way coming, when the weather didn't look promising. But the Social Corner picnic is something to look forward to for a good time.

When the month of August is here we are thinking that summer is going.

Time is a Weaver.

Out into the loom run a million of threads, some are short and some are long and some are weak and some are strong, and the song that gives flight is as old as the night, the pattern as new as the day; and the threads must break, and the pattern change, but—the loom goes on alway.

Time certainly does make many changes, and things we least expect will happen.

Hope the weatherman will be in our favor when our next picnic comes.

ROSALIND.

USEFUL RECIPES.

Economical Omelet (original): Separate the ... whites of 4 eggs, adding 3-4 ... or water, and seasoning; then stir in 1 cup whole wheat bread crumbs or cracker crumbs. Beat the whites and fold into the yolks. Have omelet dish hot; butter it, put in the eggs, take from the fire and set on the hot stove into a pan of boiling water. When sufficiently set, loosen around the edges with a spatula and slip out on a heated platter.

Mock Cherry Pie: 1 1-2 cups cranberries cut in two, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup cold water, 1 tablespoon Cream of Wheat, 1 teaspoon vanilla. This mixed makes a delicious filling for a pie. This recipe is for one pie. A deep pie plate is used.

Puree a la Jackson: Soak 1 pint each of dried peas and beans. Cook about one hour in enough water to cover, all 1 turnip, 1 large carrot, 1 celery roots (I like the German celery), add 5 potatoes cut into dice. Cook one hour longer ran until thoroughly done and mash through a colander. Add plenty of butter or olive oil, seasoning and chopped parsley.

Apple Punch: Quarter and core six apples; do not peel; cover with 3 cups of water; bring to a boilin- point and cook 15 minutes without stirring; add 1-2 glass currant jell; strain through a cheesecloth, sweeten to taste, chill. When serving add 1-2 pound of white grapes, halved and seeded. I never peel my apples.

Eggs Spanish Style: Choose even medium sized tomatoes; wash and remove part of the pulp from the stem end; season and break an egg into its cavity; place in a buttered baking dish; add enough water to prevent burning; bake in moderate oven until the egg is set; serve on buttered toast.

Rhubarb Drink: Cook in one quart of water to 2 quarts fruit; sweeten to taste, and serve chilled. Currants, strawberries or other small fruits can be used in the same manner.

Grape Juice: Wash and stem 10 lbs. of grapes, put in kettle and mash with a wooden potato masher. Cook until the pulp is freed from the seeds; drain overnight. Next morning strain and let come to a boil. Have bottles ready in a pan of hot water, fill and seal at once. Use sterilized beer bottles with patent stoppers.

Applesauce Sandwich: Thick applesauce with dried apples or green apples with whipped cream makes a nice sweet sandwich for immediate use. Bananas make a nice sandwich sliced lengthwise, spread with mayonnaise dressing and sprinkled with nuts if desired. A few drops of lemon juice is an improvement. This served with lettuce is very nice. Cocoanut made with 1 cup of cocoanut freshly grated with 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 2 teaspoons of honey, and I like a little thick cream. Another sandwich: Dried Fruit: One cup each raisins, dates, figs, prunes, dry or soaked, 1 cup nut meats, ground or chopped fine, make a fine sandwich filling. If too dry to spread well, moisten with either little lemon or orange juice.

Nut Butter: Run 4 ounces peanuts through a grinder and work into the lemon juice.

Consistency of butter, 5 tablespoons of Cheese Sandwich: Cream cheese, minced sweet pepper and onion or olives, a pinch of salt and a dash of Eggs Scrambled with Green Peas: Have peas warmed in a saucepan with a lump of butter and about 1-2 cup of water; season to taste; add 1 tablespoon chopped celery, season to taste, and add 1 tablespoon minced parsley or mint; add well beaten egg, 1 egg to a pint of peas; stir constantly until the egg is set. Serve at once with hot buttered toast.

A French Punch: The French are noted for their rare and delicate drinks. A famous Parisian recipe calls for 3 pounds of raisins, 5 pnuds of dried apples and 5 gallons of water. Put all together in an earthen jar and let stand uncovered for three days, stirring from the bottom. Then bottle with half a teaspoon of sugar and a stick of cinnamon in each bottle. Cork tightly. Keep in cool place.

TAXI-DRIVERS' CASES, NEW LONDON CONTINUED; BONDS FIXED AT $1,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 7.—Samuel Hoffa, 21 North Bank street, Charles Parks, Poquonoc Bridge and Arthur Kenneth Clark, Flanders, the taxicab operators who were taken into custody last night charged with using their automobiles for purposes of prostitution, lewdness and assignation, were in the police court this morning, but their cases were not disposed of, being continued until tomorrow morning. Each of the accused furnished sureties on his respective bonds of $1,000 for appearances.

The two girls, Ruth Pardy, Rochester, N. H., and Evelyn Page of North Sandwich, N. H., who, it is claimed, occupied the automobiles of the taxicab operators with sailors and went on the lonely highways outside the city where it is alleged immoral acts took place in the cars, were taken into custody this noon on a warrant charging them with lascivious conduct. They had been held prisoners at the police station over night. The girls will also be arranged in court tomorrow, but in default of a surety on their bonds of $1,000 each, they were locked up to await the convening of court.

The police declare that they have ample evidence upon which to establish a conviction of the public service drivers, especially from admissions that the girls have made, which admission the police hope will bring about a conviction of the girls. The girls declare that they had been in New London but about a week and that they had been employed as salesladies in the towns where they reside.

Mrs. George P. Cheney and infant daughter, of Montauk avenue Francis Leary, Franklin street; Mrs. William Sparks, South Ledyard street, and Charles Burbee, United States Coast Guard service patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

L. C. Anderson, a chief petty officer, assigned to the United States Coast Guard destroyer Fanning, reported to the police today that he had been robbed, declaring that his watch had been stolen from his quarters aboard the destroyer.

Charles White, watchman in the employ of the Raymond & Alexander Lumber company, reported to the police shortly after 2 o'clock this morning that the night light in the White Service station corner of Hamilton and Howard streets, was not burning, authough it was lighted two hours before. Patrolman Braxton Hill was sent to the service station and after making an examination of the place determined that the transoms and windows were all secure. This forenoon it was found that the light had burned out.

Sailors cut up a peculiar prank on Bank street about 1.45 this morning, when they draped an automobile that was parked by the curb at the corner of Golden street. After the sailors left the flag was taken in charge by John Sullivan proprietor of a Bank street lodging house, who had witnessed the acts of the sailors and he informed the police that he was in possession of the flag, if the owner of the national colors became known.

Charles Sullivan, 50 Norwood avenue employed at the plant of the Robert Gair company, Montville, was injured and his automobile wrecked this morning when the machine, which Sullivan was attempting to drive to his work, crashed against a tree and a stone wall on the outskirts of the city. The machine was completely wrecked and Sullivan suffered lacerations about his face and head that required medical treatment.

Sullivan left his home about 4 o'clock to drive to Montville and after the car had passed Mohegan avenue, it began to skid on the wet surface of the highway. Before Sullivan could get the machine under control it plunged across the road and against the tree and the state police are investigating the crash.

Mrs. Mary Zesowitz proprietor of a lodging house, 12 Front street, complained to the police this noon that one of the lodgers, A. H. Grimby, had been robbed of about $200. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray was sent to the Zesowitz house where it was learned that Grimby who is 72 kept his money in a trunk in his room and that the money was secure in its place of keeping yesterday. This forenoon when Grimby inspected the trunk he discovered that the lock had been forced and that his money, which was in gold coin and bills, had been taken. The police are inclined to believe that the robbery was committed by another lodger at the place or someone who had knowledge of the movements of occupants of the house.

The mysterious Haddad breach of the peace case developed into a trivial row over children, when it got to a hearing in the police court this morning. The parties to it were women, the wife of Nicholas Haddad, and a resident in the same house in Main street, Mary synoda. The latter claimed that Mrs. Haddad struck her with a mop handle and brought a witness to verify what she alleged. Mrs. Haddad denied the story absolutely and she too brought a witness to confirm her version of the trouble, which was that the children in the two families got into some trivial squabble and that the women bandied words over what happened. The defendant and her witness said there were no blows struck and they denied that Mrs. Haddad went outside her door. They claimed the trouble was talk, wholly and only talk. Mrs. Haddad was fined $13 nevertheless. She said the judgment was unjust and she appealed to the court of common pleas, giving a bond of $200 to insure her appearance there.

James Meade, a stranger who said he was on the way to New York, was found loitering about the union railway station and was taken into custody by railroad officers. He was told to keep on his way to New York and to allow him to do that judgment was deferred.

Two drunks, Earl Davis and Maurice Connell, were fined $5 each. Davis went to jail.

Carl Downey, negro, residing at 28 Hill street and employed as a cook was charged with a breach of the peace in that he struck his wife, who was formerly Mazie Williams, a blow in the face that loosened her teeth. Mazie was on hand to show the effects of the blow. Her lips were swollen and her teeth were loosened. Carl told the story that put something of a different light on what happened. He said he had called his wife twice on the telephone and could not get an answer. He does not have all the confidence in Mazie that a husband should have in his wife, so he decided that he would give her a little surprise and get to his home about 3 o'clock in the morning. When he arrived he found a Japanese cook who rooms there and a fellow who has employment at the Hassleria Inn. The trio was having a good time when Brown entered. He made some inquiry as to where Mazie was when the telephone rang, but he didn't get the satisfactory answer he expected. Then he hit out—biff, and Mazie went to a corner. She called the police and Carl was arrested. Mazie explained that a new department store opened in New London so she went out to see what was offered in the store. She denied that she annoyed him with calls on the phone, and said he was the offender in this respect. Judge Crandall fined Carl $50, but suspended the execution of the judgment that Carl and Mazie might start in and live happily in the future.

Henry Bauman, 21, employed as pastry cook at the Hotel Griswold, died this morning at Lawrence hospital, where he was operated upon yesterday for ruptured appendix. Bauman's home is in Germany, where his parents reside, but the body will be buried in Jordan cemetery tomorrow.

The funeral of Mrs. Julia A. Daniels, wife of Frank B. Daniels, was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the First Baptist church, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The committal was in Jordan cemetery, where the service was conducted by Mooseheart lodge, an auxiliary to Loyal Order of Moose.

Daniel P. Beckwith, 28, of 69 Willetts avenue, arrested late yesterday by Sergeant John Cavanaugh, suspected as being the crook who has burglarized many stores on Bank street and vicinity the past three weeks, was arraigned on a technical charge of an idle person without visible means of support in the police court. His case was continued until tomorrow morning that the police might further investigate the movements of Beckwith the past few weeks. The police are of the belief that Beckwith is implicated in the wholesale number of burglaries, especially so because of statements made by himself and his wife. This morning in court, a grocery store proprietor who claims that Beckwith endeavored to sell him a quantity of cigarettes of the same brand as those stolen from several of the stores entered, at the ridiculously low price of five cents per package, positively identified Beckwith as the fellow who offered the cigarettes for sale. Beckwith flatly denied the accusation. Another alleged fact that is incriminating to Beckwith is the statement made by his wife that her husband for a number of weeks has been rising at 3 o'clock and going to the street, stating that he was wakeful and could not sleep. Beckwith also denies this allegation, stating that it was about 4 o'clock mornings when he arose and went for a walk.

Speaking of the great changes going on in Ireland, and the numerous improvements which in his opinion will result in a united Ireland within a few years, John O'Sullivan, who recently returned home after two-months' visit in the Emerald Isle delivered an interesting and forceful address before Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians in Temperance Hall last evening. Mr. O'Sullivan talked in an informal way of conditions as he found them in Ireland and was optimistic concerning its future. President B. J. McCarthy, Treasurer P. J. Ryan, William T. May, George M. Kennedy, P. J. Harkins, and Lawrence Farnen were elected delegates to the state convention, A. O. H., to be held at Bridgeport August 19 and 20.

Manuel Prockett, 173 Shaw street, employed as an iceman's helper, was arrested tonight by Patrolman Clarence Wells and Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey. He is charged with breach of the peace by his wife. He is being held a prisoner at the police station to await his trial in the police court tomorrow morning. Prockett was badly beaten in a fight which occurred at his home and was treated by a physician at the police station, the injuries being a laceration of the scalp and a probable fractured wrist. Prockett was lying across a bed at his home, when he and his sister-in-law became involved in an argument, which resulted apparently in a free-for-all fight, for Prockett declares that he was attacked by his wife, his sister and his father-in-law and mother-in-law and was hit with everything except the kitchen table. His facial condition and wrist bore out the statement of Prockett as to the extent that he had been beaten up.

An automobile owned by Miss Dorothy Hoffman, 65 Oakland Terrace, and a machine owned and driven by Louis Sternlieb, 19 Alewife avenue, Ocean Beach, were in collision this evening on Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach. Sternlieb lodged complaint with the police alleging violation of the law against the driver of Miss Hoffman's car because the driver refused to display his operators license and speeded away when a patrolman was approaching.

A. C. SWAN CO. STOLEN CAR FOUND ON FEDERAL ST.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 7—A Willys-Knight touring car, stolen from the garage of the A. C. Swan company, Main street, last Sunday afternoon, was recovered this afternoon. Traffic Officer Frank Linehan found the car abandoned on Federal street and but about two blocks from the Swan garage. The machine was driven to the police station and later turned over to a garage employe. The car is the property of Louis Taber, and was probably taken by a person who used the car until this afternoon and then drove it to Federal street where the chances of the car being identified as the stolen machine were excellent and the joy-rider realizing that it would be returned to the garage.

CAPT PINNEY AT HOSPITAL— MAY UNDERGO OPERATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 7—Capt. Charles A. Pinney, of the New London police department, was removed to Lawrence-Memorial hospital this morning and this afternoon an X-ray was taken to determine whether it will be advisable to operate upon Captain Pinney. At the institution this evening it was stated that the patient was resting as comfortably as could be expected and that it had not been decided whether an operation would be performed. That decision will not be reached for a day or two, or probably not before next week.

Captain Pinney is believed to be suffering from gall stones and his condition became such the past few days that he was compelled to relinquish his duties at the police station and go to his home on Howard street, where he has been under the care of his physician.

During Captain Pinney's absence from duty, Sergeant James C. Sullivan will be at the head of the department and Motorcycle Officer William Babcock is performing desk sergeant duty. Spare Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey is taking the place of Motorcycle Officer Babcock.

Broadway Theatre.

It would be hard to find a more appealing or vitally interesting story than Anne Douglas Sedgwick's novel, "The Little French Girl," produced for Paramount by Herbert Brenon, and which is the feature at the Broadway theatre starting tomorrow.

Featured in the leading roles are Alice Joyce, Neil Hamilton, Mary Brian and Esther Ralston. In the title role of the picture Mary Brian, as Alix Vervier, finds that her mothers reputation sort of puts a kink in her chances for a suitable marriage in France, so she invades a fashionable English home, where it is the mother's hope she will land for herself a good provider.

Here she falls in love with the younger brother of her mother's latest favorite, only to learn that he cares for another and that the other girl has eyes only for the older brother. So you see, the love interest in the production travels in a circle—and it never does let up for a single moment.

There's an unusual element of surprise in the closing scenes.

Anthony Jowitt, a new screen "find" playing Owen Bradley, is the older brother. Neil Hamilton has the role of Giles Bradley. Others in the supporting cast include Maria Majeroni, Maurice Cannon, Maude Turner Gordon and Jane Jennings.

Christie's latest comedy, "Cornfed," and a new Kinograms and News make up the short subjects and guarantee two hours of splendid entertainment.

Breed Theatre.

Another New York stage success has been made into a motion picture. It will be seen at the Breed theatre when Frank Borzages first Metro Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Daddys Gone a-Hunting," a film version of the famous drama by Zoe Akins, opens on Sunday.

The plot centers in the search of an artist for inspiration and happiness. Julian, the artist, is played by Percy Marmont, and he is said to bring to this part one of the finest characterizations he has ever given the screen.

Edith, his wife, is played by Alice Joyce, her second role since returning to pictures after four years of retirement.

Julian throws off the fetters of matrimony and goes to Paris to study art, leaving Edith to make a living for herself and their baby daughter, Janet, played by Virginia Marshall. Julian's adventures in the Latin Quarter, at the Folies Bergeres, and Edith's life in a great fashion establishment on Fifth avenue give color and brilliance to the drama of the play.

How Julian is brought to realization of the folly of his indifference to Edith's love is one of the most dramatic scenes ever filmed.

Ford Sterling and Helena d'Algy have prominent parts in the Paris and Edythe Chapman are included in the remarkable cast. Harry Rapf, executive of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Mr. Borzage picked for this picture.

Kenneth B. Clarke wrote the scenario and Chester A. Lyons photographed the screen version of "Daddy's Gone a-Hunting."

INDUSTRIALS FEATURED MARKETS YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A wild outburst of enthusiasm in today's stock market carried the industrial average to the highest level on record. The advance which ran from 3 to 10 points in many issues, was led by U. S. Steel Common and the Van Sweringen railroad stocks, buying of the latter being based on reports of a private settlement having been reached with the Chesapeake & Ohio minority issues. U. S. Steel common moved up over three points to 122 7-8, the highest price reached since March, on total transactions of over 100,000 shares.

Except for reports of continued expansion in various lines of trade, there was little in the day's news to influence the price movement. Operators for the rise derived encouragement, however, from the assertion of New York bankers that the reduction in the Bank of England discount rate could be construed as an indication that no immediate increase in the New York federal reserve was likely Periodic circulation of rumors that the New York rate was to be increased invariably have been followed by the heavy selling of stocks.

The weekly mercantile reviews were cheerful in tone. Bradstreet's characterized the business situation as "fully fair" reporting "a moderate but none the less perceptible quickening in wholesale and jobbing trade." Dunn's stated that "except for the threatening coal strike, the present indications are encouraging, and the greater activity in the formation of new enterprices reflects confidence in the future."

High priced industrials again displayed a buoyant tone. Midland Steel Products preferred soared eleven points to a new peak price at 143 on reports that approximately $16 a share was earned on that stock in the first six months of the year. General Railway Signal, which recently received a large order from New York Central, jumped ten points to a record high at 247 1-2, or more than 100 points above the initial transaction on the "big board" a few months ago.

General Electric closed 51-2 points higher at 310, after selling as high as 311 1-2. Mack Trucks jumped six points to 198 and net gains of 4 to 6 points were recorded by Burroughs Adding Machine the Commercial Solvents issues and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe.

International Combustion Engineering, which recently closed some important contracts, crossed 48 to a new high level for the year for a net gain of over 3 points on the day. American Can also moved up over 3 points crossing 218 to the highest price in history. Other outstanding industrial strong spots included Air Reduction, General Baking, Glidden Company, Great Western Sugar, Gulf States Steel National Canners, National Dairy Products, New York Dock, Pullman, Republic Steel, South Porto Rican Sugar, United Cigar and Virginia Railway Power, all up 2 1-2 to 4 points, and several at their best prices of the year.

International Shoe collapsed fifteen points to 25 1-4. Heaviness also was federal trade commission ordering that company to dispose of its stock of a rival concern, but it regained half of its loss before the close. Heavy selling of Mallinson just before the close sent that stock down more than 4 points to 25 1-4. Heavinesc also was shown by Coca Cola, Frank G. Shattuck and International Telephone, which yielded to profit taking sales.
